FATAL CRASH OCCURS

Engineer's View Obstructed by Another Engine, One Dead, Six Hurt in Other Accidents.

L. H. Harper, 28, 15 Bradley avenue, and H. T. Ledford, 33, of 27 Wyll street, were crushed to death, and R. F. Sutton, of Knoxville, was injured, probably fatally, when an A. B. & A. switch engine early Saturday night crashed into a light touring car in which they were riding at Jefferson street crossing. G. C. Taylor, also a passenger in the car, was badly cut and bruised, but will recover, Grady hospital physicians stated.

Charges of disorderly conduct have been made against Taylor in connection with the accident, based upon written reports of Officers E. R. Hardin and C. J. Schilling, to the effect that the men evidently had been drinking and were boisterous. Hospital authorities have been requested to detain Sutton, the driver, in event his condition improves, as charges probably will be preferred against him.

One Killed; Six Hurt.

Other accidents during Saturday afternoon and night included one in which Mitchell Martin, 35, negro, was instantly killed when struck by the speeding motorcycle of Officer Jack Parker, of East Point, who was chasing a speeding auto in Main street, East Point. Six other persons were injured in other auto and street car accidents during the day and night.

According to members of the crew of the engine which struck the automobile at Jefferson street crossing, a switch engine of the N. C. & St. L. road had been stopped only a few feet away from the crossing and in a position to obstruct the view of both Engineer J. M. Cowart, of the A. B. & A., and members of the auto party.

According to Engineer Cowart and Conductor J. H. Sanders, the switch engine was proceeding at a slow rate of speed, having returned from Howell's station where a delivery of cars had been made. There was no switchman on duty at the crossing, it was stated, and for that reason the engineer had slackened the speed of the engine at the crossing.

Engineer Cowart stated that he did not see the auto until it appeared directly on the tracks and his engine had moved a distance of about 25 feet.

Barber Peeved When Shop Near Station Is Robbed Six Times in Year.

New York, February 23.—There's a limit to neighborliness and Joseph Defato thinks matters have passed that limit in his case. He wants to be on friendly terms with the police of the Coney Island station, which is only four doors away from his barber shop. But he became most insulting today when he posted a sign on the cracked window of his place, reading: "Notice to burglars: I have been robbed six times in a year. From tonight on the front door will be open. Walk in and take anything you want. Don't break anything, I live close by, so if you don't find what you're after, come and see me. When you go out, please close the door. No interference from the police."

"I've been polite to the cops long enough," Defato said. "I suppose if I had my shop in the station house I'd be robbed every night, because it seems the closer you are to a police station in this town, the worse luck you have."

MEXICAN REBELS DYNAMITE TRAINS, KILL PASSENGERS

Pedro Gonzales Blows Up Two Trains Near Soledad.

Vera Cruz, February 23.—A scout train and a passenger train following it were dynamited yesterday near Soledad by rebels under command of Pedro Gonzales. The scout train was only slightly damaged and escaped, a guard of 50 men valiantly defended the passenger train, but were overwhelmed. Some passengers were reported killed and wounded, but the number is not definitely known.

The rebels robbed the passengers and looted and burned the express and mail cars.

They expected to capture Governor Tejeda, of Vera Cruz, but it is reported that he remained in Cordoba.

According to reports received here, the rebels have threatened to blow up the train today. A large force of government troops has been ordered into the region to drive out the revolutionaries.

EPIDEMICS RAGE ON EMORY CAMPUS

150 Students Are Stricken With Mumps and Measles—Under Control, Officials Claim.

Thirty Emory university students are now in the infirmary, 40 more are now confined to their beds in the dormitory and more than 80 have gone home with either measles or mumps during the last three weeks, according to reports Saturday. No quarantine has been placed on students, persons in charge said.

The epidemic is practically under control, according to a statement of H. B. Scott, in charge of the infirmary, who also reported that no new cases had developed in the last few days. Mrs. Turner, nurse, employed by the university, stated that in the dormitory probably will be discontinued during the week.

Cases of the disease in the dormitories have been more severe while students living off the campus have been practically immune.

No restriction has been placed on students by Dr. Paul W. Best, university physician.

Officials believe that the epidemic will be under complete control during the early part of the week.

WHITE LAUNCHES FIGHT ON PRESENT EDUCATION BOARD

Councilman To Ask Charter Amendment, Placing New Commission in Control of System.

CHANGE WOULD GIVE MAYOR VETO POWER

Amendment Would Provide Rules Preventing Closing of Schools Before End of the Year.

Abolition of the present board of education at the end of this year and creation of a new board of seven members elected by the people and subject to the veto power of the mayor, is proposed in a charter amendment to be introduced at the session of council next Monday by Councilman J. A. White, of the Fourth ward.

Councilman White stated that his measure, which he said has approval of Mayor Walter Sims and a majority of members of council, would be referred to the charter revision committee for public hearings before it is finally presented for adoption by council to be sent to the general assembly this summer.

The present board of education includes one member elected from each of the 12 wards in the city. It receives 26 per cent of the gross revenues of the city of Atlanta and has absolute authority over expending this money even to the extent of using it in such a way that schools may be closed in midyear, as was proposed at a special session Friday.

Provisions of Amendment.

The White amendment provides that the school board must at the first of each year submit to the mayor for his approval a balanced budget distributing total school revenues over the entire year in such a way as to prevent a financial crisis which would force schools to close in midyear.

The mayor's veto, according to the amendment, could be overridden by a two-thirds majority of the members of the board, which would be five members. Three votes would be required to sustain an executive veto.

Members of the board would be elected one from each of six school districts within the city, each including two councilmanic wards. The seventh member would be the chairman of the school committee of council, holding a chairmanship on the school board.

The amendment would not make any change in method of school financing nor would it place any statutory limitation on the authority of the school board to control the system at its own discretion.

Changes from the present system of control would be:

Reducing number of members from 12 to 7.

Giving council one representative. Giving the mayor veto power over

The bodies were so badly broken that it was difficult to identify the victims. Later, they were discovered to be Mrs. Davey, an Irish woman living in London, and her two children, Margaret and Kathleen.

A short time before the murders and suicide Mrs. Davey and the girls had stopped in a candy store nearby and asked the way to the cathedral. The mother also inquired whether persons were admitted to the campanile.

Scores of people, part of the Saturday afternoon holiday crowds, saw the mother and children fall to the pavement, followed by the mother. Reasons for Mrs. Davey's act have not been learned.

"I am not insure ordinarily, only when subconscious, and under the direction of the strange power that has commanded me to jail. I have hopes of a cure in due course of time.

(Signed.)

FRANK McDOWELL.

There was apparently nothing more to be learned from the boy though he was very gracious and willing to talk.

Is More Cheerful

There has been a good day for McDowell, the 19-year-old slayer of his two sisters by burning in their bungalow, Ga., home a year ago and the murderer of his parents by shooting them as they slept in their home at St. Petersburg, Fla., last Tuesday night.

A representative of the Associated Press, who had been sent to interview McDowell, was detained from 11 to noon today. The boy was more cheerful and said he had slept well and ate a good breakfast. The weather here today is ideal, warm, bright and cheerful. McDowell was taken from the tier of cells on the lower floor of the jail this morning, and placed in a comfortable room in the northwest corner of the building on the second floor. He was pacing up and down the floor when the Associated Press representative was admitted to his cell and he continued to pace while talking. He said he had been to jail too long, therefore was not so tired.

Asked if he recalled the happenings of last Monday, the day before he killed his parents, McDowell said his memory was hazy regarding everything that happened on that day, though he remembered something about meeting Mrs. Van Dyke, the state's attorney, at St. Petersburg and offering to take her home in his car. He also remembered sitting in the car on Central avenue and had a faint recollection of having written on a typewriter. He said he was pretty good with a typewriter.

Referring to Mary Birdseye, the girl he was quoted as saying he intended to marry, McDowell, showing same spirit, said, "I don't know just how that woman reporter managed to quote me as saying anything like that, I never had such a thought. However," said McDowell, "you know I have been having day dreams about seeing Mary again."

Told of Burial

McDowell was then told that his parents were buried in one grave, parents and sisters, yes. The boy said, "That is what they told me to do. Eventually it meant the officers at St. Petersburg who arrested him after the murder.

At the reference to the burial of his parents McDowell showed decided signs of grief though no tears could be detected in his eyes. His face scowled and he held the back of his neck with his hands and said, "My God, how I longed to cry and I think I did it." He then threw himself on his narrow cot while his body was convulsed with jerks and his lips turned blue, but no sobs were heard.

Deputy Sheriff Horton Belcher told reporters today that it had been decided not to have the prisoner examined by an ordinary physician, but to submit him to the usual procedure of trial for a capital crime. The boy killer, he said, would be given a preliminary hearing before County Judge Bird, he will be held for trial and tried in circuit court here at the next term, in May.

The date for the hearing has not been set. The state's attorney, H. A. Wilson of Danville, is in Memphis, Tenn., and Belcher was unable to say when he would return.

If McDowell was adjudged insane by a lunacy commission, said Belcher, he would be sent to an asylum as an ordinary crazed man. But, if the boy is tried for murder the jury would probably return a verdict that he is criminally insane, or that he committed murder. In the event of the former verdict he would be locked up under close guard, and if found guilty on the murder charge, would be electrocuted, Belcher said.

No Fear of Violence.

Belcher laughed at reports of a movement to lynch the boy. "People have too much sense for that," he said.

Dr. H. Mason Smith, alienist, former superintendent of the state insane hospital at Chattahoochee, talked with McDowell a short time late yesterday. Afterwards he told reporters the boy was apparently crazy. He added, however, that he would have to make a more extended examination before he could define the form of insanity that affected the lad.

"Has he delusions, or is he a paranoid?" Dr. Smith was asked. "I can't say definitely," he replied. "He seems to have a little bit of both."

YOUTHFUL LAWYER ASKS FOR HASTE IN TRIAL.

Tampa, Fla., February 23.—That Frank McDowell will face trial in the regular process of law instead of going before an insanity commission, was the statement today of Pinellas county authorities. The youthful slayer of his parents, jail at Clearwater, when being apprised of this fact, declared his hope that there would be no lengthy delay before trial would be McDowell, when apprised of the fact that Dr. H. Mason Smith, noted alienist and former superintendent of the Florida hospital for the insane, is at present in Florida, had declared belief of his insanity, appeared pleased. Dr. Smith was retained by The Tampa Morning Tribune for the examination, and in a statement copyright by The Tribune declared he had found several indications of insanity in the boy.

"I want to be thoroughly examined," McDowell said today. "I believe I am of a disordered mind. I know it, in fact, but I want it absolutely determined. What they do with me is a secondary matter, as far as I am concerned. The scientific aspects of my case interest me greatly; however, I want to be examined by a medical man, I am not right and I know it. I want to be examined by a medical man, I am not right and I know it. I am a murderer, forced to kill by something I cannot resist. I want to get to the bottom of the trouble."

Like begets like. To be good, a suit has to be tailored well. Much more than time, and thread, and cloth must be put into it—care, judgment, understanding, experience—even to the most hidden edge!

Things that come easy—go easy. This applies all the way through life. The lessons, in the blue-back speller, which you only scanned—didn't stick... and clothes that seem to be a "pick up" at insecure prices are generally a "let down"—

There are no miracles in merchandising. It is the most FACTful thing on earth. Wands waved over a $30 suit will not bring out fifty dollars' worth of wear. A suit assembled in a bang-bang rush can't be expected to last.

Genuineness is the only thing worth while. A finely hand-tailored Hickey-Freeman Suit, for instance, fits you perfectly—becomes you handsomely—distinguishes you... places you among the best-dressed men in Atlanta!

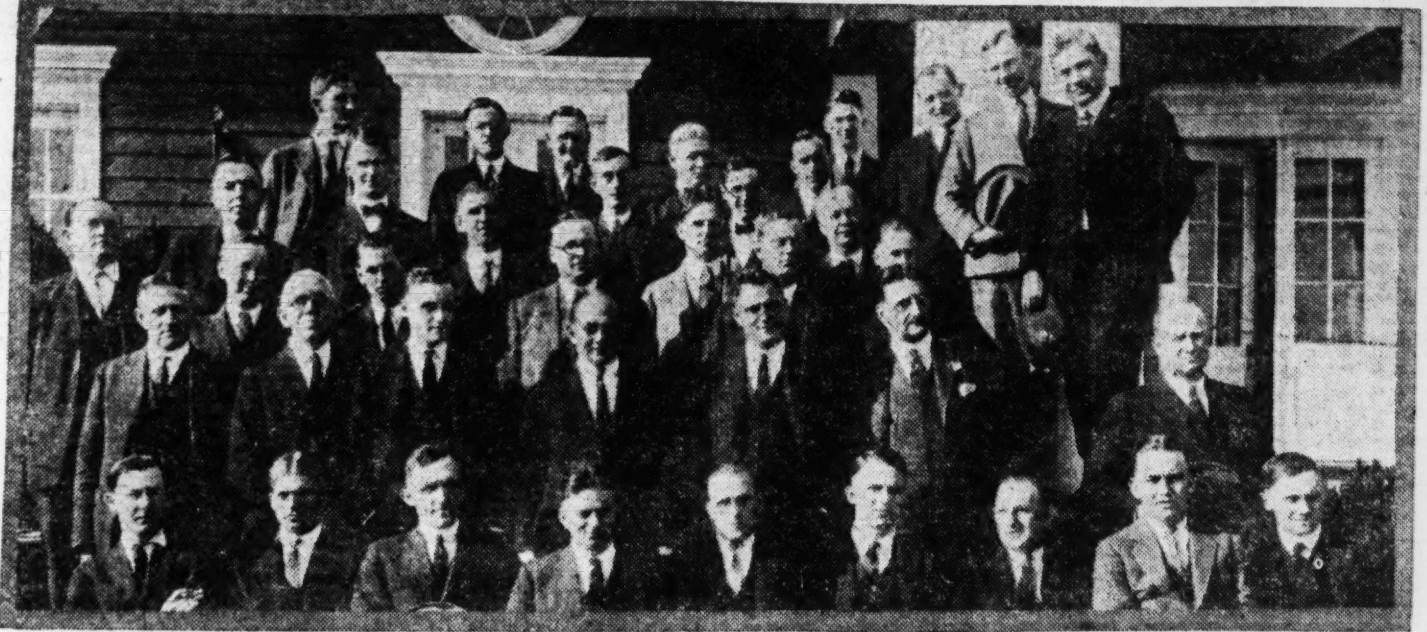

That's the kind of suit for you... evident genuineness all the way through... recognized excellence. Worth-worthy of you, of Hickey-Freeman, of Muse—and the dollars that buy it for you tomorrow morning!

Revised Budget
Closes Schools
On September 1

A revised school budget making possible completion of Girls' High School by September 1 provided all public schools, including Girls' High, close down on the same date, was prepared Saturday by a special school board committee to be submitted Monday to a special meeting of the full board.

Revision of the budget was made at the request of a special committee from the aldermanic board with a view to legalizing contracts for completing Girls' High at a cost of $364,000.

Mayor Not To Approve.

Mayors Sims declined to comment on the prospective action of the school board further than to refer to a previous statement that "he would approve no paper that would force the schools to close before the end of the normal school year."

The aldermanic board last week had referred to appear Girls' High contract, concluding after a ruling by City Attorney Mayman that the contract would be illegal unless the school board balanced its budget.

At a special meeting Friday the education board refused to adopt a revised budget which provided for Girls' High but would have made closing of schools necessary again. A special committee composed of School Commissioners H. J. Penn, W. W. Gaines and W. C. slate, was appointed to draw a new balanced budget. By cutting appropriations for equipment, repairs and extra salaries they arranged a new budget looking toward cutting off the school year on September 1.

Gordon's Position.

At the Friday session, Alderman R. A. Gordon had told the school board "that the city of Atlanta never would let the schools close" and Alderman J. R. Bingham had told them the city would not be justified in artificially creating a crisis that would leave the alternatives of increasing taxes or closing schools."

Council had asked the school board to build Girls' High out of current revenue, looking to a 25-cent increase in tax rate to replenish the treasury before the end of the year.

The Old Black Mummy.

Friends of the McDowell family in Acworth and Forsyth admit finally enough that Frank McDowell had been confined to the care of an old black mummy during the first years of his life. At that time that black mummy already was bent with old age. She had been born in slavery. The black mummy to whom the crippled but one generation removed from the black voodoo worshippers of the darkest interior of Africa.

Will the psychologist find the solution of the ghastly crimes in this simple fact? Will it be shown that Frank McDowell had been a victim in those tender years of childhood when the brain is like a psychic sponge, that they influenced all his later life?

What drove McDowell to read books about "Devil Worshippers" about the Black Mass, Sinister secret societies existed in Paris and in other European cities which gathered in the dead of night, when in a sort of chapter of cabalistic ceremonial. The total, it was stated, is far short of the $50,000 fixed by the committee as necessary to build a memorial large enough to express Atlanta's attitude toward Woodrow Wilson.

The free-will offering in the churches today is intended to make up the rest of the fund.

A memorial is to be built in Atlanta. That was promised definitely by J. L. McCord, general chairman, Saturday. Its size and elaborateness will depend entirely on how generously Atlanta church-goers respond to the appeal for funds he said.

Suggestions for the design for the memorial is to be left to popular vote, a committee headed by Superintendent of Schools Willis A. Sutton receiving suggestions from all people interested. Written suggestions should be mailed to Superintendent Sutton at the city hall, Atlanta.

"We have liberty under law," Mr. Hughes said, "but under how much law?"

The secretary of state contended that judges should write their opinions because the bar knows that the best security of good and faithful work is that the judge must state his reasons.

"For generations we have talked of the evils of multiplying laws," he said. "Lawyers decry the multiplication in the meetings of bar associations and then, sitting in legislative halls, do their full share to increase it."

"The main trouble with the volume of legislation is not with the courts, but with the legislatures. The evil resides not merely in the number of laws. It is in badly drawn laws."

It is also in the compromises of legislation where the contests of opposing policies are satisfied by ambiguous phrases which transmit the difficulties of legislative bodies to the courts.

Frankly Answer 20 Questions Motorists Are Asking About

BALLOON GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Much confusion and misrepresentation has been caused by manufacturers offering oversized cord tires announced as "Balloons" or "Balloon-type" which are in reality, semi-balloons.

The true Balloon was pioneered and perfected by Firestone. We, the Firestone Service Dealers of this territory, after talking with hundreds of interested motorists have prepared the following answers to twenty questions, so that you may be fully acquainted with the situation, and authentically informed about the construction features and advantages of the genuine Balloon Tires.

You, no doubt, have either asked these same questions--or at least have had them in mind. Now--you have them frankly and truthfully answered.

1 What is a real Balloon Tire?

The true Balloon is a super-size Gum-Dipped Cord that is specially designed and constructed. It has twice the air capacity and operates successfully with only half the pressure of regular tires. We believe it to be the most important contribution to motoring comfort, safety and economy since the invention of the pneumatic tire.

2 How does it differ from the interchangeable, or "Semi-Balloon"?

The so-called "balloons" that are interchangeable with present wheel and rim equipment are merely 10% to 20% oversized cord tires, with fewer plies. They are little better than your present regular cords. The true balloon has double the air capacity of the regular tire it replaces, has its thinner side wall made extra strong and is mounted on a smaller diameter wheel, so that the gear ratio of the car is unchanged, and the proper fender clearance is provided.

3 Can a real Balloon Tire be applied to present wheels?

NO. To provide sufficient tire section to carry the load on low air pressure it is necessary to have a larger tire than can be applied to wheels and rims now on cars using high pressure tires.

4 Why are the smaller wheels necessary?

Firestone Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the present operation of your car. For instance, a 7.30 balloon gum-dipped cord replaces a 33x5 standard size tire. It is mounted on a wheel 20 inches in diameter. This makes the outside diameter actually no greater than the standard tire it replaces. We have special service wheels built by Firestone, with spokes offset three-quarters of an inch. This readily takes care of fender and body clearances. And it is a fact that you cannot replace a regular 33x5 tire with a semi-balloon without wheel changes.

5 Who was responsible for the real Balloon Tire?

Firestone made the low air pressure idea practical and developed the Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord to its present point of utility.

6 What made the real Balloon Tire practical?

GUM DIPPING. Low pressure tires require thin side walls that flex easily as road shocks are encountered. Firestone found the way to combine extreme flexibility with toughness and strength. The Firestone gum-dipping process impregnates each cord with special rubber compound.

7 Has the real Balloon Tire been Tested?

YES. Before announcing Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to the public, Firestone submitted them to more than two million miles of test driving, and millions of additional miles of actual service have strongly emphasized their wonderful advantages.

8 Do Automobile Manufacturers offer real Balloons as original equipment?

YES. Sixteen leading car manufacturers today offer Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords as original or optional equipment. They put Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords to their own tests before offering them to the public.

9 Do Automobile Manufacturers offer Semi-Balloons as original equipment?

NO. No automobile manufacturer uses Semi-Balloons, either as original or optional equipment, as they would change gear ratios, interfere with fender and body clearances, and cause other mechanical difficulties.

10 Do real Balloons make riding more comfortable?

YES. They do what tires from the first were intended to do--cushion the car on air. Bumps, holes, and irregularities are completely absorbed, making even the worst road smooth to travel. If you have never ridden on real Balloon tires, you cannot conceive the luxurious riding comfort, the wonderful feeling of safety and complete relaxation they make possible.

11 Are True Balloon Cords safer?

YES. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords virtually eliminate skidding, and give you both wheel and braking control of your car, never before experienced. Their broad, flexible treads have twice the contact area with the road. Multiplied crosses, squares, and deep grooves cling to slippery surfaces and increase the traction.

12 Do they add to the life of your car?

YES. By cushioning jolts and vibration below the hubs. Wear and tear on the motor, gears and bearings, from the pounding of the road, is reduced. Crystallization of chassis parts is slowed down and body squeaks and rattles are minimized.

13 Do Genuine Balloons cut down power or increase fuel consumption?

NO. Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords do not change the gear ratio of your car--do not increase gasoline consumption--do not decrease tire mileage--do not decrease acceleration--do not affect the car's hill climbing ability.

14 What happens when a real Balloon Tire is punctured?

NOTHING. In the first place, they do not puncture as easily as ordinary tires due to the fact that they yield rather than be pierced by the puncturing object. Secondly, when a puncture does occur the air escapes slowly because of the low pressure.

15 Do they make steering harder?

NO. Steering is actually easier when car is in motion and long distance runs are made with much less fatigue to driver, as car holds a steadier course.

When maneuvering into a cramped parking space more of an effort is required at the wheel.

16 Do real Balloon tires "shimmy"?

NO. Not when wheels and tires are correctly balanced. Due to Firestone's unusual method of balancing tube and carcass, with proper relation to valve, splice, head and other parts, vibration in steering mechanism is practically nil.

17 How am I to know a real Balloon Tire?

By its greater size, its thin side wall, its distinctive tread of grooves and crosses and squares, the name Firestone on the side wall and the Mark of Quality.

18 Are real Balloon tires standardized?

Automotive authorities have approved the Balloon Tire as applied to 20- and 21-inch wheels in the sizes offered by Firestone--4.40 and 5.25 on the 21-inch wheel, 6.20 on both 20- and 21-inch wheels and 7.30 on the 20-inch wheel.

19 Are real Balloon Tires made for all cars?

YES. The genuine Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord can be had in sizes for all cars. For instance, a 7.30 Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord replaces a 33x5 standard size Firestone, and a 4.40 Balloon replaces a 30x3 1/2-inch tire, used by light car owners. We have the wheels and rims built by Firestone which make Balloons applicable to all makes and models.

20 Who will make the change-over to real Balloons for me?

We will. And do it so quickly, too, because we are supplied with the Firestone special service wheel for Balloon equipment. We would like to explain this feature to you in detail and answer any other questions you may have in mind regarding this wonderful tire. Drive 'round, anytime, and let us arrange to take you for a demonstration. A ride on Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord--on any street--will amaze you.

Wilson Tree To Be Planted

CITY, STATE AND MILITARY AUTHORITIES TAKE PART
On "Road of Remembrance"

Governor Clifford Walker, General David C. Shanks, Major Walter A. Sims, members of the Fulton county board of commissioners and other prominent government, state and county officials will attend planting a tree Tuesday afternoon as a memorial to Woodrow Wilson. Simple and impressive ceremonies will be held, according to Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, president of the national woman's commission of the Bankhead highway commission.

The memorial tree in the former president will be planted near the junction of Hightower road and May and Turner road, at 2:30 o'clock, and marks resumption of the work of lining the Bankhead highway in Fulton county with trees in memory of veterans of the world war. The route will be known as the "Road of Remembrance." One thousand beautiful elms and oaks already have been planted. A minimum of 1,000 needed to complete the entire route from county line to county line.

County Bears Expense.

Fulton county commissioners have agreed to assume expenses of planting and maintaining the trees, according to Mrs. Thornton. "This marks the most important step yet taken," said Mrs. Thornton. "In steps to complete the work of planting trees along the route, the Bankhead highway to San Diego, Cal., Fulton commissioners cannot be too highly praised for their action and I feel confident that commissioners and officials in other counties in the thirteen states through which the route passes will immediately start similar plans."

The program for the ceremonies Tuesday is in charge of Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., and tentative arrangements include short talks by Governor Walker, General Shanks of four corps area; Major Sims, J. L. McCord, Edwin Johnson, chairman of the county board, and others. Dr. M.

COOLIDGE BACKS DAUGHERTY FOR OHIO DELEGATE AS BORAH AND ROBINSON DEMAND IMPEACHMENT

Democrat Tax Plan Hits First Rough Spot

Amendment by Frear of Wisconsin Sought To Restore Excess Profits Tax. Lost by 157 to 74.

REPUBLICANS FIGHT
AS FOR LOST CAUSE

Longworth Puts All His Hopes in Winning Compromise When Roll-Call Vote Comes.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES. Washington, February 23.—Momentum, at least, the republican organization in the house of representatives seems to have checked the onslaught which the progressive and democratic coalition has been engineering against the administration tax program.

By a vote of 157 to 74, the house today rejected an attempt by the democrats and insurgents to insert an excess profits tax into the new tax law. This was done when the house defeated the proposal by Representative Frear that all profits over 20 per cent be taxed 50 per cent and that all profits under 20 per cent be assessed with a 10 per cent levy.

Frear's proposal provided that profits up to 8 per cent, plus $3,000, be exempt from taxation.

Butchery Is Charged. Representative Longworth, republican floor leader, charged during the debate that efforts were being made to "butcher" the Mellon tax program. The democrats and the radical republicans, he charged, were trying to amend the Mellon plan out of existence.

Meanwhile, republican leaders in the house, with their backs to the wall, are rising to the fight of their lives. This was reflected in Longworth's speech. In cloakroom and private conferences, the regular republicans are bringing all possible pressure against recalcitrant followers to swing them into line behind some compromise tax program which does not bear the democratic trade-mark.

No Votes Not Recorded.

The Garner plan, backed by democrats and insurgent republicans, has been adopted tentatively by the house, sitting in the committee of the whole. However, republicans have another chance to kill the democratic plan and substitute their own. This will come when a record vote is taken, after the tedious consideration of technical, administrative features is completed.

As yet, no member's vote has been put down in black and white. Voting has been by "ayes" and "nays," and by a teller's count on close decisions. Republican leaders, in laying their lines for the final vote, are depending on the force which the publicity of a record vote always carries to swing over enough support to kill the democratic plan.

Millions Tramped to War :: HIS NAME UNKNOWN, HE ALMOST DIED UNSUNG :: Chanting Williams' Tune

Coventry, England, February 23.—About the only places where the name of H. J. Williams ever appeared in print were the birth column, the marriage column and the death notice column and on the cover of a doggerel song of the English music halls.

It has just appeared in the death notices and it would have been passed over by the public as merely the name of a man who had died if someone hadn't recollected who H. J. Williams was.

H. J. Williams was the man who wrote the song that set the meter for millions of pairs of marching feet that swung along the roads of France and back of Saloniki; on the training plains of Canada and over the sands of Egypt. The song was called "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Williams was 50 years old.

SEMP MUST TELL OF CAPITOL LEAK

SAUNDERS FILES BANKRUPT SUIT

Senator Walsh Wants to Know Where Prospective Witnesses Get Advance Word on Call.

Washington, Feb. 23.—With Senator Walsh back in the capital, pushing relentlessly the oil investigation, new phases of this sensation are expected to come to light when the senate committee resumes its questioning next week.

Interest is centered now on the appearance before the committee Monday of C. Bascom Slempe, secretary to President Coolidge. Slempe, it is understood, will be asked to reveal what he knows about "leaks" from the committee which have permitted certain information to reach the ears of persons involved in the oil scandal.

Slempe will appear before the committee at 10 o'clock Monday morning. "We will ask Mr. Slempe about all communications he has had regarding the inquiry with anyone involved," Senator Walsh said today.

Leak Is Evident. Evidence of "leaks" from secret sessions of the committee was seen when persons mentioned at those sessions but not named publicly appeared at the capital to confer with senators, and disclosed that they knew of contemplated committee action.

Senator Walsh indicated he was only slightly interested in questioning Mr. Coolidge's secretary about his trip to Palm Beach, Fla., while E. B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, were there.

Walsh held lengthy conferences throughout the day with members of the committee, outlining plans for what may be the final drive to reveal all the secrets connected with the leasing of naval reserve lands.

Finny Songsters To Bait EX-MAYOR TO TRAIN NIGHTINGALES OF SEA Suckers For "Windy City"

BY HARLAN S. MILLER.

Chicago, February 23.—A singing fish, who can climb trees into the bargain, is not to be sneezed at. That is no way to encourage him, according to William Hale Thompson.

Treated judiciously, such a fish can be turned into the best sort of a booster for Chicago, with a little training.

That is Chicago's former mayor intends to do, if it is humanly possible to coax a few singing trout to the loop from the Malay Archipelago.

Friends of Thompson, who don't care how they spend his money, insist that he has wagered $25,000 that he can secure photographs of such a finny warbler climbing a tree.

Granted that the privacy of the fish is invaded while climbing a tree melodiously, does Thompson expect the voice of the fish to register on the film? Possibly he plays a phonograph attachment.

Enemies of Thompson, who seem to forget that he is out of politics, accuse him of turning idealist, of hunting flying fish with a camera because he once belonged to a save-our-lands club.

They declare there is nothing practical about this expedition, in a 55-foot boat, the keel for which was just laid. Any one who passes that way can see it, lying there in the snow near the water, looking rather finny for the Pacific.

But from a Chicagoan who voted for Thompson once too often, it was learned Tuesday that Thompson has a shrewd pose in trailing the flying-singing dophin to his favorite seat in the bread crumb trees of the

— in addition to regarding the $25,000 as a shrewd investment.

In plain words, Thompson aims to use the flying, flipping, flippant finny-splashing finches for advertising purposes.

First of all, he intends to smuggle a few of the tree-climbing sightseers of the seas into the New York

BRUISED BY WIND, ROUGHED BY WAVE, SHIP BEATS HOME

SOOTHING MASSAGE OF SCOTCH BARNACLE SCRAPPERS EXPECTED TO PUT GARTHWAAY IN TRIM AGAIN.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, February 23.—At some vague position on the South Atlantic the spinsterly old full-rigged Garthway, of Glasgow, is shaking her spars at the prankish seas as an irate land lassie might waggle her corkscrew curts at a lot of bad boys, and is doing her best to walk home to Scotland in a ladylike manner.

She has been gone just 14 months too long on a routine errand

If everyone didn't know the Garthway as a most respectable lady of the high seas, never given to shabby business or loitering unduly in questionable seaports, there might be a suspicion at home that someone had poured her hatches full of helian dew and gulled her into joining the disreputable company which slouches along the 12-mile limit off New York, selling liquor to the smugglers.

To Get New Dress.

When the Garthway gets home to Glasgow, her first business will be to have herself measured for a new dress of sails for the poor, distressed old woman has been blown almost naked by the bumptious winds of many seas and is taking the sideways home lest she be seen in her tatters by gossipy acquaintances from Liverpool and Tilbury, the Tyneside and Baltimore.

Then she will ease herself into the cradles in her drydock and tel' tale while the men massage the barnacles away and rub her down with soothing and refreshing coats of dressing.

To the Garthway this will have the same effect as a pot of good strong tea on a washerwoman after putting on a washerwoman after putting on the job through the wringer.

"Mon," she will begin, "yon was a cr-r-ruise. Yon was a most deefult cr-r-ruise, indeed."

Destined for Iquique.

The Garthway's distressing experiences were reated in New York today by James Robinson Griffith, assistant purser of the steamship Elbro of the Royal Mail line, just in from Valparaiso, Chile. He logged the story when he met Captain Henry, of the Garthway, at Iquique several weeks ago.

The story then that the Garthway will relate when she gets back again to bonnie Scotland is something like this:

She sailed from Grangemouth on July 14, 1922, with a cargo of coal in briquettes, a crew of 25 fully qualified windjammer and nine apprentices. Her destination was Iquique, which she reached two days up the Chilean coast from Valparaiso after a down from Peru. So you see she had a long voyage. To make it worse, the Garthway is an old-fashioned ship, with old habits, and she was routed around the Horn instead of through the canal because—well, she had gone that way many times and old ways are best.

Other assets include insurance policies aggregating $550,000, bills, promissory notes and securities valued at $108,810 and cash on deposit in banks $2,350.

BUSINESS SECTION OF SALEM, OHIO, FACES DESTRUCTION—BIG EVANSVILLE MILL IS BURNED.

Salem, Ohio, February 24.—Flames early today were sweeping almost the whole Salem business district while fire departments from Alliance and Columbia aided the local departments.

The fire started after 9 o'clock last night. At 1 o'clock this morning five stores on Broadway in the heart of the city had been destroyed and the First National bank was in the path of the flames.

Prattle of Babe Marks SANDMAN OF ETERNAL SLEEP ROUTED FROM PREY Burly Man Who Woke Her

New York, February 23.—John McCabe might make a workmanlike burglar, but he wouldn't be a very successful fugitive.

He came home from work late in the evening and was slowly climbing the stairs to his apartment when he smelled gas. McCabe's nose traced it to the door of the apartment of Thomas Huenke. Nobody answered his knock so he hauled off with his right fist and splintered the panel with one smash. Then he jiggled the burglar-proof lock, entered the apartment, threw open the window and went to work on 3-year-old Lucy Huenke, who lay unconscious.

McCabe jiggled the burglar-proof and quick responsiveness of the survivor. A phone call summoned an ambulance with a surgeon, who found little Lucy alone. All she could say was that she had awakened to find a man standing over her manipulating her arms and telling her "Breathe deep, little girl; breathe way deep."

Lucy's parents returned from the movies soon after that.

In the morning, Lucy, still feeling weak, was sitting by the front window when she saw a man coming out of the apartment door.

"There he is!" she cried. "That's the man who woke me."

Her father overtook McCabe.

"I saw the kid was all right," McCabe said, "but I called the ambulance to make sure. Then I went upstairs to my flat. I was all in."

"But say," he added, "I'd make a poor crook, wouldn't I, letting myself be caught by a kid the next morning."

McCabe took the lead in this

Two Are Injured By Accidental Shots Saturday

Henry Russ, one of the proprietors of a grocery store at 183 Houston street, and Joe Bragg, nine years old, of Ormond street, were wounded Saturday afternoon by accidentally discharged guns. The boy probably will lose his right eye as the result, and Russ is at Grady hospital with a bullet in his left leg, the bone of which was shattered by the shot.

The Bragg youngster and his twin brother, George, were on their way home from a show when they met two other boys, one armed with an air rifle, they told police. The boy with the gun challenged him to advance.

The Bragg youngsters paid no attention to the other boys, and kept on walking, but the boy with the gun made good his threat and fired, the shot hitting Joe in the right eye. Both of the boys, whose names have not been ascertained, then disappeared, and are being hunted by police. The injured youth was taken home where he received medical attention.

Russ was shot when a revolver in the hands of his brother, Joe Russ, was discharged accidentally in their Houston street grocery store. Russ was cleaning the pistol at the time in order to have it ready for burglars, he said. His brother was sitting opposite him, and the shot entered Henry's leg just below the knee cap.

ment demand above all else a man at the head of the department of justice who had the full confidence and respect of the people," said Both.

If the attorney general remains in office, President Coolidge must accept the full responsibility, and answer to the people.

Columbus, O., February 23.—Political activity in Ohio, almost dormant during the past several weeks, today was given a rejuvenation.

Developments of the day, which came with almost kaleidoscopic rapidity, included:

Official filing with Secretary of State Brown of the declaration of candidacy of President Coolidge.

Announcement that William G. McAdoo would carry his fight to the democratic presidential nomination into Ohio and make a determined effort to capture the Buckeye delegates.

Official ruling by Secretary Brown requiring candidates for delegate to the national conventions to obtain the written consent of the presidential candidate with whom they are supporting before they may enter the treasury.

This ruling reverses rulings of two previous state secretaries and closes the delegate lists to those selected by the managers of the various presidential candidates.

Definite entrances of James A. White, former president of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, into the contest for the republican gubernatorial nomination on a platform which included law enforcement and tax reduction.

McAdoo is expected to file his declaration early next week. Secretary of State Brown advised him to do so.

Land attorney, and H. G. Dill, of Columbus, at a conference today, that it would be necessary to obtain written consent of the former treasury secretary before delegates could file for him. The two McAdoo supporters immediately wired Mr. McAdoo at Los Angeles requesting him to forward his consent. Within determined McAdoo would make a determined fight for the Ohio delegation.

Efforts had been made by politicians, he said, "to close up" the primary and select a convention delegation which they could control.

Former Governor James M. Cox, democratic presidential candidate in 1920, also will be a candidate in Ohio.

UNDERWOOD RECORD SCORED BY BRYAN

Birmingham, Ala., February 23.—The prohibition record of Senator Oscar W. Underwood was attacked by William Jennings Bryan here tonight in one of a series of addresses he is delivering in Alabama in the interest of L. B. Muges, candidate for president in the Alabama primaries.

After naming a number of prohibition measures which he said Senator Underwood had opposed, Mr. Bryan declared:

"No man who fights prohibition for 25 years has any right to be the president who enforces these laws."

Touching the senate oil inquiry Mr. Bryan said:

"E. L. Doheny is a small figure in the republican party's history of graft. For generations they have sold legislation to the highest bidder. It is not an incident in our national life—it is a regular occurrence. What do you think Doheny paid $25,000 in the campaign fund for if he didn't expect to get it back?"

IOWA PHYSICIAN MAKES STARTLING OFFER TO CATARRH SUFFERERS

Found Treatment Which Healed His Own Catarrh and Now Offers To Send
It Free to Sufferers Anywhere.

Davenport, Iowa.—Dr. W. O. Coffey, Suite 786, St. James Hotel Building, this city, one of the most widely known physicians and surgeons of the central west, announces that he found a treatment which completely healed him of catarrh in the last few months, deafness and head aches after many years of suffering. He then gave the treatment to a number of other sufferers and they state that they also were completely healed. The Doctor is so proud of his achievement and so confident that the treatment will bring other sufferers to him, that he has given him that he is offering to send a 10 day's supply absolutely free to any reader of this paper who writes him. Dr. Coffey has specialized on eye, ear, nose and throat diseases for more than thirty-five years and is honored and respected by counties, thousands. If you suffer from deafness or throat catarrh, ear, head aches or head noises, send him your name and address today. (adv.)

Catarrh Germs Can Be Killed

Woman on Jury
Has Mind Change

CREAM IN NOSTRILS SOON STOPS COLDS

Colds and catarrh yield like magic to soothing, healing antiseptic cream that penetrates through every air passage and relieves swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and sniffing stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy known for more than fifty years. (adv.)

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT DRINK MORE WATER

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble which often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, our back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have grippe, when the grippe is high, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Cad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

When famous salts made from the seeds of grape and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Cad Salts is a diuretic; can not induce a delightful after-feeling like water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. (adv.)

DOUG LUMBOGO! RUB BACKACHE AWAY

Kidneys cause backache! No! Your headache is caused by lumbago, rheumatism or a strain and the quickest relief is soothing, penetrating St. Jacobs Oil. Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a 35 cent bottle of St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache or lumbago. Use for 65 years for backache, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, sprains. Absolutely harmless. Doesn't burn the skin.

Library Branch Mrs. Asa Candler And Art Museum For Prison Site Trial Date Will Be Fixed Monday

Atlanta's city prison may be converted into a southside branch of the Carnegie library and a municipal art museum by the time the magnificent new Girls' High school is opened, under plans being considered Saturday by the city council committee on prisons.

The so-called "stockade" is a massive structure of reinforced concrete at the top of one of the two twin hills on the city's big tract of land in the third ward. The new girls' school is being built on the other hill, facing the stockade.

Will Remove Prisoners.

Mayor and council are pledged to remove all prisoners from the stockade by time the new school is opened but all city officials have expressed unalterable opposition to wrecking the present stockade building, which the present committee expects that, it is estimated, several tons of dynamite would be required to demolish it.

The building, at present, is not suitable for an art museum but Chief of Construction, William A. Hansell, who made a thorough inspection of it Saturday in company with the prison committee, stated that windows could be widened and skylights could be cut in the concrete roof without weakening the building.

The committee has taken action on a resolution by Councilman C. A. Avon, introduced on behalf of third ward residents, asking that a branch library be established in the building. Definite action will not be taken until it is decided where the new stockade, for which $50,000 is provided in the finance sheet, is to be built.

Stockade Cost $25,000.

The stockade was built at a cost of less than $25,000 under supervision of the committee headed by Councilman C. J. Vaughan, of the fourth ward, prior to the world war and its consequent rise in prices. Stone from the city quarry and convict labor was used. It was estimated that the free labor and commercial material it would cost at least $150,000 to duplicate the structure at the present time.

The prison committee was divided Saturday over whether to place a new stockade on the hill above the old or on property near Decatur street or on the dairy farm property. Some members advocated the Fort street site so that prisoners used in street work could be kept in the city near the places where they worked. Others proposed keeping them in a place in the city limits because of the bad effect the presence of a prison has on development of nearby property.

Woman on Jury Has Mind Change She Tells Court

Philadelphia, February 23.—Mrs. Emma F. Ware, of this city, today started the United States district court with the announcement she had "changed her mind" regarding a verdict she had helped to return as a juror.

Yesterday Mrs. Ware signed a verdict in a $150,000 damage suit brought by heirs of a four grade crossing victim against the Pennsylvania railroad in favor of the railroad company.

The verdict was reached last night, the jury and sealed after which the jurors were released. The original verdict to be filed but that counsel for the plaintiffs would be allowed to file a motion to have it set aside.

involved in the scandal, so that proceedings may be undertaken speedily by the presidential counsel.

3. Postpone questioning of Edward B. McLean and Harry F. Sinclair until some evidence concerning stock speculations and the reported million-dollar slush fund can be put in the committee record.

4. Set aside on Monday of Milton Ailes, president of the Riggs National Bank of Washington, to be asked whether the reported million-dollar slush fund had been deposited in his bank.

Hope to Bare "Pool."

If Walsh obtains the evidence he thinks he is going to get, new phases of the inquiry may develop. If his work is done, he will have to plan some new means of getting the evidence or conclude the inquiry.

The committee hopes to disclose operations of a stock purchasing "pool." The story is that a half dozen big officials who were intimate friends joined together in buying and selling stocks. The pool, however, was said to have failed when an oil stock slumped.

FALL PROMISED PUBLICLY ON LEAKS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., February 23.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, made a "definite promise" to Senator J. W. Harrel, Republican, Oklahoma, to seek an oil lease without first giving public notice of his intention. Senator Harrel told a meeting of the republican committee here today. After his promise, Senator Harrel said, "the deal was pulled off in a dark corner."

Senator Harrel's statement caused something of a stir because it was said to be the first public intimation that former Secretary Fall had promised to give public notice before he contracted the Teapot Dome or any other oil lease.

The Oklahoma senator justified his action in voting for the Senate resolution asking the resignation of Edward Denby as secretary of the navy by declaring:

"Knowing as I did, the facts, I could not in any way, with out putting the stamp of approval on the most crooked deal in recent American history. Denby's usefulness as a public official was at an end."

In explaining how he obtained Mr. Fall's promise, Senator Harrel said that when Fall had protested the late President Harding against the plan of Fall and Denby to have the naval oil reserves taken from under the supervision of the navy department and transferred to the interior department.

Fall then that these leases would not be made without first giving a public notice, and then the deal was pulled off in a dark corner."

Senator Harrel declared that the oil lease scandal has "shaken the confidence of the people in public officials." He said he has been following Coolidge in his determination to punish the guilty parties, or see the republican party swept out of power.

Highland Avenue Car Line Extension Now Under Way.

FOR weeks we have told our friends about this extension. If you will drive out today to the intersection of Highland and Virginia avenues you will notice that Highland avenue is being torn up for the purpose of laying the car tracks. After this is done the avenue is to be concreted.

MORNINGSIDE and North Highlands will be served by this extension. Incidentally, this is one of Atlanta's largest residential sections and it is being intensely improved right now.

OUR winter prices still obtain on this property and you should BUY YOUR LOT NOW. Drive out Highland today and see the number of homes already under construction in this sector. If you can visualize—now is the time to buy your lot—either for a home site or for an investment.

AT our present price you can buy a lot 55x250 feet within a block of the car line, on a 70-foot concrete street, carrying every improvement, for as low as $2,500.

THIS same lot will sell for $3,000 within 60 days. Can you afford not to buy now? Remember we guarantee, IN WRITING, all improvements, even to the concrete street, at no extra cost to you.

DRIVE out today and see for yourself. For appointment to make your selection, phone WALnut 0636.

The Best Support in the World For a Rupture

Is The Human Hand

The WORST Support Ever Devised, Is a Hard, Unyielding Knob, or Pad, Pressed Into the Rupture by a Steel Spring—Thereby Preventing Nature From EVER Having a Chance to Bring About a Healing of the Parts

The Brooks Appliance most closely resembles the human hand as a rupture support. You will notice the first moment you put on a Brooks Appliance, the pliable, flesh-like touch of the velvet finished rubber and it will take only this first experience of comfort and security to make you decide—"This is what I want."

For the benefit of our readers we take pleasure in publishing the Brooks offer to save all who are ruptured from wearing painful makeshift trusses that do not cure.

No man or woman ever can look and feel his or her best while suffering the torment, pain and discomfort of rupture.

Every day that you suffer from rupture—every hour of truss torture that you endure—after you read this page is your own fault.

For many years we have been telling you that no makeshift truss will ever help you. We have told you about the harm ill-fitting trusses are doing. We have told you that the only truly comfortable, sanitary and scientific device for holding rupture is the Brooks Rupture Appliance.

Now we offer to prove it to you, entirely at our risk. We will send you a Brooks Rupture Appliance on trial. If you really want to be rid of your rupture fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

Instead of wearing a steel spring or inflexible harness, try the velvet-soft Brooks Appliance.

Instead of the old hard or stuffed pad, use the soft Automatic Rubber air-cushion of a Brooks Appliance.

The Brooks Appliance clings to you without force and you are hardly conscious of its presence. But above all else, it HOLDS always.

Within an hour after you receive the Brooks Appliance, if you take advantage of this remarkable trial offer, you will throw away your truss.

Many hundreds of physicians and surgeons recommend the Brooks Appliance and condemn makeshift trusses as more harmful and dan-

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Inventor of the Appliance. Mr. Brooks cured himself of rupture over 20 years ago and patented the Appliance from his personal experience. If ruptured, write TODAY to the Brooks Appliance Company, Marshall, Michigan. Write as full a description of your case as you wish, and ask all the questions you care to ask. News of Quality Merchandise--It's the Only Kind Sold by High's

Enroll Monday! The High-Butterick Dressmaking School

DO you want to save on your spring wardrobe? Then enroll tomorrow in the High-Butterick Dressmaking School.

The Instructor Is Mrs. Swanson Of the Butterick Publishing Co.

Lessons will be given by appointment. There will be five sessions daily at these hours: 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., and 1:00, 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. Students may make their choice of patterns. Individual instruction will be given in the various phases of dressmaking.

Six Lessons for Five Dollars

Application for enrollment in the Dressmaking School should be made at once to Miss Harwell in High's Butterick Pattern Section, Main Floor. As the instruction is individual, only a limited number of women can be taught by Mrs. Swanson at one time. For this reason, we are advising you to enroll tomorrow.

New Wash Fabrics Some from Foreign Looms

It is a significant fact that we are cutting more wash goods right now than we ever did before in late February.

Women whose fancy has been captured by the brightness and freshness of the materials we are showing are formulating their dressmaking plans and choosing materials right now. Here are some of the materials most highly favored. Obtained from leading foreign and domestic looms. Fine pattern and color ranges to pick from.

Printed Voiles, 39c Yard

Drop Stitch Crepe, $1.19

A plain colored cotton crepe for dresses in large plaids ruled off with novelty drop-stitching. 40 inches wide.

Dress Linen, 84c Yard

Dress Linen, 64c Yard

Pre-shrunk linen, 36 inches in width, in light blue, pink, rose, copen, coral, tan, brown, green, purple, maize, etc.

Imported Crepe at $1.49

Silk and cotton mixed crepe in a variety of floral and conventional designs for dresses. Looks like crepe de chine. The width of this is 40 inches.

New Silks of Spring For Fashion's Every Whim

Change, change, change. That's the way with Fashion—constantly changing to meet the continually changing moods of women.

What silks is Fashion urging upon her devotees for spring?

A number of plain staple silks are in the limelight still. And a host of new novelties have come out to win instant admiration and approval. New colors, too, have appeared.

The new silks in the new colors you will find here at High's.

$3.50 Silks, $2.79 Yard

Lined With Silk

Special purchase of new spring hand bags of leather. They are quality counterparts of handbags we've sold during the last few weeks at prices much, much higher.

Of ecruse, cowhide, seal grain leather, buffed calf and other leathers, in black, brown, tan and colors. Lined with silk.

Dress Loveliness Inexpensive at High's!

THAT'S because we've specialized on fashions under $50! We scoured New York for these lovely spring silk dress styles you'll find here. We went to manufacturers with a reputation for more than ordinary good style. We selected the cream of their models. We had them copy other more expensive models so that we could get the right style in these frocks—and we have accomplished it!

Hundreds of lovely dresses are here between the prices of $15 and $50. In Canton crepe, crepe satin, spiral crepe, etc. And especially noteworthy is this group of silk dresses from which these two models are sketched.

RICKARD DISCUSSES BIG FIGHTS FOR THIS SUMMER

Tex Is Better Informed On Game Than Anyone Else Says Noted Boxing Expert

BY ROBERT RICKARD.

If you want to know what's going to happen in the world of sport, ask Tex Rickard.

I am Tex. Here is his own statement of his plans and what he knows of the plans of others in the promotion of heavyweight championship events. Tex is closer to the boxing situation than anyone else. He has the mind of a prophet. His accurate forecasting of the future has brought millions in at the gates when he put on championships the public wanted to see. If Rickard knows a fight will draw, he bids above anyone else to get it. I wouldn't care to buck public opinion in a neighboring state, and don't think any one can do it successfully.

"There is no chance for any one to ruin the Wills-Firpo bout in New York state. I would not dream of trying to do it, with the political situation so acute, and so many democrats from the state in the city, with their strong opposition to holding championships across the state line only a short ride out of New York city, and have seen local Connecticut promoters make several starts without getting anywhere. It is legal to hold 12-round bouts in the state, but there has always been a big opposition to any one fight. I wouldn't care to buck public opinion in a neighboring state, and don't think any one can do it successfully."

"The Dempsey-Gibbons match is very much on," said Tex. "I expect to hold it in New York shortly before the democratic convention. I am not planning to hold it during the convention because I am not trying to cash in on the popularity of the fight. The situation is different in New Jersey. I have assurance that there will be no official opposition, as Firpo will be classed as a foreigner, and there will be no bitter feeling over his meeting Wills."

"I don't believe there is much of a chance for anyone else to hold a Firpo-Wills bout in New Jersey."

"If Firpo is reasonable and comes to my terms, I will promote the Firpo-Wills match in New York. Kearns has told me there will be no hitch on his end. It should be an interesting bout. I didn't want the Dempsey-Gibbons bout last year, Anyhow I found in my experience that this big event goes best when it goes alone. Two big events at the same time only split up the public's interest and the only way to make it the biggest of anything is to make it the biggest event of the moment, so that everybody will talk about it and be interested in it as long as the excitement lasts."

Firpo Probably Influenced.

"Gibbons is already signed. I expect to sign Dempsey on his return from the trip around the world. Kearns has told me there will be no hitch on his end. It should be an interesting bout. I didn't want the Dempsey-Gibbons bout last year, any program of bouts for the summer being all care to handle. I wanted to see the promoters at Shelby make good, just for the sake of the sport in general. If I hadn't been so well off a lot of business here in New York I would have offered to go out there, with no charge, and give them the benefit of my experience in running the bout off. They made a good start, and just a little experienced management would have made the show a success."

"They were amateurs, starting off with a bout that was pretty big to handle so far from a big city. The fight itself was all right—good enough for New York or any other place on the map. There will be more interest in the next one because people know now Gibbons is game and clever enough to stand up to Jack and give him a battle."

"How about Firpo?"

"I have no contracts with Firpo," said Rickard, "but I have an understanding with him that he will fight for me this coming summer. I have always found that boxes keep their agreements with me just as they know. I'll keep my appointments with them. In some of the biggest matches I have arranged there hasn't been a written line."

This was all Rickard had to say about the Argentine, who galloped off to tend to his business affairs, which keep him on the jump.

The reappointment of William Muldoon will unquestionably save boxing in New York state. Before Governor Smith made a ten-strike by putting Muldoon back, the old game was growing wobbly on its pins. Being never has been conducted as well before as under the Walker regime.

"It is good his contract with Firpo?"

"I have no contracts with Firpo," said Rickard, "but I have an understanding with him that he will fight for me this coming summer. I have always found that boxes keep their agreements with me just as they know. I'll keep my appointments with them. In some of the biggest matches I have arranged there hasn't been a written line."

"If a man's word isn't good his contract won't good either. I got a peculiar cable from Firpo a week or so ago suggesting I don't call him this summer. This probably a hold-up. Firpo has some business friends who think they know more about his interests than he does, and sometimes he listens to them. I don't blame him. It'll be straightened out when he comes back."

No Firpo-Wills Bout In N. Y.

"I read in the papers that the Lew Raymond syndicate has come to terms with Firpo; offered him $250,000 for a match with Wills about July 4. I hear from reliable sources that Ray-

JUNIOR-SENIOR FIVE WINS

EMORY CAGE CHAMPIONSHIP

Playing against the hardest opposition and against the most evenly matched teams ever known in the history of the Emory court, the team of the Junior-Seniors, school of liberal arts, were declared the winners of inter-class athletics at Emory when the cage game books were closed today.

The Junior-Senior quintet is made up of mostly of stars and old hands at the game, in addition to having a substantial number of substitutes to fall back upon. Of the nine games played by the winners only one was lost, which was the first of the season.

Every team showed fine form and the players turned loose all in their power towards promoting fair play and clean athletics. During the entire season not one player was put off the court for playing with undue roughness or for being guilty of ungentlemanly or unsportsmanlike athletics.

Never in the history of Emory has a better class spirit been shown by the students, as was demonstrated by the number of candidates which turned out for the different teams.

Sophie Win.

The quintet of the Sophomores, school of liberal arts, holds the distinction of being the only team which was able to offer a stop to the Junior-Senior aggregation, and come out of the game a winner. This team played good ball throughout the season, and are credited with shooting 310 points while their opponents rang up a score of only 180. This phenomenal is greatly due to the skill at shooting long shots of Logan, Milligan, Freshmen and Junior-Seniors, respectively.

The all-Emory team will probably be selected from the following twelve:

Albany 'Y' Ends Season With Win

Albany, Ga., February 23.—(Special) By defeating Auburn here last night, 43 to 22, the Albany Young Men's Christian association basketball team both closed its season with a victory and reached the goal of 1,000 points, which the players had set for the season. Only 30 points were needed in the Auburn game to reach the star total, and the Albany players seemed to play nervously and unsteadily until they reached that number.

Albany's season total is 1,013 points, against 587 by the opposition. The 22 games won to 4 lost. Each game by Albany was to a team that Albany also beat by a score of large or even larger, being overwhelmingly larger in every case, save one, and that was even.

The line-up and summary:

A.L.B. (43) POS. A.U.B. (22) Hardy (16) . . . r.f. . . . Hahn (10) Smith (2) . . . l.f. . . . McKinney (1) Fagan (1) . . . a.f. . . . Hartman (1) Whiting . . . r.g. W. McKinney (1) Smith (5) . . . a.g. Duke (4) Substitutions—By Albany: Hester (4) for E. Smith; E. Smith for Whiting; R. Smith for Pryse. By Auburn: None.

Final goals: Albany 5 out of 17; Auburn 6 out of 15.

Field goals: Albany 19; Auburn 8. Auburn 3 out of 6 and half; E. Smith for half of that.

Referee: V. R. Gilmore, of La Grange.

Under the guidance of Captain of the Theologians locked law, played the quintet of the school throughout the season. The dally and dandies, the stellar attractions and shining lights of this team. Through the season these boys played a fast and snappy game, and at all times gave their opponents a hard fight.

Under the guidance of Captain of the Theologians locked law, played the quintet of the school throughout the season. This team put up a stiff fight and deserved to make a better showing than the books point to interest capital and is willing to sell a part of his syndicate to any one.

It is rumored the Raymond syndicate will build a stadium in Connecticut and hold the fight there. I have been in touch with the promoters in relation to holding championships across the state line only a short ride out of New York city, and have seen local Connecticut promoters make several starts without getting anywhere.

It is legal to hold 12-round bouts in the state, but there has always been a big opposition to any one fight.

Ickard knows a fight will draw, he bids above anyone else to get it. If he knows it won't draw he usually leaves it alone.

"If Firpo is reasonable and comes to my terms, I will promote the Firpo-Wills match in New York. I expect to come around eventually, although I think just now he is trying to move up. He will find me ready to make an arrangement that is fair to him as well as fair to me."

"I am counting on a Firpo-Dempsey bout for the fall, but this of course would depend upon the result of the Firpo-Wills engagement."

"The reappointment of Mr. Muldoon is a fine thing. It will benefit boxing immensely. Muldoon has the interests of boxing at heart and the public has great confidence in his ability and honesty. Mr. Muldoon has been just as severe with me as with anyone else, but I am for him on the commission."

BY TEX RICKARD.

With the Dempsey-Firpo fight over and no immediate prospect of another great championship battle, this brings me to the end of my narrative. I have jumped over the ground from the days of a cowboy, the adventures in Alaska, the start at Goldfield and the anassing of a good sized fortune as promoter. There is little more to say.

But it seems that in all professional sport rumors of graft and inefficiency start and grow until they affect public confidence. An ugly rumor is like a stone thrown in the dark—hard to trace to its source, but just as it begins to roll, it becomes a fine line. It will benefit boxing immensely. Muldoon has the interests of boxing at heart and the public has great confidence in his ability and honesty. BY JOHN STATION.

The season record for the Georgia Tech basketball team (exclusive of the Kentucky game) brings to light many illuminating facts. In the first place, of the nineteen games recorded, Tech won 9 and lost 10, a percentage of 47.35, not counting the Kentucky game. Tech totalled an even six hundred points for the season, the opponents combined 587 points. Tech's average points per game, not including the Kentucky game, was 31.6, while the average per game of the opponents is 30.9.

In the college games alone, Tech has defeated Auburn twice, Clemson twice and Chattanooga. Tech has been defeated twice each by Mercer, Alabama, and Mississippi A. and M.

It is well to note that the lowest score to which Tech was held during the season was twenty points. That feat was accomplished by Mercer in Macon, Mississippi, and Alabama. Both teams credit Tech handling Tech the worst licking administered by a college team. That score was fifty-three points. The game was played in Starkville. The A. A. C. also scored 53 points against Tech earlier in the season.

The highest score which Tech was able to register against an opponent was 50, in a game against Clemson in Clemson. Incidentally that is the only time during the season that Tech shot as many as forty points in one game. The lowest score to which Tech held an opposing team was nine points. This feat was accomplished against the Savannah Protestant Club in Savannah.

In reference to the approaching tournament, the record printed below does not show Tech to have the most wonderful chance in the world. True, Tech has only been defeated by three college teams, but all three have defeated the Yellow Jackets twice without in the season.

Even granting that the winner should come from either Alabama or Mississippi (Mercer will not enter the S. C. tournament) then at best, Tech could only hope for a third place. But there are several other good teams in the south which have not yet been considered, namely, Georgia, Vanderbilt, and North Carolina.

Is Not Favorite.

Strictly speaking, Tech will not rule as a great favorite when the big show starts, but all teams will enter that show on an equal footing, and

ATHENS MEET TO START SOON

Athens, Ga., February 23.—(Special)—Northeast Georgia's third high school basketball tournament, sponsored by the Young Men's Christian association and the Banner-Herald, opens here next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with 32 teams competing.

Larry Conover, formerly coach at the University of Georgia, will referee the tournament. The Young Men's Christian association will give a trophy to the winning team and the Banner-Herald a trophy to the player most valuable to his team. C. W. Jones, physical director of the Young Men's Christian association, is manager who, with Bryan Lumpkin, sports editor of the Banner-Herald and one other man, compose the executive committee.

Washington vs. Eastonville and Greensboro vs. Canton open the tournament, the first teams at the Young Men's Christian association, and the latter at the auditorium.

The first day the following games will be played: Washington vs. Eastonville; Baldwin vs. Washington; Bedford vs. Arnoldsburg; Elberton vs. Maysville; Lawrenceville vs. Reed Creek; Cornelius vs. Logansville; Watkinsville vs. Grason; Ila vs. Bogart; Greensboro vs. Canton; Athens vs. Jefferson; Commerce vs. Dacula; Winnsboro vs. Mansfield; Cartersville vs. Cumming; Roswell vs. Hartwell; Lavonia vs. Braselton; Colbert vs. Gainesville.

S.G.A.A. Tourney Starts Feb. 27

Adel, Ga., February 23.—(Special)—The opening game of the boys' basketball tournament of the Southwest Georgia Amateur association will be played Wednesday, Feb. 27, in Adel. This will be the first of twenty games that are to decide the championship of that association. The first game will be between Adel and Sylvester, those two teams having been the first in the drawings.

It is significant to note that the Tech will have an equal chance with the rest to go through to victory.

The defeats handed to Tech by Mississippi A. and M. were much more important than the wins over Alabama. Which might indicate that Mississippi had the better team. Yet only last week, Alabama defeated Mississippi on its own court in Starkville, which proves that statistics are not always infallible.

Tech started off the season with a victory, and won three straight games. Then Tech lost two, then won two in succession. Then came a real slump, and Tech lost five in a row. Then the tide turned and Tech won three in a row. Then to even up matters, Tech lost three straight, and then defeated University of Chatanooga.

It is significant to note that the Tech will have an equal chance with the rest to go through to victory.

The Tech has been winning after losing five times during the year. That had a marked effect on the team play, and undoubtedly slowed up the performances in many of the games.

But there is hope yet. The present line-up has been intact for about six games now, and is behaving more like a finished machine with each appearance.

Perrin League To Close Soon

As the season draws to a close in the Perrin league there is a hot scramble for the various positions as no team can be sure of its final standing until the last games have been played.

The Power club and the Boethians are still tied for the leadership of the league, and barring an unexpected defeat for either team, an extra game will be required to finally determine the winner.

While the Company "E" five now occupies third place, Southern Spring Bed is close on their heels and a defeat for Company "E" would place the bed boys in second place.

Worthington and the Elk Troubadours are waging a hot fight for the cellar position with the Elks holding the advantage at this time.

While the Power club and the Boethians hold a commanding lead at this time and one that can not be overcome, yet the Southern Spring Bed company five have shown a marked improvement of late and may yet be a factor in deciding the ultimate winner by putting over a win against one of the leaders.

The game last week between the Boethians and the bed boys was by far the best of the week and required an extra five minute period for the Boethians to subdue them by a two-point margin. The Power club plays the Southern Spring Bed company next Wednesday night and that will probably be one of the best games of the night.

Junior Rifle Corp Growing

Two hundred thousand members in 1924.

That's the aim of the Winchester Junior Rifle corps. This rapidly growing and well-organized organization has a membership of 120,000 at this writing. Ten thousand new members each month will put the proposition over—that is, 2,500 new members a week for the balance of the year. That's a pretty big job but with the young people who are joining, it's a cinch. The president says that the corps should be a factor in the membership drive the good should be reached.

More than 50,000 medals have been awarded as prizes in the past five years in the developing of target shooting, and this gives every indication of being another big year as 1924.

ALONSO WINS MATCH FROM MURRAY

Buffalo, N. Y., February 23.—In a match replete with sensational features Manuel Alonso, Spain, today defeated R. Lindley Murray, of Niagara Falls, former national champion, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. In the second round of the national tennis tournament of the Buffalo Tennis and Squash club, Murray's dazzling service and his perfect volleys from mid-court won him the first set. In the second, Alonso's backhand was brought into play and he repeatedly passed Murray at the net or at the side lines, forcing the Niagara Falls man into numerous errors. Alonso continued his fast pace in the third set and led at five games to one when Murray, in a flash of his earlier form, picked up two games but his rally was short lived and Alonso took the ninth game and the match.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, Philadelphia, national champion, won his second match in rather hollow style from Watson M. Washburn, of New York, former Davis Cup doubles player, 6-2, 6-1.

Tilden and his protege, Sandy Weinger, of Philadelphia, entered the final round of the doubles by defeating Sam Hardy, New York, and Vernon Della, Boston, 6-4, 6-3.

In the second round Tilden sprained his ankle.

His physicians thought that he would be able to resume play tomorrow in doubles and singles. He will play Manuel Alonso in the final singles match.

Smith made lots of friends here by his willingness to fight regardless and fans are anxious to see him in action. He is one of the best known fighters in the ring today and a dangerous man.

Lohman has appeared in the local ring, meeting Roper and Homer Smith. In both of these affairs Lohman made a host of friends and is one of the most pleasing scappers ever seen in action here. In his last fight with Smith, many of the fans believed that Lohman was given an unfair decision as he appeared to have the better of the Omaha fighter. Since that time Lohman gave Bob Roper a pasting at Shreveport.

Biz Guarantee.

Promoters have been forced to guarantee both fighters a large sum, but living up to their policy of promoting nothing but first class shows they didn't hesitate to sign either fighter. So this is just one of the many first class attractions that will be here.

To back up the main attraction, promoters have arranged one of the greatest list of prelims ever staged here. Irish Benny Cline, one of the hardest hitting local scappers will meet Chick Branch, a tough boy. Benny and Branch both have a large following in the local colony and this should prove a drawing attraction.

Branch is managed by Billy Lotz, who has claimed that his batter was out of condition in his last two fights, but he will upset the dope and give Miller's protege a good pasting.

DRAWINGS FOR S.I.C. TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD MONDAY

Thorpe-Birch
Will Act as Officials

Drawings for play in the third annual southern conference basketball tournament will be held Monday night at the Atlanta Athletic club and other important matters pertaining to the final plans will be made at that time also.

The teams that have sent in entry blanks are: Georgia Tech, University of Georgia, University of Alabama, Clemson college, University of South Carolina, Vanderbilt, University of Tennessee, Tulane, Maryland, Virginia, Military Institute, University of North Carolina, Washington and Lee, University of Kentucky, University of Mississippi, Florida, Auburn and Mississippi A. and M. winners of the tournament last year.

The contract for the erection of the court has been let to Gude & Co., and it will be ready for use on the afternoon of February 28, at which time the tournament starts. It will be similar to that of last season and will be the maximum dimensions of a basketball court and will extend to the center of the stadium, extending directly in front of the stage.

If none of the 17 teams withdraw from the race, one preliminary game will be played Thursday night on the Atlanta Athletic club court on Auburn avenue, making it possible for the tournament to run off as scheduled on the 15-game basis.

Officials Selected.

According to an announcement made Saturday afternoon, the officials of the tournament will be Tom Thorpe of New York university, and Frank Birch of Chicago. Tom Thorpe was coach of the New York university basketball team that won the national amateur tournament last fall, and Birch has been a close student of basketball for many years and should make a good official. Birch was seen here in action as a football referee in 1921 when the Rutgers football team played Georgia Tech on Grant field. His work during that game was highly acceptable to everyone who saw the game, and he will be welcomed to the tournament next week.

The third official has not been named as yet, but the tournament authorities have been negotiating with several capable men and will make a final selection some time during the week.

The scorekeepers will be Frank Koen and Howard Holt, the same two men that kept the records straight last season. Tuck Tichenor and H. G. Voorhis have been named as official timers. Both Tichenor and Voorhis have seen several years of service in their respective pastures.

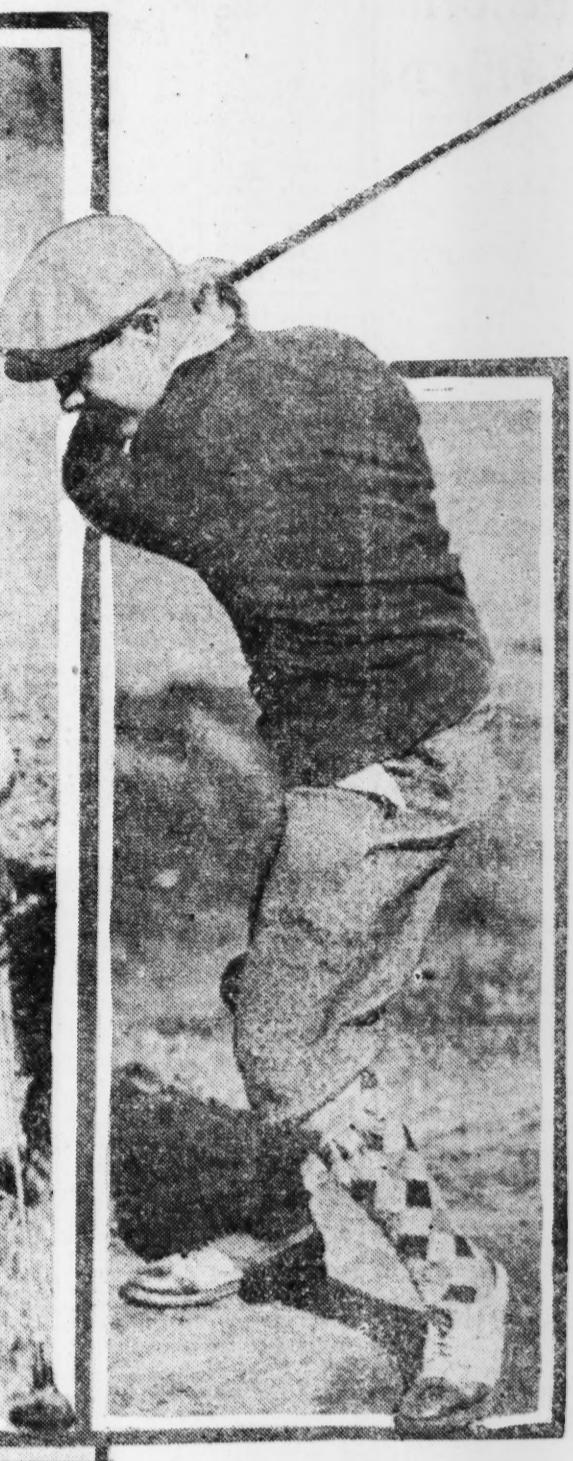

With the majority of the details of the tournament out of the way local basketball fans are beginning to pick their favorites and much interest has already been stirred up among basketball circles concerning the drawings that take place Monday night.

Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia students have agreed over the prospects of another Georgia-Tech basketball scrap during the tournament.

Georgia and Tech broke off athletic relations back in 1917 and not until the fate of the drawings in the first college basketball tournament three years ago did athletic teams from those two institutions meet. Georgia was victorious over the Tech

These fellows will be called upon to defend the honor of Georgia Tech in the Southern Conference golf meet to be held here during April, besides in a number of the matches with southern colleges. The Aftermath

The Show is over; it was a splendid exhibition. Many prospective buyers have been more or less confused with the conflicting points of superiority claimed for the various models.

While a beautiful body is a delight to the eye, the goodness and dependability of a motor car lies almost entirely in the chassis. The bodies on the new REOS are most pleasing; better still, they are constructed to last throughout the life of the chassis without squeaking, rattling and popping. This is unusual in present-day automobile construction of the popular-priced cars.

In mechanical design and construction the REO is without a peer today; in proof of this assertion we exhibited a stripped cut-out chassis of the REO which was a revelation to everyone who examined it with care. We have the chassis on exhibition in our show rooms, and invite you to inspect it and see for yourself its sterling inbuilt quality.

The reason for REO superiority is not far to seek. The six men, including the designer of the REO, who pioneered it twenty years ago still control and operate this great factory; they have never faltered in their aims and ideals, and today they offer in their 1924 models the product of their ripe experience, of which they are justly proud.

Tech Golfers Facing Tough Schedule

The Tech golfing team will shortly step out into real class. For about a month the various members of the team have been diligently at work perfecting their games, individually and collectively. The various clubs in town have been gracious enough to give membership to the Tech golfing team, and the successful candidates have not allowed these membership privileges to lie idle.

Thus far, Tech has indulged in only one practice match; that agains the Druid Hills Golf club last week. But, in the near future, Tech is going into real competition. The tentative schedule calls for matches against Florida, Vandy and Alabama. In addition, there is to be held a contest at the school to decide the winner of the Chip Robert trophy. Tech will also enter a golf team in the S. I. C. tourney which comes along the latter part of April, and a team in the Georgia State tourney.

Captain Fraser Hale is coach of the golf team, and Bip Farnsworth is captain. These two have been the moving spirits in all golfing matters. To them goes large credit for organizing and maintaining a golf team at Tech.

TWENTY-TWO LOUISIANA PREP SCHOOLS IN TOURNEY

New Orleans, La., February 23.—Twenty-two of Louisiana's leading high schools have already filed their entry for the first Louisiana interscholastic tournament in the history of the state. The tournament is being conducted under the auspices of the Loyola Athletic council, Feb. 28, and March 1 at the Loyola gym. The field of schools entered thus far are looked upon as a criterion of the many schools that are to follow within the next week. It is expected that when the closing day arrives nearly forty schools will be ready for the opening match.

The schools that have already entered are as follows: Warren Easton Boys' High school, of New Orleans; Jesuit's High school, of New Orleans; St. Aloysius college, of New Orleans; Verrius High school, of New Orleans; Manual Training, of New Orleans; Constance High school, Newlove High school, La. State High school, LeCompte, La.; Jennings' High school, Leveille High school, Opelousas High school, Raceland High school, Estherville High school, McDougalville High school, of Gretna; Independence High school, Luther High school, Vidalia High school, Haynesville High school, La. State High school, Tchouda college, of Thibodaux; Chatanier High school, Ashland High school and Baton Rouge High school.

Numbered among the teams are champions of the various parishes of the state, which assures a tournament of the highest class. Competition will undoubtedly be keen, as the teams are preparing for the tournament with the state championship as their ultimate goal.

Plan Entertainment.

Elaborate plans for the entertainment of visiting teams are now in progress. On the first day the visiting boys will be taken on a tour of New Orleans, while the series of entertainments will be culminated in a big dance in the Loyola gym following the crowning of the state champions. The winners and runners-up will be awarded silver loving cups while the members of the team will be awarded gold and silver basketballs, respectively.

The Loyola Athletic council has received hundreds of letters complimenting the university on taking the lead among Louisiana's universities in staging this tournament. It is the first time that a champion prep school basketball champion will be decided without a dispute. The Loyola council plans to make this an annual affair.

The Loyola basketball team ran up a string of seven victories before being halted by St. Stanislaus college team, Feb. 22. Two more games are scheduled with Louisiana State university before the close of the season and from indications the Wolves will reverse the decision on the un-

CHRYSLER NOW ACTIVE PRESIDENT AUTO FIRM

Detroit, February 23.—According to an announcement issued yesterday, Walter P. Chrysler has been elected president of the Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers companies, and will in the future serve in that capacity as well as continuing as chairman of the board of directors. To those familiar with the Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers situation, the move occasioned no surprise.

For the past six months, since the installation of new machinery in the Chrysler plant for the manufacture of the Chrysler car had begun, Mr. Chrysler has taken an increasingly active part in the affairs of the companies. More than half of his time during that period has been spent in Detroit.

It is expected that his future activities as president will bring him in even closer touch with the complete Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers organization. In fact, it is stated that his desire to become more closely connected with the dealer organization since the introduction of the motor car bearing the Chrysler name, was one influencing factor in his acceptance of this new post.

Mr. Chrysler has long been prominently identified with the automotive industry and is regarded today as one of the strongest and most able forces that has produced in all its history. His election as president of the Maxwell group is merely another step along lines indicated by Mr. Chrysler last summer when he stated that in the future his entire time and efforts would be given to these companies.

HOTEL MUST PAY FOR VALUABLES LOST FROM SAFE

San Francisco, February 23.—A hotel or public resort is responsible for the full amount of any valuables lost or stolen after being intrusted to its care, the district court of appeals here has ruled today in a suit.

Mr. Muehlebach, wealthy Kansas City hotel owner, and Mrs. Muehlebach, full return on jewelry valued at $23,000, which was stolen from the safe of the Hotel Pas Robles at Pas Robles, Cal., in January, 1921.

The jewels were taken while the Muehlebachs were on a honeymoon trip to the hotel. They sued the hotel for the full amount, alleging the night clerk, to whom they intrusted the gems, had fled with them.

A lower court held that the liability of the hotel was fixed at $250 by statute. The district court held, however, that the hotel in accepting the jewels for safekeeping assumed responsibility for its full value and not for a mere portion of such value.

Episcopal Church Workers in Second Week of Training

The second week of intensive training for Episcopal church school workers will be held in St. Philip's chapter house the week before Lent, February 24-29.

This will be a corporate communion for church school workers this morning at 7:30 o'clock, followed by a communicants' breakfast in the women's auxiliary lunch room. There will also be a union service Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock at the cathedral, at which Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's church, will be the speaker. Evening training, the week regular courses in teacher training will be held at the chapter house, with an address on "How to Develop the Devotional Life" each night by some prominent speaker.

Friday night a special program, to which all church school workers are invited, will be staged. Leon C. Palmer, of Spartanburg, S. C., will Sunday school worker and lecturer, will speak on "Building Christian Citizenship." Teachers and people interested in church school work are urged to attend this week of intensive training.

DOCTOR SAYS TROTZKY IS GREATLY IMPROVED

Moscow, February 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dr. Alexandrov who has just returned from the Caucasus where he has been attending Leon Trotsky, the soviet war minister, declared today there was no truth in the recent reports emanating from Kharkov that Trotsky had heart trouble, appendicitis, stomach infection or other organic disease.

The physician said there had been no pathological changes in the stomach or heart of the patient but that catarrhal bronchitis, due to influenza, was recurring and that he had had a temperature for several weeks. He was greatly improved now, he said, in the set of the physician added, but stormy weather was interfering with the sunshine cure which had been prescribed.

androv said, and he expected the war minister would be able fully to resume his duties in due course.

Balloon Tires Absorb Shocks of the Road

One of the decided advantages claimed for the new balloon type tire is its ability to absorb the road shocks before they are transmitted to the chassis or the passengers. The pictures above illustrate the flexibility of the balloon tire, when brought in contact with obstacles in the road, with rough bumps and against curb stones. The tires shown are Firestones. The upper two are shown as optional factory equipment on a Studebaker, and the lower is of a Ford on which balloon tires have been exchanged locally for the standard equipment. The Firestone organization now offers tires, rims and wheels complete for exchange on nearly all cars now in production.

Candidates for Nomination Claim Victory in Georgia

While headquarters of the campaign in Georgia for the presidential nomination for United States Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, gave out a statement Saturday pointing to victory for their candidate in the primary held last week. The victory was as significant of the trend throughout the state. Mrs. Edgar Alexander, manager of the woman's campaign headquarters for Gibbs McAdoo, issued a statement in which she claimed that McAdoo is the only man in position to carry the democratic party banners to victory over Coolidge and the republicans in the coming national elections.

Mr. S. Bell, manager of the main McAdoo headquarters, also issued a statement Saturday in which he reviewed the situation regarding his candidate, as given in reports from all sections of the state. Mr. Bell declared the situation most gratifying and expressed utmost confidence in a McAdoo victory in the March 19 primaries.

Gordon's Statement.

The statement issued by R. C. Gordon, manager of Underwood headquarters, in part is as follows:

The result of the first presidential preference held in any Georgia county shows what the wind is all in Twiggs county. In fact, I didn't know that a primary was to be held this week and had no time to go to campaign headquarters in the county. The result just shows that the rank and file of the people of the county are in line with the campaign in the campaign of 1912, and the politicians are not going to change them.

The latest word from Senator Thomas E. Watson are lining up behind Senator Underwood in large numbers. This support is to the tribute Senator Watson paid Senator Underwood in the campaign of 1912.

Governor W. W. Brandon, of Alabama, will speak at a big Underwood rally to be held in Atlanta next Wednesday afternoon.

February 23.—Governor Brandon is one of the south's best known orators.

Baker Accepts Place.

W. E. Baker, president of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corp., and one of the best known business men in Georgia, has accepted the chairmanship in the campaign committee in this state.

In the effort to place a real statewide campaign, matters with reference to the great financial burden resting on the committee must be considered.

He has accepted the nomination of the two leaders of the two dominant parties in Georgia to serve as co-chairmen of the campaign.

McAdoo Accepts.

Mrs. Alexander, manager of the McAdoo campaign, returned last week after attending a conference of McAdoo state managers, held in Chicago. On Saturday she gave out the following statement in regard to the conference:

The meeting of McAdoo supporters in Chicago was the most remarkable ever held by any group and one national political party.

From all parts of the United States the most enthusiastic and determined were demanded that Mr. McAdoo lead the democratic party to victory and insisted now in process of being organized.

We are especially pleased with the appeal of the McAdoo supporters.

It is really remarkable what unanimity of sentiment prevails among them.

They are especially pleased with the appeal of the McAdoo supporters.

This is because they know his record and feel that they can trust him to carry forward the principles for which they stand.

Mr. McAdoo's Chicago conference last Monday established a new high mark of democratic leadership and was one of the most impressive demonstrations in our country's history of the faith of a great leader in his ability to inspire his party to not only to win battles at the ballot box but to carry their ideals in actual action.

Nearly 1,000 men and women gathered in Chicago from every state in the union, voluntarily and at their own expense, and the overwhelming majority of sentiment asserted their faith in Mr. McAdoo's leadership and their demand for him to go forward. His speech present-

STANDARD OIL STATION OFFERS FREE ROAD MAP

District Manager R. E. Hodgson, of the Standard Oil company here, announces that all company service stations are now able to provide a free road map of Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

The maps provided are of Rand McNally compilation, and are printed in colors. They carry no advertising matter, other than that of the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Hodgson states that it is the hope of his company that this service will be of value to tourists, and is one of the ways his company is endeavoring to serve its customers.

Standard Oil filling stations are rapidly being equipped with pits or racks to facilitate the draining, cleaning and refilling of crank cases.

ing the 10-cent platinum was a clarion definitely ended the Tenet. Done incident so far as Mr. McAdoo is concerned.

There is no question that he will enter the campaign in Georgia as a candidate on the first ballot. This he will do whether Georgia goes for him or against him.

His campaign is well under way. Certain humiliation it would be for Georgians if he were to be nominated and then defeated.

The other distinction is that he is running in Georgia is not a candidate in any state west of the Mississippi river with the exception of Mississippi. Mr. McAdoo is considered everyone of these states without a single exception.

Reed League For

A statement also was given out Saturday from friends of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, in which they claimed that their man is the only possible candidate who seeks the democratic nomination in Georgia who is unimpeachable and is well qualified to enter the League of Nations.

Senator Reed's name, however, has not yet been officially entered with the secretary of the state democratic committee as candidate for the support of the Georgia delegation.

British Schooner Seized by U. S. Men As Liquor Runner

Gulfport, La., February 23.—The British auxiliary schooner Emerald has been seized by federal prohibition forces at Pass-a-grille, according to an announcement late today by Ellis S. Chapman, chief federal enforcement agent in Mississippi. Mr. Chapman added that five negro members of the crew were under arrest charged with violation of the prohibition laws.

We succeed only as our dealers succeed. We enable our dealers to do business and make money on a scale impossible were they dependent only on their own ability and capital.

We give greater advertising support than any other automobile company.

We show men without previous automobile experience how to do business successfully from the start. We provide complete organization plans and give active assistance in building and developing these organizations.

We show experienced automobile men—even those who have failed to make satisfactory profits with other lines—how to do business right and make exceptional profits.

U. D. C. in Brooks County Now on "Founders' Roll"

Another U. D. C. chapter has made a "Founders' Roll" subscription of $1,000 to the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial, it was announced Saturday at memorial headquarters. It comes from the Quitman, Ga., chapter, and is given in honor of the men of Brooks county who served in the Confederate army.

Memorial headquarters further announced that the campaign to raise Georgia's quota of $250,000 outside of Atlanta is making good headway, with a state-wide committee consisting of a prominent citizen in every county in charge. Among the county chairmen who have their work actively under way are E. S. Strickland, Bacon; G. A. Johns, Barrow; J. A. Walker, Bleckley; Buford, Boykin, Carroll; William Butts Fannin; John Johnson Forsyth; Dr. L. G. Hardman, Jackson; J. B. Reine, Lee; Trammell, Morgan; J. P. Nichols, Spalding; E. P. Bowen, Tift; J. E. Patton, Walker; J. C. Shannon, Twiggs; Dr. J. K. Burns, Habersham; Z. B. Rogers, Elbert; H. W. Pearson, G. M. Moore, Talbot; J. S. P. Davis, Camden; C. T. Tillman, Brooks; Battle Sparks, Burke, and T. J. Hamilton, Richmond.

Children Are Enrolling

Children continue to enroll rapidly in the "Children's Founders' Roll," for boys and girls who contribute $1 to the campaign, and whose names will be enrolled in a gold book. In the last week there have been enrollments from Georgia, South Carolina, New Jersey, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia. Hollings N. Randolph, president of the memorial association, was in Washington last week in the interest of the bill authorizing issuance of a 50-cent silver coin commemorating the commencement of work on the memorial.

"OUR SHOPS ARE THE STANDARD OF THE SOUTH"

CONDEMNED WOMAN LOSES FIRST APPEAL

Mrs. Ida Hughes, under sentence to hang for the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, of Eagan Park, lost her first battle to escape the gallows Saturday when Judge G. H. Howard, of Fulton superior court, denied her motion to set aside the verdict and sentence on the ground that the reading was illegal. The right to have been to the state supreme court, it was declared Saturday by R. R. Jackson, special counsel for the condemned woman. Mrs. Hughes claims that the verdict was illegal because neither she nor Judge Howard, the trial judge, were present when it was delivered.

Atorneys H. A. Allen and Charlie F. Wells, who represented Mrs. Hughes during the long trial in the Fulton courts, are fighting for a new trial. A hearing of the motion filed several days ago will be conducted March 18.

Judge Howard declared that the evidence submitted made it quite clear to him that Attorney Allen and Mrs. Hughes had agreed to have the verdict read and the jury released while he and Mrs. Hughes were absent. He said that when he came home ill when the verdict was read, he and his son agreed to return to court if the attorneys for defense desired it. Later on in the night when the verdict was reached, Judge Howard declared in his decision, Assistant Solicitor General S. S. Smith, had called him on the telephone and announced that Mrs. Hughes and her attorneys had agreed to have the verdict delivered and the jury dismissed until 9 o'clock the following morning.

Had Judge Howard granted the motion of Mrs. Hughes, she would have gone free, but he could not have subjected to another trial.

College Park Seeks Merger of Schools Of Fulton County

A resolution advocating consolidation of school systems in Fulton county has been adopted by the College Park city council, and a committee appointed by William J. Lloyd, mayor pro tem, to confer with various civic and city organizations of College Park and Hapeville, and also the Fulton county board of education in regard to obtaining their agreement to proposals.

It is believed that merging present systems will result in greater economy in administration, reduce overhead expenses and provide a uniform system of books. The committee named consists of Councilman C. C. Bowling, author of the resolution; O. L. Swinney and W. E. Pitts.

Another proposal advanced in this connection is the repeal of the College Park school board charter and reversion to the Fulton county system on condition that county school bonds be issued for construction of a county high school located at a point most convenient to Hapeville and College Park.

Modern Auto Service Station

New service station of the Ivey Motor company, which is said to be one of the most complete and modernly equipped establishments of its kind in the south. New

In Trimmings and Accessories

BANDS are Fashion's greatest ally, particularly embroidered and appliqued effects in rich Oriental colorings. Vivid tones—the new reds, exotic blues and greens are in greatest favor. All widths from $1.00 to $5.00 yard.

FANCY Braids in Persian and Roman striped effects make colorful trimmings for the new overblouses and costumes. Sometimes colors are combined with gold or bronze. 15 to 35c yard.

WOOL embroidery on 2-inch bands, usually navy and red or brown and red are just the thing to touch up a sombre frock. $1.00 yard.

FURS in the lighter shades accentuate the velvety softness of the new spring wraps, and the most popular of these furs are Moufflon, Tibet Foxine and Caracul in white, buff and gray. Collar widths at $12 to $18 yard.

GAUNTLET rufflings do much towards adding smartness to a frock, and these are shown in cream or white nets, sometimes edged with Val lace—$1.75 to $2.50 yard. Collar laces to match are $1.25 to $1.75.

BAGS of leather in new shapes—under-the-arm pouch and regulation styles are being offered at $1.98 and $3.19. These are really exceptional values.

COLLAR Sets in Gauntlet and Peter Pan styles—orange, linen, and linen, all white or with colored edges—regular $1.00 values—are being offered at 50c.

Just Arrived! Another 150

Wonderful New Coats and Capes

A Special Purchase—The Finest Values Obtainable

Just two weeks ago we inaugurated one of the most successful sales of Spring Coats and Capes at one price ever held in this city. To re-enact that drama of merchandising, we kept the wires busy until we secured a duplication of the same remarkable values, and these go on sale tomorrow at the same sensational price—$25.00.

Coats are in semi-dress and sports models, three-quarter or full length, showing a preference for severely tailored effects with notched collars and wide extended cuffs. They are of Highland Fleece, Angora Polaire and downy wool fabrics with imbedded stripes and plaids. Others are in soft, subdued plaids and stripes. A few Poiret Twills are included in navy blue and tan.

Capes are full length, made of soft, fleecy fabrics in wide imbedded stripes, and deep-pile, lustrous brytonias, exquisitely lined with crepe de chine. Some are topped with Moufflon fur in tan or gray. They are lovely—mere print cannot do them justice, you must see them yourself.

Color blooms gloriously in freshest tones of shrimp, Chinese blues, rose, moss green, almond green, brick-dust, bittersweet, as well as navy and black. Then there are lovely versions of tan from buff to cocoa.

TOO MUCH POLITICS.

The statement is made that there is not the slightest possibility that the pending revenue bill will re-become a law in time to save the tax payers of this country the $325, 000,000 which could be saved to them should the bill be enacted before March 15.

The political foot-ball of a great domestic issue that is purely economic and should have no political significance is inexorable.

And while three weeks yet remain before the final day for the federal income tax returns the eyes of the people of this country will be focused upon congress, expecting it to serve the public welfare rather than party toe-holding. Will it do so?

No other country on the face of the earth is so swathed with politicials as is the United States.

The great national resources of the country and its wealth and its productivity give it a commanding position in the marts of trade; and a domestic economic situation that is more independent and tolerable than most nations. But this is in spite of the overabundance of politics that overloads, harasses and embarrasses.

Better conditions by far would prevail if economic issues could be handled in the interest of the people without political rancor, and without the destroying influences of eternal sparring for party vantage.

The other day in England, where the fight between three great parties has raged for months with the fury of a tornado, the present laborite premier having been chosen by a coalition of the labor and liberal parties in parliament, it is significant that in the election of the presiding officer of the house of commons political factionalism was entirely dismissed and laborites, liberalites and conservatives all united on the presiding officer who had served for several years—and this in the interest of merit, and as a reward to efficient, trained and proven service.

Is there any such spirit in this country today?

Our government is a representative democracy. And yet is it not true that we are living under a democracy so far as the legislative branch of the government is concerned?

We are today at a critical point in economic development. A wrong turn politically can lead to the destruction of modern industry. The ten million who died in Russia's economic collapse bear grimous testimony to the dangers of supplanting economic construction with political destruction.

The responsible citizenry of this country faces a duty as well as a crisis. Men like La Follette, Brookhart, Frazier, Magnus Johnson and the others of that group, do not believe in democracy. They believe in dictatorship—as much so as the late Lenin.

It is not difficult to see the dangerous tendency from trafficking and flirting and treating with this element on the part of the democratic minority. And yet the play proceeds.

The politicians are subverting this government. That is plain language, but it is true. Events daily prove it. Now it becomes the solemn duty of every responsible citizen—the moral duty—to lay aside everything if possible, and to make the sacrifice for the injection of more sound business and less petty politics in government.

It is a duty the upstanding, aroused thought of this nation must not shirk.

They are about to run February
in for cutting up so scandalous.

As far as we have seen, there were only seven references to the cherry tree story. Surely, the Father of His Country is not losing ground?

A RADICAL PROPOSAL.

Report comes from Chicago that as quickly as the revenue legislation is out of the way and the senate has quieted down on its scandals investigations, the proponents of government ownership of railroads will seek to have the senate interstate commerce committee vote on the La Follette bill which seeks that end.

It is not probable, even with the combined democratic and radical strength through the latter's balance of power, that the committee will do anything of the kind. The conservative democrats on the committee and on the floor of the senate are not in favor of such a step.
In the meantime the threat necessarily is disturbing in transportation circles, and is having its present effect in holding down much of the rail development that had been contemplated for the early months of 1924.

It was with this in mind that The Constitution vigorously opposed any democratic-radical coalition by which a democrat should be made the chairman of this committee in a republican-controlled senate, and under a republican administration.
Temporizing and treating with radical groups like that of La Follette and Magnus Johnson, and Shipstead and Brookhart and others, are members, is not a healthy procedure under any circumstances, and especially when reciprocity is demanded in squaring deals. The democrats cannot stand for the policies of this group as a rule.

The upstanding thought of this country is not in favor of federal ownership of public service utilities.
The late President Harding, in an address at Kansas City on the last tour of his life, unequivocally stated in substance that to place the railroads under federal ownership would be a colossal blunder which would destroy initiative, infect us with political corruption, create regional jealousies, and impose incalculable expense upon the public treasury.

President Coolidge in his first address to congress declared that the merchant marine should be transferred to private ownership and operation "as quickly as possible," which is expression sufficient as to his views on the same railroad issue.

Former director of railroads under the war administration, William G. McAdoo, said at Chattanooga in May 1923 that he had never been and was not in favor of government ownership of railroads.

The present director, James C.
Davis, has declared that no greater mistake could be made than to have the government take over and operate the permanent railroads of this country.

Secretary Hoover has repeatedly warned the nation against the radical tendency to this end.

Julian H. Barnes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, recently returned from an exhaustive study of this matter in Europe, and his first words were:

"I was impressed most with the prevailing conviction in Europe, where utilities are government owned, that the system is a complete failure, and countries which such laws exist are desperately struggling to get their public utilities back into private ownership."

There is no argument as to the overwhelming thought of this country. It opposes this pet scheme of the radical group in the senate, and the sooner this issue is definitely decided the better.

BONUS BACKERS.

Backers of the soldier bonus, not at all disheartened by the evident desire of the country to have congress throw the bonus bill into the discard and direct its energies toward tax reduction, have fought their way back to the front page again. John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, has impugned the motives of the secretary of the treasury, who has consistently opposed the adjusted compensation bill, and the alien property custodian, Colonel Miller, has made statements that, coming from a government official, are ill-advised, to say the least.

Commander Quinn charges that "powerful, selfish interests have attempted to discredit the (soldiers') bonus bill by cold-blooded misrepresentation and twisting of figures to meet whatever argument suited the occasion." These figures, Mr.
Quinn tells us, "have emanated largely from Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury."

Colonel Miller announced that the treasury had "juggled the figures," as to the cost of the bonus, and on being called on the carpet by Mr.
Mellon he passed the responsibility for the remark along to a "prominent republican senator," who, of course, is nameless. With great agility he has joined the company of Vanderlip and Anderson, on the bandwagon that is driven by Kipling's immortal Tomlinson!

The backers of the bonus are not playing the game fairly. They have been sorely disappointed over their failure to secure what they consider the legitimate spoils of war, and now they have resorted to vituperation as a means of obtaining their ends.
They claim that figures have been purposely juggled by the treasury.

They are about to run February
in for cutting up so scandalous.

GENERAL TRADE--Merchants and Manufacturers--GENERAL TRADE:

MAINTENANCE OF RESALE PRICES HAS BIG LIMITATIONS

Often a Tendency To Blame Manufacturer for Conditions Beyond His Control.

BY JOSEPH E. DAVIES
General Counsel American Fair Trade League.

There is often among dealers of standard-priced identified merchandise, a tendency to blame the manufacturer for unfair methods of other price cutting dealers.

It is doubtless if they understand, however, the problem which confronts the manufacturer in this situation. Few of them perhaps realize the legal barriers which are increasingly hemmed in and restrained the manufacturer in the control of the results of his product.

Every manufacturer of an identified standard priced article appreciates fully the demoralization which results from the activities of the predatory price-cutters. It realizes it even more keenly than one among dealers. In a last analysis all that is due to any and all of his dealers is damage to him. The market of his product is disrupted--his good will is destroyed and the loss in the sales of every dealer is his.

Manufacturer Realizes Error.

The manufacturer realizes that the predatory price-cutters usually cut the price of his product down to nothing so doing he deceives that purchaser into believing that other products of unknown value are being sold at proportionately low prices and that his competitors are exacting an exorbitant margin in selling at the standard price.

He realizes that once the price cutter has exploited an article in a certain community, the sale of that article on a fair margin cannot again proceed in any fair volume until the memory of the cut price is obliterated. It is his good will that is being exploited even more than the good will of the dealer. Why then does he not correct the situation? Here is the answer--* is the law.

Prior to 1911 it was common for manufacturers of identified products to make their sales by contracts specifying the price at which the articles

M. Kutz Company Enlarge Offices

Above is shown a section of the remodeled offices of the M. Kutz Wholesale Millinery company, South Plyor and Mitchell streets. This rearrangement of offices was made necessary by an increase in office force and increased business. "A place for everybody and everything," it will be applied to these splendidly equipped offices from the big mahogany desk with president, Arthur Kitchens, down to the tiny outer table desk for the office boy. On the left side of the hall, from the main entrance, not shown in this view, are tables for each of the salesmen. This new arrangement was effected at no little expense to the company. Efficiency was the aim of the officers in charge, and it is believed that no wholesale millinery house in the southern states can boast of a finer or more complete department for offices than this one. were to be resold. In 1911 the Supreme Court of the United States in the so-called Colgate decision on a suit by Dr. Miles Medical company against John D. Park & Sons company held that such contracts were in restraint of trade and unlawful in violation of the Sherman law.

The company was immediately thereafter reached in cases involving patented and copyrighted products.

Sale Refusal Difficult.

While these cases made it impossible to protect resale prices by contract, it was nevertheless possible, at that time, for the manufacturer to protect its suggested resale prices with considerable success. The expedient of refusing to sell to those who did not maintain the standard prices on resale of the article. Indeed, the right to refuse to sell to price-cutters was specifically upheld by the supreme court of the

STERCHI FURNITURE COMPANY TO ERECT NEW BUILDING

Sterchi Manager and President

J. G. Sterchi Visits Atlanta and Announces Addition to Atlanta Branch of Business.

In an interview given out this week to a representative of the General Trade Section, J. G. Sterchi, president of the Sterchi Furniture company and one of the foremost furniture manufacturers in the south, expressed the belief that 1924 would be the best year in the history of this business. In order to take care of the growing trade of the Sterchi Furniture company of Atlanta, an announcement was made that a three-story annex would be added to the present Sterchi building, which will afford 12,000 additional square feet of space. A Ten Eyck Brown, Atlanta architect, has just completed plans for the annex and work on the building will be begun immediately. The annex will be built over the Piggly Wiggly store, which joins the Sterchi Furniture store on the east side of the building. This entire frontage is owned by Mr. Sterchi, and when completed will form one of the largest and most up-to-date furniture buildings in the city.

The Sterchi Furniture company has its headquarters in Knoxville, Tenn., and operates 12 furniture factories and eighteen jobbing and retail stores. A new store has recently been opened at Jacksonville, which does an exclusive wholesale business. The factories are located at Knoxville, Greenville, London and Nashville, and specialize in the manufacture of beds, chairs, chairs and chaise-lounges. The eighteen stores are located in Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Florida and Kentucky, and all are doing a flourishing business.

The Sterchi Furniture company of Knoxville travels 43 miles, who cover the entire south, and far beyond the boundaries of the southern business as pointed out by Mr. Sterchi as being of benefit to southern retailers, was the fact that merchandise could be bought from any of the Sterchi wholesale houses at the same price as could be bought from the Knoxville house. All shipments that are made from Sterchi are shipped to the wholesale distributing points are shipped f. o. b. their destination and the freight cost is absorbed by the factory. This enables any retail dealer purchasing goods from the Atlanta wholesale house to receive them as cheaply as can be bought from the factory.

In discussing business in Atlanta and the future outlook for this store, Mr. Sterchi said, "For the last three years our business here has shown a remarkable growth. Reports received from the Atlanta store the first of the year showed that 1923 was the best year in the history of our business. The Sterchi Furniture company of Atlanta will be hard year to beat in sales, but already sales reports thus far in 1924 exceed reports for the same period of 1923. This goes to show that our business here is growing on a substantial basis and our sales plans for 1924 are based upon the faith in Atlanta and continued increase of business here."

Mr. Sterchi was accompanied on his trip to Atlanta by Mrs. Sterchi. They have just returned from an enjoyable trip to points in Florida and Cuba and stopped over Friday to pay a visit to Atlanta while en route to Knoxville.

More than 300 officers and employees of the Atlanta and Lowry National banks and trust companies report on the lawn of the Druid Hills Golf Club Friday afternoon. This was the first meeting since the merger of the Atlanta Tent and Awning company. This department has recently added C. E. Wright, L. E. Bailey and E. Q. Wright, who were with the new bank and have long experience in the tent and awning business.

Fred Madison Couch is secretary and treasurer of both departments. Fred came up with the business and has been a very powerful factor in its development. J. D. Couch is manager of the tent and awning department.

Legislation Is Remedy.

In the case of a manufacturer, however, whose business is such that he cannot afford to hire men and agents competing in the field and conduct independent investigations the situation is obviously exceedingly difficult, if not impossible to control.

The only remedy is in federal legislation. The federal trade commission, while deeming it their duty to enforce the law as it exists, has recognized that the situation is indeed one of great difficulty and has recommended legislation to the Congress.

It is recommended that the federal trade commission be given power to prohibit price cutting by manufacturers.

The only legislation that has been introduced is the bill introduced by Senator H. C. Smith of New Jersey.

The bill would prohibit manufacturers from advertising their products at less than the cost of production.

The bill would also prohibit manufacturers from advertising their products at less than the cost of production.

$500,000 Down Town Leases Announced by Ewing & Sons

Announcing long term leases that have been made in the city, it is indicated giving out information that indicates the remarkable activity of the Atlanta real estate and renting situation. Mr. Goldman, of the firm of J. H. Ewing & Sons Realty company, has taken out a list of down town lease contracts that aggregate the sum of $500,000.

The list presented by Mr. Goldman is included the famous Sarnoff Irving Hat company, which with 70 other stores in various American cities has taken a long term lease on No. 17 Peachtree street, from John W. Grant, for a total consideration of $31,800.

New Hat Shop. From H. Silverstein to Wright's Hat Shop, located at 37 Peachtree street for a term of years, at an aggregated rental of $12,200. Wright's Hat Shop company operates chain hat shops throughout the country.

From A. Weisberg to M. Seaby a warehouse at 14 Walker street, at an aggregate rental of $2,010.

From John Grant to Sarnoff Irving Hat company, No. 17 Peachtree street, for a term of years at an aggregated rental of $35,000. Sarnoff Irving Hat company operates a chain of seventy stores and is one of the largest retailers of hats in the country.

From Mrs. Sprattin, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Wright to a client a store at 24 South Broad street, for a term of years, at an aggregated rental of $10,000. This is the same women's wear concern that recently leased through J. H. Ewing & Sons the stores at 26 and 28 South Broad street for an aggregated rental of $250,000, which now makes for the three stores a grand total of $350,000. This gives this firm a frontage of 42 feet.

The three stores of the Rich's new department store. They will remodel the three stores into one, installing one of the most modern store fronts in the city.

From Jasper Johnson to a client a lot and building northwest corner of Piedmont avenue and Ellis street, for a term of years, at an aggregated rental of $60,000.

From Munn Sign and Advertising company to Indian Motorcycle company stores at 105 Luckie street and a warehouse at 324 Edgewood avenue, for a term of two years, aggregating $720.

From a client to Continental Oil Co., filling station corner Belwood and English avenues, for a term of years, at an aggregate rental of $16,750.

From Piggy Wiggly to Jerry Glass, store at 22 A. S. Broad street, for a term of years, at an aggregated rental of $14,400.

From Piggy Wiggly to W. F. Carter, store at 22 South Broad street, for a term of years, at an aggregate rental of $16,200.

The above transactions, together with a lease made on the Peachtree hotel, announced a few weeks ago, aggregating $160,000, make over half million dollars in leases transacted through J. H. Ewing & Sons since the first of the year.

All of these transactions were handled by Mr. Goldman, manager of the business sales department of J. H. Ewing & Sons.

EWING RETURNS FROM FLORIDA

Jones H. Ewing has returned from a hunting trip to Florida and south Georgia. Mr. Ewing, who is one of the leading real estate men of Atlanta, is also one of the most enthusiastic huntsmen in the city. He reports fine sport and a good time for all members of the party.

ROBINSON EXPECTED IN MARCH

W. G. Robinson, head of the renting department of Grant-Jeter company, who has been ill for several months and who has sojourned in Florida in order to have the advantage of the milder climate of that state, is expected to return to Atlanta about March 1, where he will again take his place with his firm. Mr. Robinson has many friends who will doubtless be glad to learn of his improvement and who will welcome him back to the city.

I. A. S. INC. IN NEW QUARTERS

Taking a term lease on rooms 406-7 on the fourth floor of the Grand building, the International Accountants' Society has removed its southeastern offices from its former location in the Grant-Jeter building. The new offices of the establishment permit of more space and a more suitable arrangement, according to E. G. Petri, divisional manager, and O. G. Sanford, resident manager of the concern.

The headquarters of the International Accountants' Society, Inc., are in Chicago and since the opening of the new office in Atlanta for the southeastern division it is declared the business of the society has greatly increased. Robert Nelson, special representative of the society, is another member of the Atlanta office personnel. The new offices, which were arranged especially for the use of this society, are convenient and handsomely appointed and Mr. Petri is much pleased with the new location.

JESSE DRAPER RECOVERS FROM "FLU."

Friends of Jesse Draper, well-known member of the Atlanta real estate profession, will doubtless be pleased to learn that he is back at his office after an attack of the "flu" that for a time threatened serious complications. Although not entirely recovered from the effects of his illness, Mr. Draper is improved to the point of being able to resume his duties and his friends are congratulating him upon his escape from a more severe sickness.

BUILDING EXCHANGE PROUD OF PLAN ROOMS.

With perhaps the best equipped and the most modernly appointed offices in the city, the offices of the Atlanta Builders' exchange are pointing with special pride to the carefully arranged plan rooms that have been prepared for use of the members in examining and studying plans and specifications. This plan room was made the object of extraordinary care upon the part of the Builders' exchange, said S. C. Stiles, president, and many are finding it more and more a convenient room to show to clients.

The room is equipped with every device and appointment required by contractors and architects in the examination and drafting of plans upon which they wish to bid and it is one of the many advantages that the Builders' exchange is pointing to the benefit of its members.

The offices of the exchange are located in the new Boni building, and it is believed that the continued development of the room is justified by the number of members that are using it.

MODERN STORES FOR PEACHTREE STREET.

An announcement has been made through the real estate agency of Ewing & Sons company that the Whitehead Realty company will at once erect a number of fine modern stores just north of the Georgian Terrace hotel on Peachtree street. These stores, which are being designed by Pringle & Smith, famous architects, will be the most elegant character, it was stated, and will be in thorough keeping with the splendid houses and apartments that are abound in this locality.

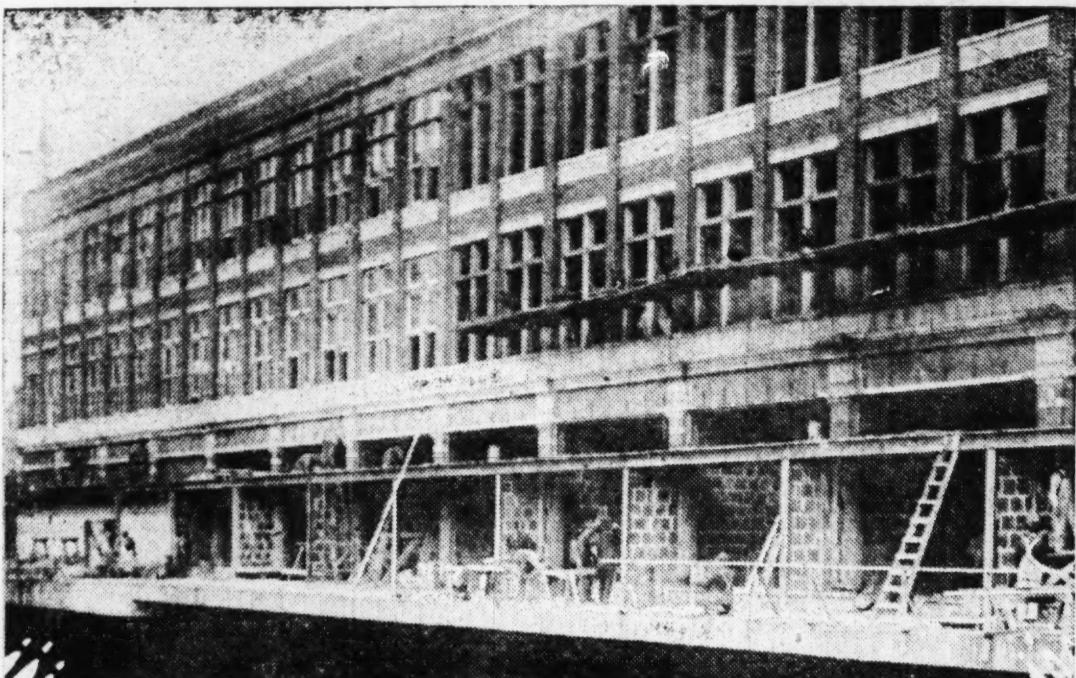

There will be five of these stores," said Jesse Draper, "and they will be of such handsome design that they will form a beautiful addition to the many fine buildings that are famous in this section of the city. The buildings will be fine, modern, and will be ornamented with terra cotta and cut limestone. The architects for the stores are Pringle & Smith, who have designed many of Atlanta's finest buildings, and J. S. McCalley is the contractor. The stores will be of all whom are sales superintendents, recently appointed by Manager E. F. Luna.

ATLANTA BUILDING CENTER OF SOUTHEAST.

With plans coming into the city from practically every state in the south, and requests for bids on many structures proposed in all the large cities of the southern section of the United States sent here for attention of local contractors and material men, it seems to be a settled fact that this city has come to be looked upon as the building center of Dixie. Atlanta architects, of which there are a num-

The new Grant building and the suspension walk that will connect Whitehall and South Broad streets which is rapidly approaching completion, and which will add greatly to the attractiveness of approach to the city as viewed by people arriving in the old union station.

This handsome business building, containing three large stores, will also have a number of shops along the walkway that connects the above-mentioned shopping streets.

The hanging walk picture above will form a most convenient cut-off for shoppers who wish to pass from Whitehall to Broad street.

The Grant business building is being erected to replace the old structure that was destroyed on this location several months ago, and when completed it will be one of the most modernly appointed commercial buildings in the city, according to those in charge of its construction.

under the Draper-Owens agency, which will have the exclusive privilege of leasing it.

1985 PEACHTREE TO PROVE POPULAR.

The fact that these leases have already been signed for 1985 Peachtree, the beautiful nine-story apartment that has just begun to show above the ground at Peachtree and Sixteenth streets, might be taken as the best kind of evidence that this fine apartment will prove popular among the well-to-do people of Atlanta, said Howard H. Arnold, of the Fair Realty & Trust company, who have exclusive leasing of 1985 Peachtree.

This splendid building will have many innovations and space for tenanted automobiles will be provided on the ground floor a large garage having been included in the plan of the modern features. The nine floors of the structure, it was stated, will have four apartments each, of 5 to 6 rooms, making thirty-six apartments, all told, and each of these will have two baths, all of which will be equipped with bath, toilet and shower, and will be up-to-date in every convenience and other conveniences, and the beauty of the building and comfort of the patrons of the apartment will be greatly enhanced by the 75-foot space that is to be left vacant between the building and the sidewalk.

"We are well pleased to have the interest that has so far been taken in the apartment," said Mr. Arnold, "and we believe there will be no difficulty in leasing each of the handsome dwellings contained in this building's art to put the figures in shape again.

ROBSON-HOLLEMAN REPORT ACTIVITY.

The well-known real estate firm of Robson-Holleman, with offices at 10 Auburn avenue, has given out reports of a splendid period of activity that has been experienced by the firm during the past few weeks.

"The increase in Atlanta's population, is the main cause of this activity," said Mr. Holleman.

Both the late lamented animals, rampant in their attitude, nevertheless show distinct affection for each other, and Mr. Cook is said to be particularly anxious to secure coverings and some versed in the taxidermist's art to put the figures in shape again.

McKENZIE RETURNS FROM FLORIDA.

William McKenzie, of the real estate firm of Draper-Owens company, who has been spending all day on a combination business and pleasure trip to the "Land of Flowers," returned the latter part of the week from Miami, the east point at which he stopped during his visit to Florida. Mr. McKenzie reports a good time and many friends who will doubtless be glad to learn of his improvement and who will welcome him back to the city.

MILLER OFFICES REMOVED AND ENLARGED.

The offices of the G. L. Miller & Co., big real estate, mortgag and bond house, have been removed from the 17th floor of the Hurt building, where the company has been located for several years, to larger and more convenient quarters on the 11th floor of the same building.

MEN PADGETT ON FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

"How can you expect a man to give you any real estate news when he has been tied up for several days on a federal grand jury?" asked Ben Padgett, popular head of the L. W. Rogers Realty & Trust company, who had just left his office for his deliberations with other members of his important body Saturday morning.

Mr. Padgett would not state whether he was practicaly assured of his release.

The Rogers Realty & Trust company is one of the largest of the local real estate establishments, and Mr. Padgett is looked upon as one of the leaders in the realty profession in Atlanta.

His firm has in course of negotiation a number of large transactions, it was stated, and he reports much promised activity that is expected to develop during the coming months in this state and in the nation.

Miss McCollum Weds Mr. Walker
At Mother's Home in Marietta

Mrs. John D. McCollum announces the marriage of her daughter, Agnes Jay, to Johnnie Walker, the marriage having taken place on Sunday, February 17, at 5 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother on Whitlock avenue.

The impressive ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Patton in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends. Presiding at the ceremony, Carl Calloway, sang "All for You," and Misses Ruth and Ruby Webb, rendered "Schubert's Serenade." The bridal couple descended the staircase and entered the living room to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mrs. Fred Legg, sister of the bride. "Love's Old Sweet Song" was played by Mrs. Legg during the ceremony.

Attractive Bride.
The bride was beautily attired in a striking coat suit of navy point twill with accordian-plaited self trimmings, with which a beautiful crepe overblouse was worn. Her hat was a chic imported model of blue embroidered straw and her other costume accessories were of the fashionable dawn shade. An exquisite corsage bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley completed the stunning costume.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of Mrs. John D. McCollum and the late Dr. John D. McCollum, of Alpharetta, who was prominent in medical circles of the state. She is a young lady of vivacious personality, attractive manner and amiable disposition, and is soon coming to Marietta to make her home. She has made many friends and been a popular member of the young society set. The bride attended Bessie Tift college where she was a member of the Kappa Delta sorority and later took a special course in oratory at Breau college.

Prominent Families.

Mr. Walker is of a prominent pioneer family of North Carolina, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. John R. Walker, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and his ancestors being the first family of old Winston, N. C. He came to Marietta in 1919, coming here from service with the famous 77th division of the A. E. F. and was manager of McLellan's store. He was an active and popular member of the Marietta Shrine club and the Shrine Orrister. The American Legion, in made a very warm circle of friends here. As a token of esteem and good wishes, members of the American Legion and a number of the business men of the town presented Mr. and Mrs. Walker with a handsome chest of silver as a wedding gift.

Immediately after the ceremony a party composed of Mr. and Mrs.

Miss Dorothy Dupin
Weds Mr. Culver.

Marriage of social interest throughout Georgia and North Carolina was that of Miss Dorothy Dupin and J. L. Culver, Jr., which took place Saturday, February 9, Dr. G. M. Eakes officiating.

The bride is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dupin of Vicksburg, Miss. She was charmingly attired in black Romaine crepe with a modish black straw hat and rhinestone ornament. Her only attendant was Miss Bessie Baumstend, who acted as maid of honor. Miss Baumstend's gown was tan Poiret twill with hat to match.

The bride attended school in both Atlanta and Macon, where she was well known among the social set.

Mr. Culver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Culver, Sr., of Highland avenue, and is a young and promising business man.

Mr. and Mrs. Culver will be guests at the Selwyn Hotel, Charlotte, N. C., for several days, with the bride's parents. After their return they will be at home at 614 Highland avenue.

KING—YEATES.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee King announce the engagement of their daughter, Annie Mae, to William Smith Yeates, the marriage to take place March 15 at St. Mark's Methodist church at 8:30 o'clock in the evening.

Frohsin's Present the Spring Tailleur

Most important among Spring fashions is that of the tailored suit, and Frohsin's, anticipating its return to favor, offers a selection of suits reflecting every whim of the mode, in a variety so wide that you will find the choice of your suit delightfully easy.

Suits after O'Rosen, foremost of Parisian tailors—suits by New York tailors equally noted for the distinction of their models. Suits which are perfect in workmanship and graceful in line, depending on these qualities for the undeniable chic which is theirs.

The correct fabrics include oxfords, coverts, tweeds, mannish materials and twills—in gray, navy, lentil, artichoke and moss green, navy and black. In addition, there are many decidedly smart models developed in hairline stripes and checks on a background of navy or black or color.

Correct modes for Madame, and engagingly boyish little models for the Miss.

Students' Loan Fund Created by Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. M. Ashby Jones, chairman of the general education committee of the Young Women's Christian association, calls the attention of young people to the loan fund that has been established by the training schools of the national Y. W. C. A. with headquarters in New York city. Mrs. Jones states that the loan has been made possible through the generosity of friends of the national body and that the fund requirements are as follows: Prospective students who have already been placed upon the list of students on whom loans are acceptable in regard to character, preparation and suitability for the association profession are eligible to apply for the use of this fund. The maximum amount of money available per student is $550, the amount of the full scholarship. Those desirous of borrowing the amount of tuition, $240, or $100, amount of room and board for a year, may do so.

Loans will be awarded upon recommendation of the committee on admissions and are interest-bearing at the rate of 6 per cent, but no repayment is required until the borrower has been placed in a position bearing salary. From the date of taking such a position the borrower is expected to pay off the loan in monthly installments of $10 plus interest on the unpaid balance until full repayment is completed.

In case of illness or loss of position, the borrower notifying the loan committee a month in advance may delay payment, the borrower being at liberty to continue to pay off the larger proportion to the whole amount with interest to date of such payment as she may care to clear.

The advantages of co-operation are that through prompt repayment the borrower is making possible the operation of a rotary fund which becomes available to others.

What does the former mutual help on a professional and business basis could be offered?" asks Mrs. Jones.

The national training schools' entrance requirements are outlined by Mrs. Jones:

1.—A degree from a standard college or technical school, or evidence of equivalent education.

2.—Special fitness for the particular type of work anticipated either through previous experience or specific training.

3.—Belief in the purpose of the Young Women's Christian association.

4.—Membership in a Protestant Evangelical church.

5.—Good health.

6.—A minimum age of 22 years.

The Suit Again Triumphant

YOUNG women have turned once more to the saucy, piquant, ever youthful, becoming suit. Not surprising. Nothing can ever take the place of the perfectly tailored suit—nothing can serve so many purposes or prove such an all-round comfort.

The spring suit is slim, exquisitely tailored, with the alluring charm of correct designing and the subtle air of smartness that comes from fine quality and perfect lines.

Quitman U. D. C. To Raise $1,000.

Quitman, Ga., February 23.—The Quitman Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy has voted to raise $1,000 for a memorial tablet in the Stone Mountain Memorial hall. The matter of erecting a Confederate monument in Quitman was discussed but it was decided to raise the money for Stone Mountain instead at this time.

The members received the guests of the evening, Miss Pauline Martin, club president, was toastmistress.

Brief reports were made that showed that the club did an active social service work in 1923, and that then as now, the girls are active in the promotion of the work of the Young Women's Christian association.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the club has been the erection of their club house at the Young Women's Christian association camp at High-land, Ga.

Following the banquet, Miss Mamie H. Williams, of the club, had arranged a program that was given in the "Y" club room. Miss Helen Schaid, pianist, and Miss Mary Trounself, violinist, gave several numbers. Mrs. Dwight Boles, president of the Central Congregational church, sang, and Louise Didschun, a pupil in aesthetic art of Miss Norma Sears, danced.

Dr. Wilmer Will Address Next U. D. C. Meeting

Dr. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, will address the regular meeting of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., on Thursday, February 28, at 3 o'clock. Dr. Wilmer's high reputation as a physician and spokesman marks the occasion as one that will be memorable in the history of the U. D. C. chapter, and it is expected that a large gathering of members will greet him. No speaker of today is better qualified to set before his audience the history and traditions of the south which the U. D. C. seeks to perpetuate through history and memorials than Dr. Wilmer, whose intellectual brilliance has given him wide fame.

Mrs. Charles T. Phillips, president of the Atlanta chapter, will present and introduce Dr. Wilmer. Mrs. Benjamin Parker will provide a musical program in keeping with the occasion.

Among reports which will be heard will be that of Mrs. J. H. Beckham, chairman of portraits in schools who will give an account of the presentation of portraits made on Washington's birthday to the William A. Bass Junior High school and the Capitol Avenue school. To the Junior High school a portrait of George Washington was given and to Capitol Avenue school a picture showing the last meeting of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. Mrs. Phillips made the presentation at the latter school, the school receiving the picture with appropriate expressions of interest and enthusiasm.

Mrs. Forrest Kibler, treasurer of the chapter, will be at the chapter house at 2:45 to receive dues.

Contribution of the Atlanta chapter to the Jefferson Davis monument fund, $1,000, at the general U. D. C. convention, will be arranged by Mrs. Charles T. Phillips, who is sponsoring two bridge parties on Wednesday, February 27, the proceeds of which will be given for the purpose.

The parties will be at the chapter house, 156 Juniper street, and will be at 11 o'clock in the morning and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Tables are $2.00 each and there will be prizes for each table and others for general drawing.

Players will be expected to bring cards and pencils. For reservations telephone Mrs. Phillips, IV 2474.

Girl Scout Patrol Elects Officers.

The Atlanta Girl Scout patrol leaders' association met Monday afternoon, February 18, at headquarters and organized as follows:

President, Scout Marian Fischer, Troop 22; secretary, Scout Anne McLaurine, Troop 6; treasurer, Scout Laurie Mason, Troop 18.

The committee appointed to draw up constitution and bylaws was Louise Wesley, Troop 12, chairman; Marion Martin, Troop 21; Dorothy Keeley, Troop 18; committee appointed to arrange program for next meeting: Lillian Morgan, Troop 21, chairman; Scout Ruby Palmer, Troop 1; Scout Sarah Garwood, Troop 27; Scout Louise Wesley, Troop 12.

Arrangements were made for meetings to be held the third Saturday in each month at Girl Scout headquarters at 10:30 o'clock. The next meeting will be held March 15.

The following scouts, patrol leaders of their troops, were present:

Troop 1, Frances Justi, Ruby Palmer, Troop 3, Stella Spieberger, Helen Abess, Srivine Hirsch, Marion Martin, Troop 22, Eleanor Montgomery, Edna McCowan, Elizabeth Walker; Troop 27, Dorris Samuel, Sarah Garwood; Troop 1, Audrey Campbell.

Patrol leaders of all troops under the Atlanta Girl Scout council are to lead their patrols and assist in direction of their work. Mrs. Mary L. Parry, director of the Girl Scouts, will charge the girls eligible for membership. Mrs. Har-

The subjects of the lectures will be "Was Jesus a Theosophist?" "Theosophy and the New Age," "Theosophy and the War," "Theosophy and Wisdom," and "Life's Problems Solved." The first two will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday and Wednesday.

Decatur Woman's Club Plans Elaborate Benefit Bridge

Arrangements were completed during the past week for the benefit bridge party to be given by the recently organized Decatur Woman's club on the afternoon and evening of Friday, February 29, at the Metz building in Decatur, corner Clairmont and Ponce de Leon avenues, and announcement made of the various subcommittees assisting the chairman, Mrs. Roy Jones, and her assistant, Mrs. Fred Macdonald, who have charge of the affair.

The party will consist of two sessions, afternoon and evening, at 2:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. of the day named and elaborate preparations are being made to stage a most successful affair by the women of Decatur's new and popular organization. The Metz building, the use of which has been generously donated to the club for this purpose, is to be tastefully decorated and furnished for the benefit of the committee having this part of the work in charge wish to thus publicly thank the individuals and firms who have overwhelmed them with offers of flowers, etc., with which to beautify the hall. The refreshment committee have already had tended to them many times the quantity of dainty edibles that will be needed even for the large crowd expected.

Tables for bridge for either the afternoon or evening session are $2 per table and reservations made by the following parties to 7 p. m. of Wednesday, February 27: Mrs. W. Barton, Decatur 0071-J, or Mrs. E. C. Hicks, Decatur 1228; Mrs. Leon O'Dell, Decatur 0018-W. Refreshments will be served both afternoon and evening and to correct any impression to the contrary this party is being given not for club members alone, but for any desiring to attend.

Committees having charge of the various features of the affair were announced by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Macdonald, the following:

Refreshments—Mrs. Charles L. Weeks, chairman, assisted by Mrs. E. B. Branch, Mrs. Homer F. George and Mrs. Hugh Trotti.

Prizes—Mrs. Marshall George, chairman, assisted by Mrs. W. S. Elkin and Mrs. Dan White.

Decorations—Mrs. Hugh Burgess, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Stanley Hastings, Mrs. Dan White, Mrs. Boyd Sutton and Mrs. Homer Howard.

Tables and Chairs—Mrs. Robert Matthews, chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Campbell.

Serving (afternoon)—Mrs. David O'Neal, chairman, assisted by Mrs. S. M. Salyer, Mrs. Dan White, Mrs. A. Baynes.

DOCKSTADER GLASSES MAKE PEOPLE ADMIRE YOU

COMBINED with their vision improving qualities, you will find in Dockstader fitted glasses, a decided becomingness to their wearer. This is not a "happen so." We carefully study the facial contours and lines of expression with every customer we serve. We know that there is one particular style and shape that will add greatly to their features instead of detracting from them. By tests, fittings and experience we know that they are good looking.

If you have eye trouble you should have your eyes examined at once!

Program Will Mark
Planting of Trees
On National Road

An elaborate program will mark the tree planting to be conducted on the Bankhead highway on Tuesday afternoon, February 26, at 2 o'clock. Fifty trees will be planted by the commissioners of Fulton county in memory of Fulton county men whose lives were sacrificed in the world war. These trees with others planted previously by the county and by different organizations will form an avenue of remembrance expected to vie in beauty eventually with several highways in the north which have been made beautiful by similar memorial trees planted at brief intervals on either side of the road.

The Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R., have been invited to the program on Tuesday afternoon, which is expected to center around a tree which will be planted in memory of Woodrow Wilson. The Old Guard has been invited to dedicate this tree.

Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Sr., vice chairman of the National Highway association, and Mrs. R. K. Rambo, women who are in charge of the Bankhead Highway association, will be honor guests of the occasion.

All citizens of Atlanta are invited to attend the exercises which will be held a short distance beyond the beginning of the highway in the direction of Austell.

Miss Quarles

Guests are requested to bring their own cards and pencils. The game will begin at 3:30.

Agnes Scott College Girls
Celebrate Joint Birthday

With a return from bobbed hair to powdered wigs, from the tango to the minuet, the Agnes Scott girls celebrated on February 22 the joint birthday of George Washington and Scott, the father of their college.

The great event of the day was the formal banquet at 6 o'clock. Gowned as colonial dames in finery, full skirts and powdered wigs and as colonial gentlemen in knickerbockers, lace frills and buckled slippers, the members of the senior class were the honor guests of the occasion. Over each dining room George and Martha Washington presided, assisted by the entire Washington and Martha Washington club, three by a quartet with four girls in each part and two by a special quartet. This quartet was composed of Misses Walton, McAlpine, Gilliland and Etheredge.

Mrs. Potter To Read.

Blackfriars, the Agnes Scott dramatic club, will sponsor the appearance of Miss Ethel Priscilla Potter, a reader of note, on Saturday evening, March 1.

The fame of Miss Potter has preceded her. Besides being a graduate of Wellesley college and of the Boston School of Expression, Miss Potter was for two years a member of the Drama League of Boston.

Miss Potter possesses an attractive appearance combined with a strong and pleasing personality. By her recitals she makes her work educational and interesting and gives one a better understanding of literature. In addition to other sketches, her extensive repertoire includes programs of modern poetry and several of James Barrie's plays.

In the White house: Victoria Howie was George Washington; Frances Gilliland was Martha Washington; Frances Gilliland was Martha Washington; Marian Johnson was Lafayette; Daisy Frances Smith was Patrick Henry; Annie Watson Terry was James Madison; Margarette Dobbins was Francis Scott Key; Mary Eakes was Peter Rose; Miss Melinda Smith was Daniel Boone; Frances Amis was Thomas Jefferson; Elizabeth Askew was Dolly Madison; Jane Brown was Mrs. Benjamin Franklin.

The minuet was danced by Misses Elizabeth Henry, Weenona Peck, Augusta Thomas, Victoria Howie, Marian Johnson, Emily Arnold, Nancy Evans, Polly Stone, Dell Bernhardt, Virginia Burt, Frances Gilliland, Josephine Davis, Leah Davidson, Helen Wright, Janie Brown and Virginia Ordway.

City.
My dear Mr. Hanson:
In acknowledging receipt of the first prize ($12,000.00) I want to thank you for the very courteous treatment extended to us at all times, which served to make our work a real pleasure.
The writer has watched several contests of this nature, but has never known one that was run so easily and with so little friction. After the announcement of the winner of the prize, I have not heard a single complaint being registered against you or the contest in any way, which I want to congratulate you on.
You take with you our good wishes always.
Yours truly,
REV. J. A. COOK.

FRANK L. STANTON TO BE HONORED AT MONDAY MEETING

Opera Musicales Will Begin In March at Woman's Club

The splendid "Opera Musicales" which are given annually under the auspices of the Atlanta Woman's club just prior to the opening of the season are creating much interest at this time, since the date of the first musical to be given is March 5 and will be the popular opera "Il Trovatore."

Letters are being sent out to members and friends of the club announcing the series of operas and from all indications the auditorium will be filled with those who love the arts of both music and drama.

The president, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, is in the process of presenting the program of "Il Trovatore" which this season's offering is of so much artistic value than the modest price of the season fee that there is no hesitancy in presenting the matter to the public. "The past has evidenced great interest in the opera musicals and I trust there will be a continuation of the patronage," says Mrs. Richardson.

The first musical, "Il Trovatore," will be read by Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis; the music by a group of the most talented artists in the city, and so on through the series. Mrs. Bess

Merrill Smith will have charge of the music.

The case for "Il Trovatore" is as follows: Leonora, Mrs. Jack Lester, soprano soloist of St. Luke's choir; (b) Azucena, Mrs. Bess Merrill Smith, contralto of First Methodist choir and teacher of voice at Atlanta Conservatory; (c) Manrico, Clifford Durham, tenor in First Methodist choir; (d) Count de Luna, Tom Hoffman, baritone of First Methodist choir; (e) Ferrando, Harry Pomar, bass.

The program of "Il Trovatore" includes: 1. Aria (Ferrando) Abbietzinga, Harry Pomar. 2. Recitative and Aria (Leonora) Teceia la notte placida, Mrs. Jack Lester. Act II. 3. Aria (Azucena) Stride a tempo, Mrs. Bess Merrill Smith. 4. Duet (Azucena and Manrico) Mal raggiende Mrs. Smith and Mr. Durham. 5. Aria (Count de Luna) Il balen del suo sonoro, Tom Hoffman. 6. Duet (Leonora and Manrico) Ah! che la morte ognora, Mrs. Lester and Mr. Durham. 7. Duet (Azucena and Manrico) Si stavezzesi in opprime o figlio, Mrs. Smith and Mr. Durham.

Mrs. Frances Stovall Felder will sing at the piano.

WOMAN'S CLUB WILL TAKE PART IN MEMORIAL

The Atlanta Woman's club will take a prominent part in the Wilson memorial drive, which is now being carried on in Atlanta. The members of the members of the executive board of the club will be communitated with the membership at the regular Monday meeting, when all are asked to bring personal contributions.

The members of the club are adding to this fund through the civic drive committee, the chairman of which is Mrs. Frank Naegele. Mrs. John Wing's plans are to make an appeal for the purpose of bringing to the minds of the members of the club who have not already been solicited, the importance of rallying to this cause, which should be uppermost in the minds of the American people.

It has recently come to the chairman that the children of the Joe Cundiff family have raised $10 to add to this fund, which will be given to the club through the civic drive committee of the Woman's club; this report being made by Mrs. W. L. McCauley, a member of the committee, who lives in the district of the school.

FLOWER LOVERS' DIVISION MEETS ON THURSDAY

The flower lovers' division of the Atlanta Woman's club will hold a "meeting" at the club house Thursday morning, February 28, at 10:30 o'clock. Short talks will be made on the growing of the gladiola plant.

The subject for the discussion of this meeting is: "What Will Grow in the Partial Shade?" All members are cordially invited to attend this meeting and get the advantage of advice on growing plants and flowers. Mrs. E. B. Crenshaw, chairman of the division, is especially anxious that many women will be present at the meeting of the flower lovers' committee to know just how to proceed with their spring planting. These meetings are very interesting and much may be gained by those who attend.

Fidelis Class Gives Party.

The Fidelis class entertained in their home by Mrs. J. R. Alman, Atlanta Woman's club, on Friday evening in the intermediate department of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church with a Valentine party, staged by the chairman and committee of the orange side, who lost a contest to the black side.

Seventy guests were present.

MRS. HINMAN WILL GIVE LECTURE SERIES

On Tuesday, February 26, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, in the Atlanta Woman's Club building, Mrs. George B. Hinman will give the third lecture in the course on "The Evolution and Philosophy of Modern Art."

The subject of Tuesday's lecture is "Pseudo-Classicism," often called the empire art. Jacques Louis David, Dominique Ingres, Prud'Homme and Gerard are the artists to be discussed. "Pseudo-Classicism" is the beginning of modern art, says Professor Frank Jewett Mather, of Princeton. This lecture is, therefore, an important one in the series.

MRS. SNELL WILL SPEAK AT CLUB

Mrs. Myrtle Snell, recreational director for Birmingham, Ala., who is on a return trip from New York, where she made investigations of the recreational advantages there and the better film situation, with Miss Waldemar, who is touring the southeast, will speak to the members for the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Snell with Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Woman's club, were guests at the great luncheon given by the national board of review in New York recently, and they better film situation, with Miss Waldemar, who is touring the southeast, will speak to the members for the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Snell will address the Woman's club members and friends on the "World Conference" induced by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Those who have heard Miss Waldemar will realize that she always has a splendid message for her listeners.

The election of a nominating committee for the Woman's club will take place at this meeting and its interest is manifested in this part of the business program. The committee will report in the near future a ticket carrying the names of those nominated for officers for the coming year.

Mrs. John M. Cooper is in charge of the musical program which has been arranged in our gift shop. Frank L. Stanton, many of his poems which have been adapted to music, will feature the afternoon's program. Mrs. Bess Merrill Smith, accompanied by Miss Minnie Merle Carter, will render several selections including "Keep on Hopin'" music by Kathleen Heron Maxwell, "Sweet Little Woman" of Mine" music by Sloy Little Bartlett; "Just a Wearyin' for You" music by Carrie Bond.

Lithonia Rebekah Lodge I. O. O. F.
Is Instituted

Lithonia Rebekah Lodge No. 64, I. O. O. F., was instituted Tuesday night, February 19, at the I. O. O. F. hall in that city. Mrs. Culver Sims, district deputy president, of Decatur Rebekah Lodge No. 31, was acting president of the Georgia Rebekah assembly, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Bodenhamer, chaplain of Georgia Rebekah assembly; Mrs. T. J. Rakestraw, past master of Decatur Rebekah Lodge; J. G. Pratt, past master; Paul L. Lindsey, deputy grand master; grand lodge of Georgia, and J. M. Johnston, past grand of Decatur Lodge No. 195, I. O. O. F.

The Rebekah degree was conferred by the degree staff of Decatur Rebekah Lodge No. 31.

After the institution of the new lodge, the following officers were elected and installed into their respective offices: Noble grand, Mrs. John Pratt; vice grand, Mrs. Hugh Marbut; secretary, Mrs. Joe Pratt; treasurer, Mrs. Wesley Webb.

After the installation of officers, refreshments were served by the Lithonia Lodge.

M. P. S. Club Is Entertained.

A congenial group of ladies, former members of the M. P. S. club of a decade ago, met at the home of Mrs. Mrs. F. K. McElroy, 11 McElroy street, on Wednesday at a delightful buffet luncheon and for the purpose of renewing that splendid, friendly spirit of former days.

The spacious rooms where the guests were received were artistically decorated with tall wicker baskets filled with colorful flowers, and red, white and blue colors were emphasized in the other decorations suggesting the characteristics of each.

The afternoon was spent in amusing George Washington contests, bridge-playing and other games. Delightful reminiscences were referred throughout the day by Mrs. Tom Meekel and Mrs. F. K. McElroy.

At 3 o'clock the ladies were called to order in the living room.

"Old Friends Like You" by Foley; "Myself," by Guest; "Some Words for the Flapper," and an original verse introduced by the ladies, signifying the characteristics of each, was a group of readings rendered by Mrs. T. N. Ahearn.

Mrs. Adams was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. J. Simmons and Miss Mary Adams.

Those present were Mrs. J. T. Cowan, Mrs. F. K. McElroy, Mrs. G. Hale, Mrs. J. N. Albrecht, Mrs. Noel Dodd, Mrs. Tom Meekel, Mrs. J. W. Rountree, Mrs. C. W. Arnold, Mrs. W. C. Beddingfield, Mrs. C. W. Stone, Mrs. A. E. Cameron, Mrs. Paul Tripple, Mrs. J. J. Simmons, Mrs. Walter Adams, Miss Mary Adams and little Charlotte Tripple.

Are Hostesses At Large Dance.

Miss Gladys McClelland and Miss Dorothy Morrison were hostesses Friday night at a large dance given at the home of Miss McClelland on St. George street.

The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and the George Washington idea was carried out. The music was rendered by an orchestra.

Miss Lillian McClelland, Mrs. McClelland and Mrs. Morrison assisted in entertaining.

The guests included: Miss Cathleen Neary, Miss Ellin Gordon, Miss Clarice Stewart, Miss Elizabeth Arnold, Miss Eugenia Bridges, Miss Dorothy Slager, Miss Mary Pope Reese, Miss Virginia Overeshier, Miss Roberta Harbour, Miss Elizabeth McArthur, Miss Edette Jones, Miss Frances Shackelford, Miss Marie B. Message of State Regent

This is perhaps, Daughters, the last message that I shall give you as state regent of Georgia.

The burden of the two loan scholarship funds—your contribution to which is an earnest of your real interest in the education of unfortunate, deserving Georgia girlhood. We think of ourselves—our organization—and we like to be thought of in terms of patriotic grandeur. Then let us not fail to give not only your approval, but the appropriate admiration of the funds. The books of the state treasurer make me fearful of any satisfactory results from promptly meet their just quotas. The decision to create these loans of scholarship funds is reached through you or your delegates in conference voting unanimous, just so it is your specific duty to contribute your pro rata to each of these funds.

Remember also that this is Georgia's opportunity to do a splendid thing for Georgia's girlhood. I trust each chapter will arise to the occasion and go to conference feeling proud to have a share in so splendid and enduring work.

As I close, dear Daughters, I must again express my love and zeal for our organization; my deep appreciation of you as women worthy to be called D. A. R., and I bespeak the same cooperation for the coming years that has characterized the past. Glory then will be yours!

SARA DAVIS AKERMAN.

Creed of D. A. R. Report.

I believe in presenting a good appearance.

I believe it is my duty to give every item of my work, but to state it concisely.

I believe I should be typed and on only one side of the paper.

I believe that this paper should measure 8 1/2 x 11 inches.

I believe I should be correct in every detail so that I may take pride in going to print without a single correction.

I believe that my duplicates should be sent to my state regent and to my state recording secretary.

I believe that in doing these things I render invaluable assistance to my organization.

MRS. A. L. WILKINS,
 State Recording Secretary, Georgia
 D. A. R.

Mrs. McKenzie Indorsed

It is with the greatest pride and pleasure that the Archibald Bullock chapter, D. A. R., of Montezuma, endorse the name of Mrs. Oscar McKenzie as state recording secretary of D. A. R.

It was she who first conceived the idea of forming a D. A. R. chapter in Montezuma twenty years ago and with untiring effort has built up our chapter to this day.

She is a woman of culture and education, having graduated at Wesleyan college with highest honors. Possessing the qualities of a born leader, combined with poise and dignity, she would reflect honor to her state in accepting this office. And we are well known to our state, holding an office in the state U. D. C. chapter as well as State Federation of Women's Clubs, we take keen delight in announcing her as candidate for state recording secretary of D. A. R.

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. L. C. CHEVERER,

Tribute to Mrs. Spencer

It is difficult to write an appreciation to one whose life is enshrined in the memory of loving friendship.

In the death of Mrs. Richard P. Spencer, of Columbus, the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution have lost one of their most beloved and valued members. For many years she was an active state officer in the organization, her last office being that of vice regent, 1919-1920.

Strong in her individuality and sound in her judgment, she will be missed by her co-workers. As a hostess in her own home she had the gift of making one feel perfectly at home and left nothing undone for her guests' pleasure and comfort. Loving memories will ever linger with me of the days spent in her home.

Her beloved members will remember with pleasure the beautiful receptions given at Continental Congress by the late Mrs. Samuel Spencer when our friend and co-worker shared honors with Miss Anna Benning and the cordial greeting extended by these splendid women to our Georgia delegates to conference.

In her own home town, Columbus, in her parish and in D. A. R. and U. D. C. work she will be sadly missed, for she was always an inspiration with her high ideals of life.

My heart goes out in tender sympathy to her bereaved children, in whose life she will be a continued remembrance.

"No one hears the door that opens."

The Lyman Hall Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was entertained Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. W. N. Jones and Mrs. Ed. Fish at their home. Mrs. Joe Stevens.

During the business session, many items of interest were transacted, most prominent among which was the endorsing of the following women for state officers:

Regent, Mrs. Julius Talmadge, of Athens; first vice regent, Mrs. Paul Trammell of Dalton; second vice regent, Mrs. A. L. Wilkins, of Eastman; recording registrar, Mrs. Herbert M. Franklin, of Tennille.

The chapter made generous contributions to Georgia Bay Ellis' Island fund, Meadow Garden, and the Girls' Loan Scholarship fund.

Mrs. H. T. Carswell read a very interesting paper on "The Birthday of Georgia and the Great Seal."

Mrs. W. C. Parker read an article prepared by Mrs. O. L. Garrett on the Georgia poet, Robert Loveman.

Mrs. Garrett had known the poet personally in his home town and gave interesting details of his home life and his career.

Mrs. E. D. Dimmick related some of the old legends of Georgia. The program concluded by mandolin and guitar selection by Miss Welcher and Mr. Rosser Elkins.

Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Craibill have returned home after spending a month in Florida.

Miss Kellie Blalock spent the weekend with her parents in Bartow.

J. N. Douglas and Miss Helen Douglas, of Monroe, N. C., were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Faith.

John L. Garrison spent Sunday in Marietta.

Little Hattie Belle Tamlin, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. J. T. Tamlin, of 553 South Moreland avenue, is very ill with influenza.

The friends of Mrs. Bell, of 33 Woodlawn avenue, will regret to learn of her illness in the Georgia Baptist Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Azee spent the weekend with relatives in Dunwoody.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Rice motored to Griffin last Sunday.

Miss Frances Hayden and P. D. Shumate were united in marriage Saturday, February 17, the Rev. Herman Gresham officiating.

The friends of Mrs. Z. V. Peterson rejoice to learn she is ill at her home in Moreland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Moon, of 651 South Moreland avenue, announce the birth of a daughter, who has been named Vivian Churchill Moon.

Mrs. E. F. Fincher will entertain the members of circle No. 2 at her home in Flat Shoals, today Friday afternoon, February 20.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid soap; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it gently with the finger tips.

Atlanta Women Are Invited To Hear Mr. Norcross

Every woman in Atlanta who is interested in the development of our city along civic lines is invited to come to the chamber of commerce Monday night and hear Paul H. Norcross, newly elected president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, tell "What Atlanta Women Can Do in the Chamber of Commerce."

Supper will be served at 6 o'clock and reservations should be in the hands of the secretary of the woman's division of the chamber of commerce not later than noon Monday. Plates will be 60 cents each.

The woman's division of the chamber of commerce is inviting other women to this meeting in an effort to interest women in activities of the chamber of commerce, and Miss Susie Wailes, chairman of the division, hopes many women will take advantage of the meeting to find out what women are doing and can do for Atlanta in the chamber of commerce.

Every member of the governing board of the division and all officers are invited to attend at this meeting and every member is urged to come and bring at least one other woman. There is only one requirement, and that is that reservations for the supper be in hand by noon so that plates may be prepared for all who come.

A special musical program will be given by Miss Nora Allen and John Hinton, accompanied by Signor Poli.

On the adjournment of the meeting a delicious salad course was served in the beautiful dining room of the chapter house. The large oval table was covered with a white lace cloth, and had for its central decoration a crystal vase of red roses. At intervals on the table crystal candelabra held crimson tapers unshaded.

The members present were Mrs. W. A. Crossland, Miss Virginia Woodrow, Mrs. Paul Crutchfield, Mrs. Ernest Barnett, Mrs. E. E. Hugley, Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Miss Jimmie Lou Crews, Mrs. H. R. Harlin, Mrs. F. L. Cochran, Mrs. L. N. Johnson, Mrs. J. M. White, Mrs. Clarence Ivy and Mrs. W. E. Carnes.

"Every such child by sending $1 will be entitled to be enrolled when proof of descent from a Confederate ancestor is given. This movement is more significant than it at first appears, for it is the fathers and mothers who failed to secure the records of Confederate descent for their sons and daughters by neglecting to ally themselves or their children with Confederate organizations, and thus securing the signatures of veterans of the Confederate army and navy while alive."

"Had this been done, there should now be done, then no question could arise in future years to demand proof of descent from a Confederate ancestor, their children's children will respond for failing to secure a record that will prove descent from the men that Stone mountain memorial honors. They will ask: 'Why was my name omitted from that 'Founders' Roll?' It is important that not one

Temperance Day in Colleges and Schools

BY MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD, Macon, Ga.

Since 85 per cent of all knowledge is attained through the eye, and some are still "from Missouri," or in the shadowed past, in regard to the Eighteenth amendment, the following demonstration, "How the Eighteenth Amendment Was 'Put over,'" prepared by Mrs. Letta A. Dillard, state president of the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union, is recommended to schools and colleges for the observance of Temperance day in schools and colleges, the fourth Friday in March.

The demonstration was effectively given in Atlanta at the fourth anniversary of the Eighteenth amendment by students from Miss Woolberry's school, also in Augusta, at the National State W. C. T. C. golden jubilee celebration by Tubman high school students.

A good speaker is required, which may be a pupil; 49 girls or boys, each of whom should have a pennant with the name of the state represented, pinned from shoulder to waist (pupils may make these), an American flag, and a soloist to copy of the song, "It's In the Constitution and It's There to Stay." If girls make the parts, it is more beautiful if they are dressed in middy suits or other white dresses, but this is not necessary.

The pennants, song and an entirely different program for observance of the day may be obtained from the National W. C. T. U. Publishing House, Evanston, Ill.

How the States Went Dry.

It has been said by the "anti" and those opposed to prohibition that the Eighteenth Amendment was "put over." Some have said, "It was put over while the boys were in France" — the nation taking advantage of the absence of those dear soldier boys.

We admit that it was "put over," by more folks than ever before put over by the state governments to the constitution of our great nation — it certainly was put over, but not while the boys were in France.

Away back in 1851 — seventy-three years ago — the state of Maine passed a prohibition law (Maine walks on the platform) here comes the brave pioneer, Honorable Neal Dow of that state, here, here, here, called "the father of prohibition in the United States" because of his untiring efforts to secure this law.

In 1881 another pioneer appears (Kansas comes on the platform and stands by Maine). Then, in 1880, still another, North Dakota, in 1897, when the prohibition revival was beginning, Georgia, going dry when our Dr. Mary Harris Armor was state president of the W. C. T. U.

Statehood was granted Oklahoma that year with a prohibition law. (Oklahoma comes forward, and all the remaining states follow, then, for the years they went dry, are called).

1909, North Carolina; 1909, Mississippi and Tennessee come hand in hand, while "Dixie" is still being played. 1914, West Virginia, 1915, Alabama and Arizona, hand in hand.

Original W. C. T. U. games and contests were enjoyed as by the original organization committee.

Program at Waycross.

Mrs. J. J. Bennett and Mrs. Walter

Seaman were joint hostesses to the Waycross W. C. T. U. Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bennett.

A delightful patriotic program centered about the life of Frances E. Willard, founder of the World W. C. T. U., opened with the song, "America."

Mrs. Jack Williams gave a group of readings on the flag, standing near a large American flag: (a) "Who Gave You the Name 'Old Glory?'; (b) "Your Flag and My Flag"; (c) "Toast to the Flag."

Each one repeated a quotation from Miss Willard, of deep significance and beauty, a vocal solo, "Stand the Juke," by Miss Frank Bell and a duet, "March of Allegiance," by Mrs. A. H. Patterson and Mrs. W. F. Mott, were enjoyed.

Mrs. Harry Wilson read, "Who Made the Map White," using as an illustration, a map covered with white bows.

Mrs. Jesse Strickland, the president, conducted a short business session when plans were made for the Second District Institute, held at Trinity Methodist church which Dr. Mary Harris Armor and five state workers attended. A large crowd from all parts of the district attended.

The Valentine idea was prettily carried out in the refreshments served at the conclusion of the business.

Rail at Union Point.

The Eighth district jubilee rally was held in the attractively decorated Presbyterian church of Union Point on Friday, Mrs. J. E. Stanton, president, gathering assumed state conventions of unions and counties represented.

The presence of Dr. Mary Harris Armor was an inspiration in itself, and her talks in the day were eagerly heard and her eloquent law enforcement address held the audience which filled the church, spell-bound in the evening.

Mrs. J. L. McGarity, of Monroe, was elected president, succeeding Mrs. J. E. Stanton, who, with her husband, had moved to the Tenth district.

Among those carrying on the program were Mrs. D. T. Johnson, Mrs. Greenboro; Mrs. B. L. Lewis, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. E. E. Newsome, Mrs. W. E. Tarpley, of Union Point; Mrs. C. O. Price, of Madison; Mrs. H. E. Martin, of Athens, and Miss Josephine Hammond, of Monroe.

Very beautiful was the dedication of the babies and little children by Mrs. Armor just before her talk on "Child Welfare."

Activities at McRae.

Rev. Mr. Hefflin addressed a mass meeting at the McRae college auditorium on "Law Observance" and the world situation in regard to prohibition inspired by the Anti-Saloon League convention in Washington, which the McRae W. C. T. U. made possible for him to attend.

Miss Charlotte Frank delighted several Macon audiences and spoke at the regular W. C. T. U. meeting at Mulberry Methodist church last Friday.

Miss Mary Smith gave the devotional and Mrs. August Burghard briefly reported the golden jubilee national W. C. T. U. celebration held in Augusta.

WHAT DOES WASHINGTON SOCIETY REALLY THINK AND SAY?

Frank and humorous glimpses of the family life of prominent political figures of today—Taft, Hughes, Hoover, Jusserand, the Cabinet members; and of the leading feminine personalities of Washington. A series of extraordinary articles, forming a historical chapter that few women have the knowledge to write, but that all women will want to read!

The Inside of Social, Diplomatic and Political Washington—Through the Sharp-Focused Lorgnette of a Woman Who Knows Its Finesse and Its Gaucherie.

THE BOUDOIR MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON

The tale of petty intrigue, social climbing, rank and ceremony—the ambitions and disappointments of Washington's international melee of officialdom—are exposed for the first time in the Boudoir Mirrors of Washington. It is a story full of intimate anecdote, reflecting the lives of fascinating feminine personalities of the day. Written by a woman who knows her ground from long years of close contact. She prefers, for obvious reasons, to remain anonymous. Washington will read her story and guess at her identity. A journalistic treat of absorbing interest to women—and most men—in all sections of the continent.

From "Boudoir Mirrors of Washington"

The first time Mrs. Borah, "Little Borah," her intimate friends call her, dined at the White House, was during the Roosevelt administration. It must be fifteen or sixteen years ago. She was a quiet little mouse, with soft golden hair, and shy—very shy in public. She had just arrived from Idaho and was awed by the capitol, overwhelmed by the White House and thought all senators superior beings. I can see her now as she used to sit, day after day, hanging over the gallery, her face alert, listening. And when Billy Borah spoke!

I think this dinner was the first time she had met President Roosevelt and she was nervous and apprehensive.

"My dear," she said to me next day, "it was wonderful. I sat next to the President, on his left . . ."

"Mrs. Poindexter laughs at the insistence on precedence of many of the wives of officials. At a friendly, informal luncheon one of the guests who was suffering from a toothache politely waited until a senator's wife—the guest of highest rank—pretended to leave so that the sufferer might rush to her dentist without committing a breach of etiquette!"

And the Way This Genuine Public Service Event Is Sweeping Ahead Is Best Proof of What Is Behind It

Tomorrow Rich's Removal enters its second week, after having established an eight-day record of sales unprecedented in our history.

For something more than 56 years we have experienced many great sales—but never before has this old Whitehall Street Store resounded to the throngs, that are taxing to capacity all floor space,—all sections and the utmost efforts of our service departments.

Without fanfare or folderol, without sermons, proverbs, or trite sayings in our advertising, without anything but this plain, concise statement of FACTS:—

Everything Reduced 10 to 50%!

—this mighty Removal is growing greater daily and hourly. Simply because the whole event is a definite, determined and serious effort to move all merchandise regardless of costs—regardless of losses—“to start the new store new”—and the people know it.

The new spring goods—the guaranteed fine goods—the staple and desirable goods—EVERYTHING you need for spring and summer is here at definite savings of no less than 10%—average savings 25% to 35%—and many fine lots at HALF PRICE and less.

And that is why, just as fast as we quietly place out in many departments each day, new merchandise from reserve spring stocks, the people come right in and buy it, quickly. It is really a wonderful thing, this daily demonstration of public appreciation and faith in Rich's.

Don't buy anything you really do not need. But what you DO NEED and WILL NEED for spring and summer—come in and help yourself to these bona fide 10% to 50% savings.

All Silks, Woolens, 20%

—Think what that means! First of all, silks and woolens have been cut to the lowest prices and bolts marked according to these reductions. But that is not all! From these lowest prices, fully 20% is again deducted!

—Rich's, Main Floor

All Furniture, 10%, 25% to 50%

—Even below February Sale prices! Never such furniture reductions—EVERY piece of furniture from floor lamps to handsome dining room suites reduced from 10 to 50 per cent. Think of it!

All Women's Underwear, 10% to 33 1-3%

—Tables piled high,—Every piece of women's underwear drastically reduced! Lovely silk underwear for trousseaus—dainty cotton lingerie—all reduced from 10 to 33 1-3 per cent. Women are buying for the future—and wisely, too, at such savings!

All Luggage, 10% to 33 1-3%

—Not one reserved! All Hartmann, Never-break, and Mendel-Drucker Trunks. Dress and wardrobe styles. Steamer and full size. All travel bags, suit and overnight cases. And all hat boxes! —Moreover, Mothers are happily buying BABY CARRIAGES—at savings of 25% to 33 1-3%.

—Rich's, Basement

All Linens, 10% to 25%

Yes, even the finest imported Flemish linens,—Gold Medal and Moravian linens—15% to 25% less. Madeira linens cut 10% to 25%. Wamsutta Percale Sheets, reduced 10%. “Silver Bleach” and Round Thread Sheets, 15%.

—Rich's, Main Floor

All Rugs, Draperies, 10% to 33 1-3%

—Every rug, every yard of fine drapery and curtain material—EVERYTHING! Finest Wilton, Axminsters, Velvets,—every rug—even the famous Hardwick & Magee rugs, so seldom reduced for a sale. Don't wait.

—Rich's, Main Floor

All Men's Furnishings, 10% to 50%

—The Right Aisle from the Elevator back is crowded as never before—proving that men DO shop for themselves in Rich's Removal Sale. Shrewd common sense tells them that money spent brings larger returns. All shirts, underwear, night shirts and pajamas, 10% to 50% less.

Objects of Page Strongly Commended.

At the recent meeting of the Federated Churchwomen of Georgia the strength and influence of the organization was evidenced by reports of the widespread interest and cooperation in its publicity department. The various great denominational publications have strongly commended the objects of the Federated Churchwomen and quoted freely from their official page in The Atlanta Constitution, which they pronounce a notable movement in the assembling of news of woman's work in the religious world, and its wide publicity. Its effect is not only that of stimulating information, but a powerful factor in developing Christian unity through mutual understanding.

The page is now entering its second year of publicity and the splendid denominations, through their capable editors, have given noteworthy service in the religious world through its columns. It is earnestly hoped that those Christian bodies that have not yet presented their woman's activities on the page will, the coming year, extend the usefulness of the page and enrich its message by their contributions. The courtesy and cooperation of The Atlanta Constitution is highly valued by the thousands of church people in Georgia, who turn eagerly to its page each week and use it freely in their organizations and commend it in their state and local conventions.

STATE EDITOR.

An Enthusiastic Missionary Society

The Woman's Missionary society of Druid Hills Methodist church has just closed the most successful year in its history. Under the leadership of Mrs. W. A. Albright, president, and Mrs. A. L. Norris, vice president and chairman of circles, the work has progressed in every department. The pledge of $3,000 was more than met and met almost altogether without resorting to the usual means for raising money. The spirit of stewardship is being inculcated into the minds of the women and children. The subject of stewardship is presented at every meeting and at the various circle meetings and the number of tithers is increasing.

What we expended for charities during the past year in money and money values amounted to more than $4,600. The total budget for the year in money and money values amounted to approximately $10,000.

The secret of the success of the work is the untiring interest of the officers of the presidents. With her wealth of experience and deep consecration she lends her services to every officer and chairman in perfecting every detail of every department and sets before the woman a vision of the great purpose of the organization, which is the purpose of God.

Mrs. A. L. Norris, who has for years the beloved president, is working directly with the circles and with her tact and sympathy is developing efficiency in leadership among the women.

Another cause of progress is the fact that so many women are directly engaged in the work. There are over one hundred women who are actively responsible for some feature of the work and all seem to be magnifying the importance of it.

Bible study and mission study are in the hands of special committees, who plan the work to be carried through the circles. This plan of study was followed last year and proved to be a decided success. The circles are entering upon it enthusiastically this year.

The work for the new year has been systematized and extended. One duty that has been added to the circles' activities is that of pastor's assistant. This is proving to be of great value in supplementing his work. A new circle is being organized composed of out-of-town members.

One point of emphasis for the year is the study of prayer with a view towards bringing that power more and more into the life of the individual and into the work of the society. The third and a constructive program is being planned. It is the purpose to make every meeting a distinctively spiritual one.

A new committee on membership is working out plans whereby the membership of the society may be increased by working directly through the circles.

At the first meeting of the year the following officers and chairmen were installed by the pastor:

President, Mrs. W. A. Albright; vice president, Mrs. A. L. Norris; recording secretary, Mrs. A. M. Pierce; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. L. Eakes; treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Eakes; Misses, Mrs. L. L. Eakes, Mrs. W. M. Nichols; superintendent social service, Mrs. M. M. Davies; superintendent juniors, Mrs. Homer Thompson; superintendent young people, Mrs. W. M. Thurman; superintendent supplies, Mrs. N. C. McPherson; superintendent mission study, Mrs. E. B. Parker; superintendent publicity, Mrs. B. C. Cleary; singer for "Voice," Mrs. W. F. Chester; librarian, Mrs. A. R. Logan; circle chairmen, Misses L. N. Stowe, W. H. Wyne, T. L. Thrower, W. T. Hunicutt, O. H. Williams, L. K. Starr, C. E. Eney, J. B. Robbins, M. L. Holmes, E. L. Roberts, L. J. Hulsey, O. H. Wilson, O. O. Rae, W. A. Brown, F. R. Varnbrough and Miss Olive Robertson.

Kirkwood Baptist. The junior department of the Kirkwood Baptist church had an unusually interesting service last Sunday morning. "Blessed by the pure in heart" was the keynote. Many of the older juniors expressed a desire to have Christ reign in their hearts supreme. Thus the dear little red "valentine hearts" served a dual purpose.

News From St. Philip's. The social service chapter, under the able direction of Mrs. Dora Armstrong, is collecting bedding and linens for the DuBois Memorial Training school which was burned to the ground. This is the third school at Searcy to burn within a very short time.

The first union meeting of the Young People's Service league of all Episcopal churches was held February 10 at the cathedral. After supper, at which about 175 young people were present, they adjourned to the Sunday school room where they were entertained by the president of the Y. P. S. L. joint diocesan assembly and also the president of the provincial assembly. Bishop Mikell spoke to the young folks, much to everyone's delight, for we all love to hear our bishop talk.

The Thursday Night Girls entertained the veterans of public school No. 48 with a Valentine party on the 14th. Every boy who could huddle down to the hut was present and helped to add to the merriment of the evening.

The Y. W. A. of the cathedral held its meeting at the home of Miss Mattie Witham, 153 McLendon avenue. This meeting was a surprise to Miss Witham, who has just moved into her new home.

Twilight Club
Is Entertained. Miss Rosebud Liley and Mrs. Liley were joint hostesses to the Twilight club Monday evening.

Those present were Misses Alice and Hattie Jones, Miss Rosebud Liley, Mrs. E. M. Griffin, Miss Mary Nash, Mrs. F. J. Liley, Mrs. T. M. White, Dr. R. W. Thorpe, Dr. Gao Robertson, Dr. John Zachary, Dr. J. Liley.

Church Society
Holds Meeting. The Missionary society of St. Paul's church met on Monday, February 18. Mrs. W. C. McDonald presided. The Rev. Mr. Houston, missionary to Brazil, was the speaker for the afternoon.

Declares Success In Mission Study Depends on Leaders

MRS. AUSTIN CROUCH.

Mission study chairman of the Baptist W. M. U. of the Atlanta association.

Mrs. Austin Crouch announces a meeting of more than usual interest which she has planned to take place at the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church Friday, February 29, for the purpose of training mission study leaders for the women's missionary societies throughout the city.

Since Mrs. Crouch's appointment

as mission study chairman for the B.

W. M. U. of the Atlanta association, she has shown herself not only capable of wise planning, but of splendid leadership.

Mrs. Crouch has realized that the greatest requisite for "putting over" the mission study program in societies and in churches is to be able to secure capable teachers or leaders.

So often when a leader is needed, the huckneyed, "We would if we could," response is the only one to be heard.

In order to afford the necessary training for such willing workers,

Mrs. Crouch has put her whole heart and brain into making the training class for mission study leaders the greatest possible success.

College Members Don Fancy Costumes at Fraternity Ball

Noted Weddings Will Be Feature Of Week's Events

Among the prominent events of the week in which great interest is manifested is the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Ernest Campbell, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Campbell, and H. Clark Bruner, of Buffalo, N. Y., which will be solemnized at 8:30 o'clock, p. m., at the home of the bride's parents on Ponce de Leon avenue. A brilliant wedding reception will follow. On the same evening in Athens, Ga., will occur the marriage of Miss Louise Hinton Morton and Edwin Marcus Cole, Jr., which is of statewide prominence, uniting two of Georgia's most distinguished families. Miss Elizabeth Westfield Dimmock, daughter of Mrs. Albert Eugene Dimmock, will become the bride of James Morgan Bloodworth, Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Two elaborate dances Friday evening will be attended by members of the college contingent and will be unusually brilliant functions. The Alpha Nu chapter of the Theta Chi fraternity of Georgia Tech will be hosts at a Leap Year supper-dance at the Druid Hills Golf club, while Ray Knight Daniel and Perry LeConte Anderson will entertain at a formal dance at the Joseph Habersham chapter house, assembling a series of social affairs during two hundred guests.

Miss Beatrice Hamlett, whose marriage to Thomas Heyward Simmons will be a social event of March 4, will be the central figure at a series of social affairs during the week.

"The Parade of the Lady Dolls," Tuesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at Muse's will be of interest to the very young set, in view of the prominence of the participants and the stunning costumes which they will wear.

Two cultured events of distinction will rank among the week's attractions. Carlos Salzedo, noted harpist, with Marie Miller and Elise Sorelle, will be heard in concert Tuesday afternoon, February 26, at the Piedmont Driving club, at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Fine Arts club.

Ethel Priscilla Poiter, interpreter of literature, will be presented by the Drama league Friday afternoon, in three one-act plays.

Georgia's noted author, Cora Harris, will be the guest of the Emory Woman's club, at its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Hamlett—Simmons Wedding Plans.

The marriage plans of Miss Beatrice Carson Hamlett, daughter of Mrs. J. Edgar Hamlett, and Thomas Heyward Simmons are of cordial interest to a large circle of friends who will be interested in their approaching marriage on Tuesday, March 4 at 6 o'clock. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride, 115 Inman circle, and will be performed by Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

A program of nuptial music will be rendered on the violin and harp by Mrs. Kuhnert Mueller and Mrs. William Griffith.

The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, L. Carson Hamlett, and will be attended by Miss Mildred Davis as maid of honor and Miss Kathryn Page Edwards, her cousin, as bridesmaid. Little Helen Johnson, young daughter of Mrs. Rockwell Johnson will be the flower girl, and the ribbon bearers will be the twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall Miller, Sebastian and John Miller.

Mr. Hamlett will entertain at a reception following the ceremony. Miss Esther Newell will keep the bride's book and Misses Elizabeth Reynolds and Laura Bartholomew will preside at the punch bowls.

Miss Hamlett will be feted at a series of pre-nuptial affairs during the week. Tuesday afternoon the kindergarten alumnae, of which she is a member, will entertain at a tea in her honor at the McRee tea room on Peachtree street.

Miss Elizabeth Reynolds will compliment her at a bridge-tea at her home on Inman circle Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Laura Bartholomew will entertain at Miss Hamlett's Friday afternoon with a bridge-tea at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Miss Mildred Davis will be hostess at a bridge-tea Saturday afternoon at her home on Peachtree street for Miss Hamlett.

Morton—Cole Wedding To Be Brilliant Event.

A social event of this week centering the interest of a large number of friends throughout the state will be the marriage of Miss Louise Hinton Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John White Morton, and Edwin Cole, Jr., of Newman and Atlanta. The ceremony will take place Wednesday evening a 8:30 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian church. Dr. Eugene L. Hill, the pastor, will officiate and the musical program will be in charge of Hugh Leslie Hodgson, who will play the wedding marches.

Miss Morton will have as her maid of honor her only sister, Miss Margaret Morton. She will be given in marriage by her father.

The bridesmaids will include a group of lovely young women: Miss Hazel Hodgson, Miss Susan Souder and Miss Caroline Davis, of Athens; Miss Anne Hinton, of New York; Miss Anne Converse, of Valdosta, and Miss Elizabeth Miller, of Chattooga, N. C.

Mr. Cole will have as his best man his brother, Raymond Cole, of Newman. The groomsmen will include George Rainey, of Atlanta; R. D. Cole, of Atlanta; Dr. Pinckney Snelling, of Baltimore; Hunter Price, of Ellerton, Ga.; Morgan McNeill, of Marietta, and Howard Cutler, of Atlanta.

The ushers will be Charles Phinizy, Robert White, John Welsh, Walter Jones, Audley Morton and Harold Hinton.

A reception will follow the wedding at the home of the bride on Milledge avenue, the guests to number about one hundred and seventy-five.

Miss Morton is the charming and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John White Morton, of Athens, and has been a feted belle since completing her education. She attended Lucy Cobb and the National Cathedral in Washington, later traveling in Europe.

Mr. Cole is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cole, of Newman, the family being one of Georgia's oldest and most representative. He graduated from Georgia Tech in 1918 with high honors. He is one of Atlanta's popular young business men, holding an important position in the insurance world.

Miss Overshiner was presented with a piece of lingerie and the top score and consolation were French novelties.

Miss Overshiner was gowned in tan crepe, embroidered in self tones.

Miss Jones wore a model of green flat crepe trimmed with cream lace.

Mrs. K. L. Jones assisted her daughter in entertaining. She wore a becoming model of black brocaded crepe.

The guests included Miss Susette Holmes, Miss Dorothy Morrison, Miss Gladys McClelland, Miss Louise Bailey, Miss Dorothy Wheeler, Miss Evelyn Malcolm, Miss Edith Reed, Miss Frances Morrison, Miss Eugenia Holland, Miss Carol Green, Miss Frances Simmons, Mrs. Glenn Ryman, Mrs. Cyril Vieter, Mrs. Edgar Hunnicut.

Miss King will wed Mr. Yeates.

The engagement announced today tapers were in white alternated with silver comports filled with white and green minis.

The honor guest was presented with the noted pianist.

Miss King is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee King, her younger sister being Miss Roberta King.

Peter King, who served under General Lee, and the late Henry Augustine Hughes, of Richmond, Va., are the grandfathers of the bride-elect. She is the niece of Edwin Hughes, the noted pianist.

Miss King was educated at the Kentucky Home school and Miss Mason's. She is a talented musician, having studied music at Piedmont college under Miss S. P. Spencer, of New England.

Mr. Yeates is the son of Mrs. Julia Yeates and the late W. S. Yeates. His father was state geologist for Georgia and was one of Atlanta's most renowned and influential citizens. Mrs. Yeates, the groom's mother, is one of Atlanta's most cultured and well known women. She is prominent in a number of women's organizations

Sewanee Club Sings and Plays Here on Friday

Atlantans are looking forward with keen interest to the appearance of the Sewanee Glee club, Friday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club. The boxes will be gaily decorated for the occasion with the Sewanee colors and occupying the boxes will be a number of Sewanee alumni and the younger college set.

The members of the glee club will arrive late Friday afternoon, when they will be met by a number of their former collegemates and escorted to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Buchanan, on Peachtree street, where they will be entertained at an informal buffet supper. Following the performance of Friday evening, the club will attend the Theta Chi fraternity dance at the Druid Hills Golf club.

Club Dinner-Dance Is Bright Event.

The dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving club Saturday evening was of more than ordinary interest, assembling an unusually large number of club members and friends, many out-of-town guests and distinguished visitors.

One of the largest parties was that entertained by Miss Wilmette Perdue in compliment to Miss Ernest Campbell and H. Clark Bruner, whose wedding will be a prominent event of Wednesday evening. The guests were the members of the wedding party and out-of-town visitors, and included Miss Campbell, Miss Carol Bruner, of Columbia, Pa.; Mrs. Marshall Beaufit, of Greenville, S. C.; Miss Marian Smith, Dr. and Mrs. William E. Campbell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rogers, Forney Wylie, Henry Walker Bagley, Melville Campbell, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Dining with Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shivers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nunnally, Mrs. Florine Hardwick Smith, of Cedarhurst; Mr. Brunet, of Chicago; Mr. Adams, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Colquitt were hosts at a large party complimenting Mrs. Harry Aubrey Toulmin, of Dayton, Ohio, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Brooks Morgan, and Miss Sallie Elaine Deatheridge, of Kansas City, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Hurt, Jr. Covers were placed for 22.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Withington entertained a small group of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crandall dined with a congenial group.

Others entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slicer, Alec S. Hopkins, Al Thornwell and Henry Tompkins.

Mah Jongg Party Is Given at Club.

Mrs. Charles Humphrey entertained at a beautiful Mah Jongg party on Saturday afternoon at the Druid Hills Golf club.

The game was played in the palm room which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The prizes were exquisitely made sachets for the guests.

The guests included Mrs. William Mallory, of Long Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Stephen Chamberlin, the attractive guests of Major General and Mrs. David C. Shanks, Mrs. Hugh A. Parker, Mrs. Thomas W. Darragh, Mrs. Jesse Gaston, Mrs. Moor N. Falls, Mrs. Charles Quigley, Mrs. Otto G. Trunk, Mrs. Inman, Mrs. George H. McManus, Mrs. James Regan and Miss Marion Darragh.

Mrs. A. W. Rapp Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. W. N. Skyles was hostess at a beautiful bridge party on Friday afternoon at the Woman's club complimenting Mrs. A. W. Rapp, of Clarksburg, the attractive guest of Mrs. Melville S. Jarvis, at Fort McPherson.

The game was played in the sun parlor and the flowers carried out the color scheme of red and white. The score cards were handpainted miniature colonial dames, and were the artistic handwork of Miss Eleanor Skyles, the lovely daughter of Captain and Mrs. Skyles.

Twenty-four guests were invited for the afternoon and the top score prize for each table was a pair of silk hose. Mrs. Rapp was presented with a guest prize and Mrs. David C. Shanks cut the consolation.

The guests included, besides the honor guest, Mrs. David C. Shanks, Mrs. William Mallory, of Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Stephen Chamberlin, of Fort Benning; Mrs. Melville S. History Classes Are Entertained.

A joint meeting of Atlanta's three oldest history classes, the Every Saturday, the History Class and the Nineteenth Century, was held at the home of Mrs. Charles J. Haden, on Peachtree street, Saturday morning, and proved of widest enjoyment.

Dr. Carter Helen Jones made an interesting talk on "The Romance of a New Republic." He spoke of the dramatic little states that now form Czecho-Slovakia. He traced the story of Christianity from the date of the visit of Paul and Silas to Thessalonica in the early part of the first century, step by step, to the days of John Huss, and thence into the heroic struggle of the oppressed people of Bohemia for liberty in the world war and the new life that came with their freedom.

The occasion was of delightful social interest as well.

The house was decorated with

Kettledrum

Bridge Party.

The kettledrum of the Habersham chapter, A. A. R., at their hall on Fifteenth street Friday, February 29, will be one of the largest affairs of the month, assembling several hundred prominent women for a delightful afternoon. Each table will have a special prize and many handsome articles will be drawn. Phone Mrs. B. C. Ward, chairman, Hemlock 4477; Mrs. W. S. Coleman, Hemlock 1730, or Mrs. J. C. Gentry, Hemlock 2362, for reservations.

Miss Lindsey Is Hostess.

A delightful event of Saturday evening was the bridge-supper at which Miss Estelle Lindsey entertained at the home of her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Williams, in Brookwood Mills, in compliment to Miss Elizabeth Dimmock and James Bartow Bloodworth, whose marriage will be solemnized February 28.

A color note of crimson and white prevailed in the decoration of the rooms where the game was played. Carnations in shades of white and crimson were placed in vases around the rooms. The prizes were handkerchiefs and bridge novelties.

Miss Lindsey was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Williams.

Clubwomen and Merchants Confer for Mutual Profit

Women and their shopping have so long been a perfect stimulant to the humor of the funny papers that it must have been a shock to professional manufacturers of jokers when the National Retail Dry Goods association, which surely must know women shoppers as they are, proved that they take women seriously by holding a first conference with organized women recently in New York, this conference looking to permanent cooperation for mutual benefit.

To all women, this coming together should be interesting; to club-women, especially so, since it was a committee from the General Federation of Women's Clubs which has taken this first step with the dry goods association towards a program which should mean less waste, and therefore more profit, to the merchant, and less waste and therefore more thrift for the buyer.

It all began last summer at the national council meeting of the federation in Atlanta and comes under Mrs. John D. Sherman's department—applied education. The program, as mapped out by the federation, would provide for—

- 1. The federation to give information to the merchants as to the (a). Difficulties encountered in buying.
- (b). Information women would like to have in regard to overhead and distribution costs that determine selling prices.
- (c). The kind of clothing sensible women wish to find in stores.

- 2. Merchants' associations to give women help in buying by:

- (a). Issuing leaflets, telling facts about textiles, food, fuel, etc.

- (b). Giving such facts to be embodied in bulletins for women's organizations.

(c). Providing trained advisors in stores to help women plan before buying.

(d). Studying buying habits of the average woman and simplifying store practice, so as to prevent her losing time and energy in shopping.

It sounds fine, and every thoughtful woman will watch the proceedings, which will be worked out by the two national organizations this month with keen interest.

The provision for "trained advisors to help women plan before buying," that in itself, if it can be effected, will make the conference worth while. Even the merchant who wants to sell his goods knows that when a woman buys without plan, she usually gets the wrong thing and is dissatisfied. She then associates her dissatisfaction, not with her own reckless manner of purchasing, but with the store from which she bought the thing that she realizes too late is unsuited to her wishes or her needs. Either she must put up with it and always be dissatisfied, or buy again. But does she make her second purchase from the store at which she made the first? She does not. Associating her dissatisfaction with the first store, she avoids that store and seeks new ground. But from the store at which she buys wisely, she buys often.

"Providing for the kind of clothes sensible women wish to find in stores." That's another good thought. Uniformity is one means towards thrift in that it saves multiplication of designs, thus avoids chance of losses, and therefore, makes unnecessary the protection for the merchant of higher prices.

But the same provision holds out also something to the women—that, acting together they may be able to convince the merchant more generally of that which, as individuals, they have not succeeded in convincing him; namely, that preferring as many of them do, the convenience of the ready-to-wear garment; yet, while they are not willing to be dowdy, they resent having nothing to choose from but stranglegold skirts, when that is the extreme of style, or skirts with four-inch vamps, when the anatomy of the foot and the comfort of the wearer would suggest that shoes have now come back, too.

"They (American women) are the shrewdest buyers in the world," says The New York Times editorially of the new alliance. "By experience, instinct and training, they know bargains. They are quick to detect impositions. They take pride in making their money wife's place as a buyer usually returns in a truly humbled spirit. But the fact that women themselves, through their federation of clubs, are proposing to work with the dry goods men, in order to bring buying closer to scientific perfection, is a notable sign of the times.

Miss Wheatcroft Writes Article On Library Commission

February is library month for Georgia federation and Washington's birthday, the 22nd, is the special day on which all club members in their friends are asked to gather their books they can secure and pass them on to those who are in need of them.

Mrs. W. Texx Bankston sent out some weeks ago, a strong appeal for intensive work along the special line of children's books in rural schools. Club women promised to put in 50,000 books into the hands of Georgia rural children in two years' time. All club district presidents last year and Mrs. Bankston urges that the full pledges be fulfilled this year with as many as possible placed during the present month.

They are functioning in being able to offer for the consideration of Georgia club women in libraries, the story of the work of the Georgia library commission for the past year for which we are greatly indebted to the secretary of the commission, Miss Bessie Wheatcroft.

The information thus afforded is of great value and all club women will find it worth while to preserve this sheet for future reference.

Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and the state library commission work hand in hand in a cause which is fit for its slogan: "Books for the Boys."

BESSIE SHAW STAFFORD, Editor pro tem.

It gives me great pleasure to accept, to the request of the club page editor for facts concerning the Georgia library commission for the past year.

The commission consists of five members appointed by the governor, the present chairman being, Mrs. John K. Ottley, Barker Carnegie Library, Atlanta, Mrs. Mary B. Brantley, Atlanta, Mrs. H. Mills, Jenkinsburg, T. S. Mason, Hartwell; Miss Bessie Wheatcroft, executive secretary, Mrs. Edithy Davis, asst.

The function of the Georgia library commission is to promote and stimulate library work in the state. It is the standard of public library service for people and communities otherwise without library service. The field activities, including advisory, instructional and publishing work, and traveling libraries, including books service and reference work.

Efficient field service necessitated keeping in close touch with the libraries already organized in the state. The commission, during the year, visited the public libraries in Atlanta, Marietta, Roswell, Gainesville, Montezuma, Dalton, Cartersville, (twice), Cordele, Fitzgerald, Valley (twice), Kingston (twice), Lawrenceville, Union, Winder, Weybridge, Yatesville, and Zebulon.

The commission, during the year, visited the public libraries in Atlanta, Marietta, Roswell, Gainesville, Dalton, Cartersville, (twice), Cordele, Fitzgerald, Valley (twice), Kingston (twice), Lawrenceville, Union, Winder, Weybridge, Yatesville, and Zebulon.

The commission and the library division of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, under Cummings, Ellijay, Valley, Hiram, Rome, At each place the book collection was examined and advice given in caring for and maintaining the books. The Masons, Y. M. C. A., library, and Buter High school library were organized and instruction given to the librarians in caring for the books.

In addition to the personal visits, the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, secretary has corresponded with numerous clubs, and the library division, the school library, and sent out lists of supplies, book lists for purchase and pamphlets on school library service. The Georgia library visitors include the University of Georgia, State Normal School, State College of Agriculture, Athens, Wesleyan College, Macon, and Darlington, college, Young Harris, college, Young Harris, college, Young Harris, college.

Book Service—Traveling Libraries. The commission maintains a system of traveling libraries, which are in use in many rural communities for schools, clubs, institutions and other organizations, otherwise without adequate library service. They were sent out in 1923 in answer to 5,000

Twentieth Century Club of Boston Holds Meeting

The Twentieth Century club of Boston, Ga., was delightfully entertained on February 8, by Mrs. J. A. Mallette. The club room was artistically decorated with jounqis and maiden hair ferns for the occasion. There was a good attendance of members.

Miss Harmon, librarian, gave an engaging report of the library work.

Letters of interest to the club were read by corresponding secretary.

One was from Herbert Hoover, relative to the "Better American Homes Movement."

Mrs. E. P. Ward was asked to take up this line of work in connection with civics and citizenship.

Report of work done by county library men was given by Robert as follows: Instructive visits, 2; follow up visits, 13; absentee calls, 168; committees attended, 2; office interviews, 15; hours in office, 54; schools visited, 12; defects corrected, 36; parents consulted at school, 9; class talks, 19; toothbrush drills, 22; home hygiene and care of sick classes, 4.

The most important business considered by the club was the collection of gifts for ex-soldiers. In the second district ward of Augusta hospital quite a nice bunch of useful articles were brought forward, consisting of cakes, candies, sox, nuts, chewing gum for which Mrs. J. W. Taylor, chairman of the friendly relations to soldiers committee, thanked the club ladies.

Program topic for the afternoon, "Georgia," Paper "Resources of Georgia" read by Miss Harmon for Mrs. Clegg, was very good.

Miss Barrow's paper, "Facts of Georgia," was very instructive as well as full of humor. Music for program was furnished by Mrs. Claud Rountree, Mrs. H. M. Groover and Miss Virginia Moody.

A most enjoyable half hour was spent during which Mrs. Mallette, visited by Mesdames Groover, Mcintosh and Norton served a salad course, requests. This shows an increase of 247 books and 1,217 requests over the 1922 statistics, so we feel that the work of the library is growing and developing faster known as fast as the present appropriation will permit.

Books have gone to 540 libraries in 120 of the 130 counties of Georgia.

During the year ten new and seven new post offices during the year resulted in letters from the commission office giving evidence of how the people in the state appreciate the help received through this connection.

The following expressions of appreciation come from borrowers:

"I am amazed at the facilities afforded us by the library, and the wonderful work there."—Clab Womack.

"Will write you a few lines to let you know how much I enjoyed 'Tom Sawyer' it is the best book I have ever read. Please send me more."—Sister.

"All the books proved very helpful in getting the material I needed; thanking you for sending them."

"You do not know what a great help you were to me in writing my paper and I am very much obliged to you. I am so glad to have you as a member of our club. I told my paper was the best read in a long time. Thanks to you."—Club Woman.

"You do not know how much you have done for us. We are very grateful to you for your help."

Parent Teacher Clubs Benefit Students

The work of the Parent-Teacher association is for the benefit of the student rather than the upkeep of the school.

It is a mistaken ideal for the association to do the work of the city. A liaison between teacher and parent for the benefit of the pupil is the true purpose of the P.T.A.

Therefore any deed that helps a child get his education with the least cause for notice of his lack of material equipment is a great service of the association.

Some grammar schools there is an exchange of clothing, effected very tactfully and gently; in some instances lunches are so offered that one child is never cognizant of the fact that his next door neighbor may be the recipient of the P.T.A. treat.

And so the Girls' High school hopes to work out a plan whereby girls, whose families are in distress because of illness or sorrow, may be able to finish their course of study with the aid of a few dollars to enable them to buy the necessary books, perhaps to furnish a little emergency car-fare, or to help with a graduation dress at the last minute.

Just a fund that many help a girl to pass over a crisis without loss of pride or loss of joy as a member of the student body; that may indeed, mean a diploma, a fitting start toward the beginning of a useful life.

W. A. Sutton Speaks To Daniel O'Keefe Junior High P.T.A.

The Parent-Teacher monthly meeting of the Daniel O'Keefe Junior High on February 18 was a great success in spite of extremely inclement weather.

The meeting opened with prayer by the Rev. W. G. Clinton. Mrs. C. L. Williamson, president, disposed of the business quickly so as to give plenty of time to the speaker of the evening, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools.

His talk met with the same enthusiastic response that is always given to him. He mentioned the fact that the P.T.A. work of the high schools is very different from that of the grammar schools, due to the fact that the members lived in many districts instead of in just the locality in which the school was located.

He congratulated the association on its excellent arrangements.

He stressed education, showing that the phenomenal success of the state of North Carolina is due to the fact that education has been put above everything else. He quoted figures showing that Atlanta spends so much less on its pupils, per capita, than other cities in the city, and yet spends two to three times as much, some spending even more.

He said emphatically that it is not fair for Atlanta and Georgia children not to have the same advantages as the children of other states; that the man who neglects the education of the children of his state "betrays the soul of posterity."

Mr. Hastings, principal, reported the splendid success of "stunt" night on February 15. He said that $100 of the amount received was to be given to the Lee Memorial fund; that he hoped this would be the first of one of the first—gifts to be given from the schools.

Miss Wesley, assistant principal, spoke of the large number of lost articles in the "lost and found" room urging the parents to have missing things insured for.

Mr. Hancock, president of the board of education, and Mr. Slatte, vice president, were present and gave greetings, as well as Dr. Ballard, state superintendent of schools.

A social hour followed the meeting.

Paris Night Life for Background.

At the Howard theater starting Monday Pola Negri will be seen in her latest Paramount production, "Shadows of Paris." This picture has all the qualities of a loaded gun turned directly at the audience. There will be a finger trembling over the trigger all the time and suspense will keep people on the edge of their seats. In this picture there are scenes of magnificent Paris salons, drawing rooms where Pola Negri wears gowns which have not known their equal in motion pictures; under world dens where we see the Apaches enjoying their wild dances; and the birds upon the upper classes.

The audience will thrill with apprehension, when Pola Negri, as the wife of the Minister of the Interior, is almost unminked before her wealthy friends in her own drawing room during a brilliant affair, and while she is dancing with the film star, who has hair trigger situations. It is also relieved throughout with enlivening touches of humor. From a moment of nerve-wracking fear, the audience will suddenly let itself go in a flood of welcome laughter, only to have that burst of peril and drama again.

Without a question, of a doubt "Shadows of Paris" is the best picture Pola Negri has made as an American actress. She is seen again as the fiery, passionate tigress fighting for the man she loves. The supporting cast is one of excellent players. Huntly Gordon is seen as the Minister of the Interior and as Pola Negri's husband, Charles de Roche is cast as a Paris Apache and Pola Negri's sweetheart, Adolphe Menjou a secretary to Huntly Gordon gives an excellent performance as the villain.

The overture for the week will be "Midshipmen's Cruise," which is a picture of our future admirals taking a trip around the world, will be shown to the tune of "Mama Goes Where Papa Goes," especially arranged by Enrico Leide and played as it would be played in the various countries shown in the picture.

The comedy is "Smile, Please," a Mack Sennett comedy wherein beautiful bathing girls and laughter predominate.

Tourneur Leaves Hospital.

Maurice Tourneur, who for the past two weeks has been confined to the good Samaritan hospital, has left that institution and plunged into production work for "The White Moth."

At the entrance to the hospital a brand-new (Packard) coupe awaited Mr. Tourneur, purchased while he was in the hospital.

He is supervising the building of several of the more pretentious sets for "The White Moth" at the United Studios, and, according to Alton St. John, in placing the finishing touches on the scenario. Production on the picture, which is to feature Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle, is to be started in the very near future. First National will release the film.

"Torment" Release Soon.

"Torment," Maurice Tourneur's latest photoplay, will be released early next month, according to Alton St. John, in charge of First National pictures, Tourneur's producing organization, yesterday. With scenes from the Russian revolution and the Japanese earthquake, it is replete with thrills. In the cast are Owen Moore, Bessie Love, Joseph Kilgour, Jean Hersholt, Maude George, Morgan Wallace, George Cooper and others.

"Poet and Peasant" by the Howard concert orchestra, Enrico Leide and Alex Keese, conducting.

An added novelty entitled "Gallery of Living Portraits." In this picture George Faust is shown in various facial expressions registering for the camera all the emotions known to picturedom.

The two Ossmanns, world's famous banjoists, will be held over for the second week. These boys have been a favorite attraction at the Howard and by popular demand they will be held over for a second week. For their program this week they will play "You Can't Make a Fool Out of Me," written by the man who wrote, "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree." It is a very popular number, one that is destined to be a hit.

Their next number will be "The American Patriot," and as an encore they will play "The Dixie Medley," by request.

"The Midshipmen's Cruise," which is a picture of our future admirals taking a trip around the world, will be shown to the tune of "Mama Goes Where Papa Goes," especially arranged by Enrico Leide and played as it would be played in the various countries shown in the picture.

The comedy is "Smile, Please," a Mack Sennett comedy wherein beautiful bathing girls and laughter predominate.

'ST. ELMO' NOVEL IS NOW FEATURE PICTURE

Writer of Rialto Picture
Theme Was Known Everywhere.

Few writers can establish a record showing that their novel after fifty-seven years of being on the market remains a best seller. And yet that is true of Augusta J. Evans, author of "St. Elmo."

What kind of woman was Miss Evans?

The author of "St. Elmo" was born May 4, 1835, near Columbus, Ga. "The Queen City of the Chattahoochee." As a girl, she attended the St. Elmo Institute for girls which, with its green oak grove and beautiful lake was a model for the school in the book.

Her family moved to Galveston, Texas, when she was a child, going later to San Antonio. She was tutored by her mother and spent two years of her life in the Main Plaza near the Alamo where her father had his general store. Augusta lived in the shadow of the historic mission park where Santa Anna had his headquarters. It was here she gathered the material for her first novel, "Inez," written in slow stages in her little bedroom at night. The material of the book had to do with the history of the Lone Star state and the defense of the Alamo, with the vivid heroism of the defenders of Texas described interestingly. The public, however, took little interest in the story of Texas woven around the personality of Inez, a fifteen-year-old girl.

At the close of two years, the ambitious Augusta turned to California and had made her home in Mobile, Ala. Not discouraged by the chilly reception accorded her first literary effort, the girl, in 1859, completed her second novel, "Beulah," which was followed in 1864 by her war novel, "Marie."

"Beulah" was a success from its publication. A Confederate captain, opened near her home in Mobile, Ala., shortly after the opening of the Civil War, was named Cann Bush in her honor. Miss Evans served the soldiers as nurse, cook, and entertainer at the hospital camps.

"Marie," her war novel, published in 1864 by West & Johnson, in Richmond, Va., was printed on wrapping paper. The Federals captured the books, however, and burned them all except one which remained unburned. A friend who delivered the book to Lippincott's, by whom it was brought out, it, too, scored a literary bull's eye.

Miss Evans abandoned her writing during the war. She was too busy with her war work. After the war, Miss Evans returned to her writing again, and this followed in rapid succession, "Vashita," "St. Elmo," "Intellec," and "Tiberius."

"St. Elmo" was the biggest hit of any book from Miss Evans' prolific pen. It created a literary sensation throughout the country. Towns, steamboats and hotels were named after it, and "St. Elmo punch" became a popular beverage throughout the south. Even today, as a large, steady seller, it holds its own with other books.

In 1868, Miss Evans married Lorenzo M. Wilson, president of the Mobile & Montana railroad. They lived on the Spring Hill shell road near Mobile. Following her husband's death in 1879, Mrs. Wilson returned to her writing, under the name of Augusta J. Evans Wilson.

Rudolph Valentino is leading a strenuous life these days. He arrives at the Paramount Long Island studio to receive his first fencing lesson. He can get in two hours of fencing practice before the start of camera work. He is receiving instruction from Professor Martinez Castello, of the New York Athletic club, as his role in "Monsieur Beaumarchais" requires that he be the "best swordsman in all France."

Miss Evans abandoned her writing during the war. She was too busy with her war work. After the war, Miss Evans returned to her writing again, and this followed in rapid succession, "Vashita," "St. Elmo," "Intellec," and "Tiberius."

RICHARD BARTHELMESS METROPOLITAN IN '21'

Dorothy Mackail Leads Strong Supporting Cast.

"Twenty-One," a John S. Robertson production, starring the popular Richard Barthelmess, will be the First National picture at the Metropolitan theater next week beginning with Dorothy Mackail portraying the role of a poor young factory girl with whom the wealthy young hero of the story falls in love and for whose sake he runs away from home to the city to gain independence as a taxicab driver, is one more to be seen as Dick's leading lady. Others interpreting important parts in the picture story of the year are the author, an Joe King, Dorothy Cummings, Elsie Lawson, Bradley Barker, Ivan Simpson, Nellie Parker Spaulding and Helen Tracy. "Twenty-One" is the first modern story in which Barthelmess has appeared since "Fury," his two intervening vehicles, "The Flying Blade" and "The Fighting Blade," having been costume period pictures, which required long hair and swords. In this newest production, which is said to be one of the best vehicles yet given the star, Richard enjoys the luxury of a haircut.

Special pictures of the Business Men's Club, the musical department, by George Matheson will be presented this week in connection with many novelties. As an added attraction the Rainbow orchestra has been added to the program.

Conductor Risinger has reached the pinnacle of popular musical entertainment in this week's program at the Metropolitan, where he will present the Metropolitan Symphony orchestra in Wagner's Overture to "The Flying Dutchman," perhaps the most dramatic of this composer's descriptive overtures and on the same program the Attan's first exemplification of the "Paul Whiteman" style in "The Rainbow Orchestra" with Calvin Roffe directing. The "Rainbow Orchestra" has many features that are new, among them being, first of all, a complete instrumentation of ten men, the same number used by Whiteman in most of the Victoria music. Mr. Roffe has performed an organization of men who made a study of music for years, from a professional standpoint. His arrangements are original and skillful, and his work is characterized by a marvelous precision of time and of the use of instruments heretofore unknown in the "big" dance orchestra. The Rainbow orchestra will feature "Twelve O'Clock at Night," "Nights in the Woods," "Going South," and "A Song for Sale" with some of the most novel and startling stage settings ever seen in an Atlanta theater.

In his musical score for the feature Mr. Risinger has used "Twilight

Cast.

A story of red-blooded he-men, built around a locale of the great cattle country in the days when the restraining hand of civilization had been laid but lightly upon the wide open spaces of the west, will be re-told this week at Loew's Grand theater in the presentation of "The Virginian" as the feature screen attraction of the program.

"The Virginian" for more than a quarter of a century has been acclaimed by theater-goers as the premier among speaking stage melodramas. Its picturization will be heralded as a distinct and enjoyable piece of cinema art, entirely worthy of the great cast, which has been chosen to enact it.

In the title role is Kenneth Harlan, while Florence Vidor, Russel Simpson, Pat O'Malley, Raymond Hatton as a score of others well known to picture fans will form the cast.

Briefly it is the story of a young cattleman who finds himself desperately in love with the pretty schoolmistress of the community.

He is honest, and therefore the sworn enemy of the host of cattle rustlers who are reaping a rich harvest in the Wyoming country. They vow vengence against him.

They warn him—he must leave that section by a certain time, or—

His love for the girl and her pleadings urge him to do so, for it is only for her he should protect himself and her. But there is no coward in him, and he shrinks from yielding to their demands. So he sends back the answer:

"Keep your hand on your gun, for when I see you, I shoot."

And from here through the rapid development to the climax of a highly dramatic action, the story runs on.

You're bound to like "The Virginian."

And it's all because of Betty Compson, featured with Mr. Dix, and Bert Lytell, Larry Durrell and Wally Walrus in this Joseph Henabery production, which will be shown at the Howard theater on March 10 for a full week.

As it is, the love motive and the orchestra, electrical accompaniment, in "Literary Digest's" "Fun From the Press" will be "Take, Oh Take Those Lips Away."

It's a great story—"The Stranger"—a picturization of "The First and the Last," by John Galsworthy.

LEAKY GAS-PIPE KILLS MOTHER AND CHILDREN

The Great Moment

Watervliet, N. Y., February 23.—A mother and three small children were asphyxiated and thirteen other persons suffered from the effects of inhaling gas which leaked from a main in Second avenue today. Members of four families were repatriated unconscious by the firemen.

The four dead: Mrs. Joseph Preiss; her son, John, 8 years; her daughter, Clara, 3 years old; and an infant son, Daniel, 8 months.

The father and five other children were resuscitated by the police. The gas main was broken by frost and the freed gas followed a water lateral under the pavement into the cellars of two dwellings.

A canary feebly struggling in its cage gave one of the victims his first intimation of trouble. Grasping the songster's cage, he started for the street and fell unconscious in a snowbank. The shock of the snow and the fresh air quickly revived him and he summoned assistance.

ALL WOMEN WHO WORK

Should Know how this Worker was Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinckham's Vegetable Compound

Zahl, N. Dak.—"I was nervous and weak and was not regular. I also had a frequent cold. I was sickly for seven years and finally had a nervous breakdown following an operation. I am a dressmaker and milliner, and a lady I work for told me of Lydia E. Pinckham's Vegetable Compound. I am taking it and it has made me well and able to do my work again. I have even helped take care of a sick neighbor recently, so you can see how fit I am. I highly praise your medicine and you may use my letter as you see fit. I hope it will help some other woman."—Mrs. OLE NORDLEIN, Box 23, Zahl, N. Dak.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinckham's Vegetable Compound?" 95 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women taking this medicine for ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. For sale by all druggists.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mafusilic compound oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the family for months.

Two or three teaspoonsful is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes all abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanse thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—(adv.)

"How My Back Hurt!"

"I was nervous, run-down and weak," says Mrs. Fannie Johnson, of Stone Branch, Virginia, whose picture is printed above. "I would have dizzy spells and my head felt queer. I would just stagger when I would get up in the morning, and have to go back to bed."

"And how my back hurt, as if it were coming in two!—a weak and aching feeling across my back and in my limbs, so severe till I would feel nauseated!"

"Some one told me of Cardui. I knew I needed something. I couldn't eat with any relish. I was never hungry, and always tired. I took about a half bottle of Cardui. I felt like eating. I kept on taking Cardui and my back got better, and my head, too. After taking just one and a half bottles, I felt better in every way. It is a good medicine. I feel just fine now. I am going to recommend it to my friends for the good it has done me. My mother took Cardui with beneficial results."

"I am so glad to be up, able to do my work and enjoy such good health and feel strong once more."

Women who suffer as Mrs. Johnson describes above should try taking Cardui for their ills. For your own sake, act today. Take Cardui.

again, and Nadine was almost suffocated in her fainting fit, which she did not dare to take off or show too much of her magnificent pearl dress.

She grew very tired at last—and went to sleep up against Bayard's shoulder.

He held her with his arms—and the tenderness love for him! Here again was the girl for man! She was coming away with him, apparently to a life in the wilds of hardship, and she had only seemed to think it was all perfect joy!

And so the day passed.

And towards sunset they reached their destination. And then at the little station motor was waiting for them.

"Sent by a friend of mine!" Bayard said.

All this country was so beautiful with the turning autumn tints—and they got into the car and lay back in the comfortable seats. The dark eyes were bright and gay, and had not known Bayard before; as they exchanged no effusive greetings as would certainly have been the case had he been one of the Beechwood old retainers.

"How divine it all is isn't it?" Nadine thought as she lay back in the car, and all the strings of pearls which were fastened to it spread about the floor! Trifles like that did not trouble her.

With deft fingers she twisted the lovely white fur into a coat; then she pulled down the elaborate Italian cufflinks and rolled her black curls into their own single knot.

The sunning little hat was immensely becoming. Then she cut off the second row of crimson—and more pearls strewed the floor—and now her dress was trainless, and would be entirely hidden by the coat. The second bit of silk was fastened around her bare throat. And when the pink wrap was on, and pulled round her childlike figure, nothing more attractive than a girl to go away with could have been imagined for a man! There only remained her silver and pearl slippers, with their 4-inch heels, which were a little too small.

But people did wear such odd things nowadays—perhaps these would not be too noticeable after all! She pranced up and down delightfully in front of the pier-glass fixed in the wardrobe door.

And below, her lover was telephoning to the Beechwood house. He first spoke to Mr. Bronson, who fortunately happened to have been near, and came at once to the phone.

"I don't know what you brought me here for, except to do what I have done in any case!" Nadine and I are making a bolt of it to Wilmington now, and we shall be married in the morning. When we are safely home, let the world know!" This was the assurance of his communication, and Elihu Bronson gave a delighted reply. Then Bayard asked if he could speak to Augustine—and his orders to her were precise. She was to proceed in the morning—and he told her the train to Beechwood, Virginia, with Miss Polham's things. "Have your lovely outfit laid out for tomorrow night for dinner. She will arrive about six in the evening and will be Mrs. Bayard Delaval by that time!"

Augustine nearly shrieked with surprise.

"And above all not one word to anyone. You understand?"

The romance of the thing delighted the maid, and Monsieur Delaval was after all a bel homme—and Monsieur Hopper, however rich, could never have been called a gentleman! and she could understand any young lady being in love with Mousieur Delaval—and, in one way, better than she did that her mistress had always had a begin that way! And her church did not approve of divorces even among these Protestants—so—it was all for the best in the end! The Bon Dieu satisfied, and every one besides! She would not breathe the word, and she would be there.

The telephone completed, a telegram was sent to a certain widowed aunt, and certain silver-haired gentleman—with the address of Beechwood, Virginia.

"Am bringing you my bride tomorrow night, will wire train. Make us a great reception. Love, Bayard."

Now he was in his room, and he would only have to keep up the bluff for eighteen hours more—and then! Well, it was just too divine to think about! And having paid his bill, and ordered the taxi, he returned to his little girl.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A joyful sight at last came from Bayard when he caught sight of Nadine in her traveling costume, and there had to be so many kisses, and such delightful things said, that it was a wonder that they did not miss the train.

Bayard had his own packing to do, and delicious as Nadine's help was, it did not go on long.

But at last they were at the station to get their places. A drawing room was out of the question at the last moment like that, one upper, and one lower berth, but not under the same pair of green curtains, had had the only things possible to it! Nadine was a good soul who thought about it all. So she would sleep in that way she had thought so very comic on their journey to Chicago—from New York, and it was a fat motherly female who would have the berth over her, and not Bayard! "Well, never mind!" he added to the tune of the thing. She was not going to make any difficulties—and allowed herself to be conducted there by the darky porter, and then said good-night to her beloved—and crawled into bed!

She did not dare to undress, but just lay there in her fur coat.

Oh! the joy of it, everything!

And she must get accustomed to traveling with the masses—since she was only going to be a mining engineer's wife. For of course now her father would not give her all the quantity of money she had had, ever since she had been in Washington. The world would have it on Bayard's salary, but probably not one—not be very much.

There was not a doubt or fear in her heart. The shock on the mountainside seemed to her fond imagination all that she could desire—since it would be his and hers—alone!

No regrets for past luxury came to her—and very soon, tired with excitement and happiness, the thick black lashes rested on her flushed cheeks, and she was in the land of blissful dreams.

And so they were married next morning at Wilmington and were once more on the train on their way back to the Virginias.

What fun it had all been! Bayard had purposely kept things as light and gay as possible. He would not allow himself to be sentimental or give himself too much opportunity to make love. All that must be for the afterwards—when, then, he had arms stretched, his head high, and for their breakfast they had joked like two school children. And even during the ceremony they had hardly been serious—Nadine, insisting upon their using the hairpin pearl ring.

But as they came out, and back into the taxi which waited for them, she whispered to her newly made husband.

Bayard, the first money that we can save up you shall buy me a little narrow sapphire one, like Sadie has in diamonds. But I did not feel I would be really married to you without this dear old wire thing."

He purposely did not try to engage a drawing room for the return journey—which was by day. She must think he was not rich enough. So they went straight to the station after the wedding and in the train they sat among all the other people on the straight-up seats. The weather had grown hot, the view from the crest of the hill before the path, honey, and I will show you the light goes."

It was always only to do what Bayard wanted Nadine. If she preferred her in her pearl gown for their first evening alone, that was just as it should be. And no doubt he could lend her a pajama suit to sleep in! And then she remembered him an unpleasant twinge, the pink silk stockings of Bernard B. Hopper! and suddenly she buried her face against Bayard's shoulder.

"Oh, I have such a lot of stupid things to tell you that I did when I was unhappy," she whispered. But he bent down and kissed her; they had come into the beech woods now skirted by a little stream.

"I do not want to know of them, sweetheart; whatever you did, was my fault for leaving you all alone."

"Well, there is one thing I never thought love for man! She was coming away with him, apparently to a life in the wilds of hardship, and she had only seemed to think it was all perfect joy!"

"Come, we must be getting on."

And then their lips met in a long, long kiss of rapture.

"Come," he said a few moments after, "we must be getting on."

But looking over his shoulder Nadine clung to her husband timidly.

"See, Nadine is still in her small party clothes!"

Some delight to all concerned! And Nadine was embraced and laughed over—and then, with Bayard's arm around her, she was taken through the hall, amidst the bowing merry servants, up the broad old stairs and to a room all dear old chintzes and old mahogany furniture, polished for a long time by willing darkies hands.

And it all smelt of roses and lavender, for great bouquets of both flowers were there.

And out on the bed was laid Nadine's loveliest tunic, and all her finest underthings, and beyond in the bedroom could be seen the great chimney, the great piano, and the great bed.

"Oh, Bayard, I am so happy—so happy!" she cried tremulously. "But I would have loved you just the same had it been only the shack."

"And now we are really married."

"My God!" he whispered worshipfully.

"Nadine—My soul!"

Mr. R. Lee Miller
Now With
H. M. Patterson & Son

Announcement has just been made by Fred Patterson, president of H. M. Patterson & Son, well-known Atlanta morticians, that R. Lee Miller, widely known funeral director, has severed his connection with Barclay & Brandon and accepted a position with them.

It is quite a coincidence to note that twenty-five years ago, when Mr. Miller started in the undertaking profession, his first position was with the late Mr. H. M. Patterson, when his establishment was located on Peachtree street, and now, after a lapse of nearly a score of years, he is rejoining the firm with which he began.

Mr. Miller moved to Atlanta from Kentucky about 1899 and immediately started in the funeral business. He was with Mr. Patterson for seven years, leaving to join Barclay & Brandon. He remained there but a short time, however, resigning to enter business for himself.

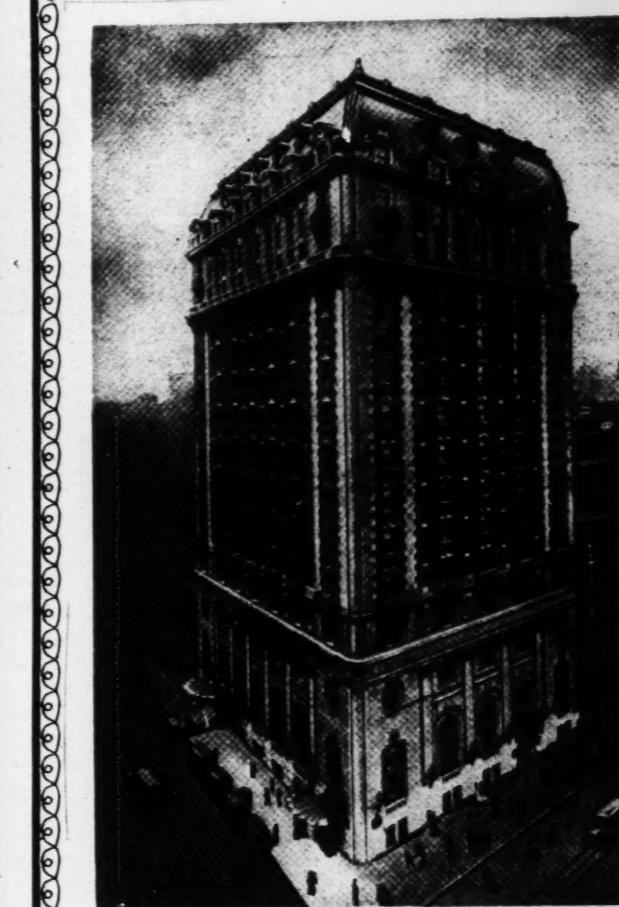

For a number of years he engaged in business in Atlanta, later operating a company in Dublin, Ga. Six years ago he returned to Atlanta and has been with Barclay & Brandon ever since, until recently, when he resigned to affiliate with Patterson.

In point of service, Mr. Miller is one of the oldest embalmers in Georgia holding license No. 36, which was issued him by the state board of embalmers the first day the board was organized. That was twenty-five years ago, and as most of the licenses preceding his have expired with the death of their owners, he is one of the oldest living embalmers in the state.

During his twenty-five years' experience, Mr. Miller has officiated at the funerals of some of the state's most illustrious sons. He has seen Atlanta grow from a small city to its present metropolitan proportions, and he declares that nothing can stop Atlanta from expanding until it has reached a population of many hundreds of thousands of people.

He is a steward in the First Methodist church, having been affiliated with this institution ever since moving to Georgia. He also is a member of the Georgia Funeral Directors' Association.

Mr. Miller has hundreds of friends in Atlanta and throughout the state, all of whom predict a highly successful career for him with H. M. Patterson & Son.

Advice from One Woman to Another on a very important hygienic subject

By Ellen J. Buckland
Graduate Nurse

Immaculacy, charm, exquisiteness under circumstances which most women find exceedingly trying Charm, Exquisiteness, Immaculacy, under all and every condition EVERY day! Yet, under old methods the average woman spent at least 1/6th of her time in a state of discomfort, uncertainty—and frequently embarrassment.

THIS is a subject which only a woman can understand, and on which only an expert can advise with authority. I speak as both.

I, too, experienced the handicap which confronts women in social, business or professional life. As a practicing nurse I know how to lighten it.

For science has now perfected a product which helps women live an active life without interruption. Its convenience and efficiency are amazing, for it solves a special problem in a very simple way.

This new product is called "Kotex"

It was perfected during the war to provide a softer, more absorbent surgical dressing. Kotex is five times more absorbent than cotton.

After the war its makers felt that Kotex would be of infinite value to women—that it would effectively solve their greatest problem. And it has.

Women have only to hear of Kotex to appreciate what it means in comfort, convenience and relief from embarrassment. It is being adopted everywhere.

A sample—free

You can secure Kotex at practically all drug and department stores, but I want to send you a sample. It will come wrapped in a perfectly plain package. All you have to do is to fill out and mail the coupon.

Don't do yourself the injustice of overlooking this offer, which is so easy to accept. All you have to do is to tear out the coupon, fill it out and mail it to me.

Kotex is on sale at all drug and department stores. Two sizes: Kotex regular and Kotex-Super. Also dispensed in rest rooms from Kotex cabinets.

Kitaro, the Rhinoceros, Began the Day in Bad Humor; but the Blow Fungu, the Leopard, Gave M'Waha, the Jackal, It Was, That Turned the Mountain of Flesh and Bone Into an Instrument of Retribution

IFARO drowsed in the bush. He was a great two horned rhinoceros, thick of skin and skull, pig eyed, and nearly blind. It was cool at that early hour. That mirac'e of beauty, and African dawn, was about to be performed. The red rays of the sun shone like silver on the galot trees.

More to Kifaro's taste was the rich grass with which he was stuffed to repletion, and the shade of the weeping kedi bushes. He was at peace.

There is no creature that walks about the dry earth that will wantonly attack the rhinoceros, unless, of course, he or she belongs to some fine suicide club, so Kifaro gave himself up to meditation and digestion. Along the tree tops came a troop of monkeys, as mischievous as schoolboys and thrice as agile. They saw the great pachyderm. They halted and considered. Then took graceless action. Cramping the branches above his head in chattering groups, they showered sticks and hard shelled nuts upon his defenseless head. How they laughed!

Kifaro pretended to take no notice. His dignity was monumental. Had it been any but these sky scaling drops of quicksilver he would have known exactly what to do.

The caked red rust from his early bath flew in clouds off his resounding hide. Kifaro cocked one eye at the tree and pondered. It was not so thick a trunk that he could not have snapped it with a heave of his shoulders. He forbore, so cool and comfortable was its shade, such an old friend was it.

The tick birds, eyes and ears for their huge host, flew in clamant annoyance from his broad back.

The merry game went on. A lucky shot wher Kifaro happened to be looking up filled his eye with prickly spines. How the little devil shrieked with joy! Kifaro switched his whip-like tail once or twice. But he waited.

Kitaro, the Rhinoceros, Began the Day in Bad Humor; but the Blow Fungu, the Leopard, Gave M'Waha, the Jackal, It Was, That Turned the Mountain of Flesh and Bone Into an Instrument of Retribution

O, he waited. If there be any animal with a more tricksy temper than the rhinoceros, I think he must live in hades.

Now our friend was not a particularly amicable specimen of his tribe. In fact, he was that same one who had taken on and utterly discomfited a troop of eleven full grown lions in the year of swift floods. He had challenged and routed their majesties over a mere matter of right of way on a plain some ninety miles in width and as flat as a pancake. The wild folk still refer to that scrap in casual conversation.

Soon, taking courage from their ignorance, the monkeys came to the lower branches. They dared to tweak Kifaro's ears, his tail; to slap his steel hard horns.

Kifaro appeared to doze again, bored with the whole affair. The leader of the band swung, by one thin arm, in front of the mighty beast's nose. Then did Kifaro take active notice.

He flicked his head. I swear it seemed no more than that. He gave a twitch, but at the blow a spidery limbed corpse shot twenty feet through the clear air to the top of a thick wide spreading khansa bush, drilled with back to chest as neatly as be damned.

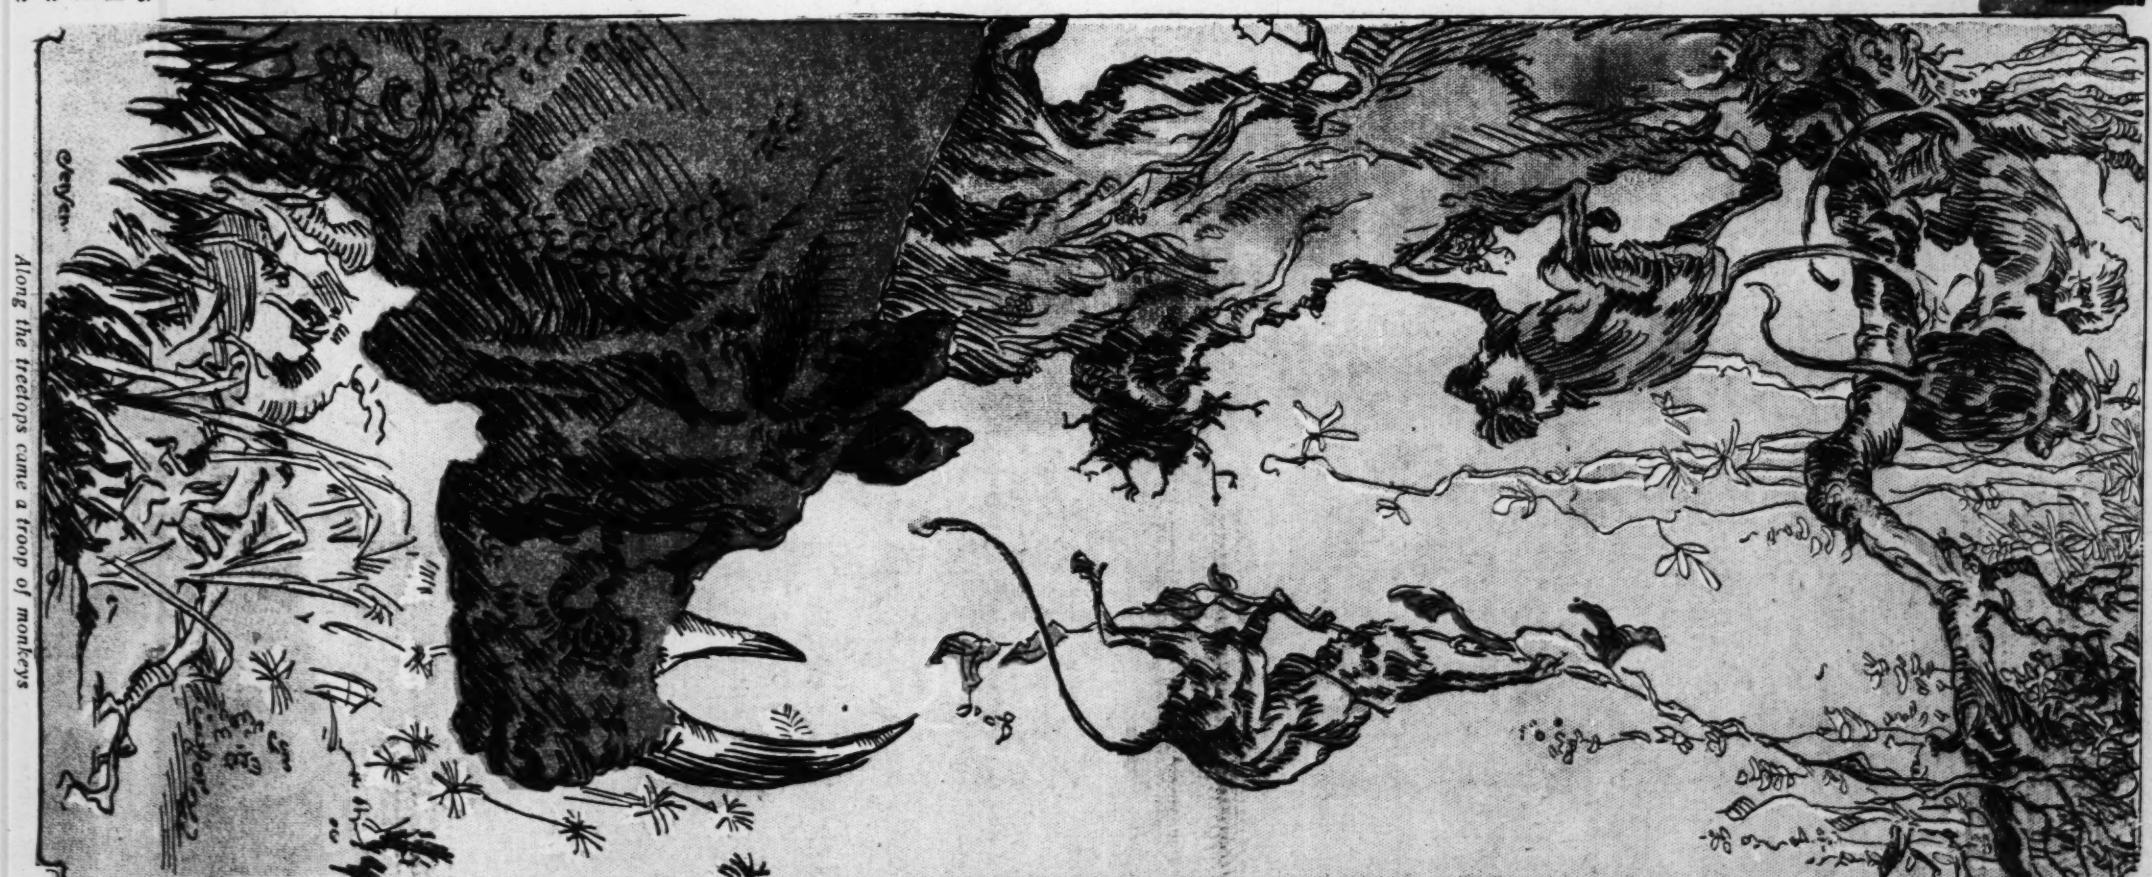

The remainder of the troop did not long remain. To be accurate, they were two hundred yards away before body of their leader crashed to its last resting place.

Silence and growing heat held undisputed sway once more.

But Kifaro was restless. He stamped and snorted till the tick birds rose in petulant swarms. The smell of that which he had spilt annoyed him mightily. Be it known that the sense of smell of the rhinoceros is in reverse ratio to his eyesight.

Finally he lurched off to the shade of a thicket or ergin, some fifteen yards from the bush edge, and there slowed to a dissatisfied stop. At last he regained his composure, but not his somnolence. There he stood, slightly ruffled, dangerous as a Mill's bomb; two tons of brainless brawn.

In the same old neck of the bush as tha which old Two Horns favored with his presence a Cerval cat, named Funga, had her dwelling place. At the hour when Kifaro was correcting the idle rich, Funga was abroad. Funga might be described as a moth eaten leopard, a mangy looking beast about half the bulk of her larger cousin, and somewhat similar colored. Equally as unpleasant to her interiors, but not as unpleasant to her exteriors, but not a tenth part so ferocious. Put briefly, it might be said that she possess-

Along Lost Nation at the North Pole

How America's Big Dirigible May Solve the Mystery of A Vanished People

Of all the chances that await the coming trip of the Shenandoah to the North Pole none is more dramatic or of greater interest to science than the possibility that somewhere in the frozen north the giant American-made dirigible will discover the nation which has been lost to the world for more than 500 years.

Back in the tenth century some adventurous Vikings and other Norwegians who had left their native Norway to settle in Iceland pushed on from there to Greenland, and established colonies on both the east and the west coasts.

Although Greenland is little more than one big ice cap, the Norwegians found the narrow strip of land along the coast a not at all unpleasant place to live. The colonies flourished and when last they were heard from, they are believed by some authorities to have numbered fully 10,000 souls.

An extensive trade in furs, hides and fish was built up and, in spite of the ice which locks Greenland in for all but a few weeks of the year, pretty regular communication was kept up with Iceland and Norway.

Along toward the end of the fourteenth century, however, Europe became so occupied with more of its bloody wars that it could not bother with the Greenland colonies. For a long time no ships sailed to Greenland and neither did any arrive from there to tell how things were going in what were then the furthest western outposts of European civilization.

Years later when ships again ventured through the ice to the settlements the Norwegians had established they found not a trace of the thousands of men, women and children who had been living there. Their comfortable houses were deserted, their little farms overgrown with weeds, the picturesque stone churches they had built falling into ruins. In none of the settlements was there a sign of human life.

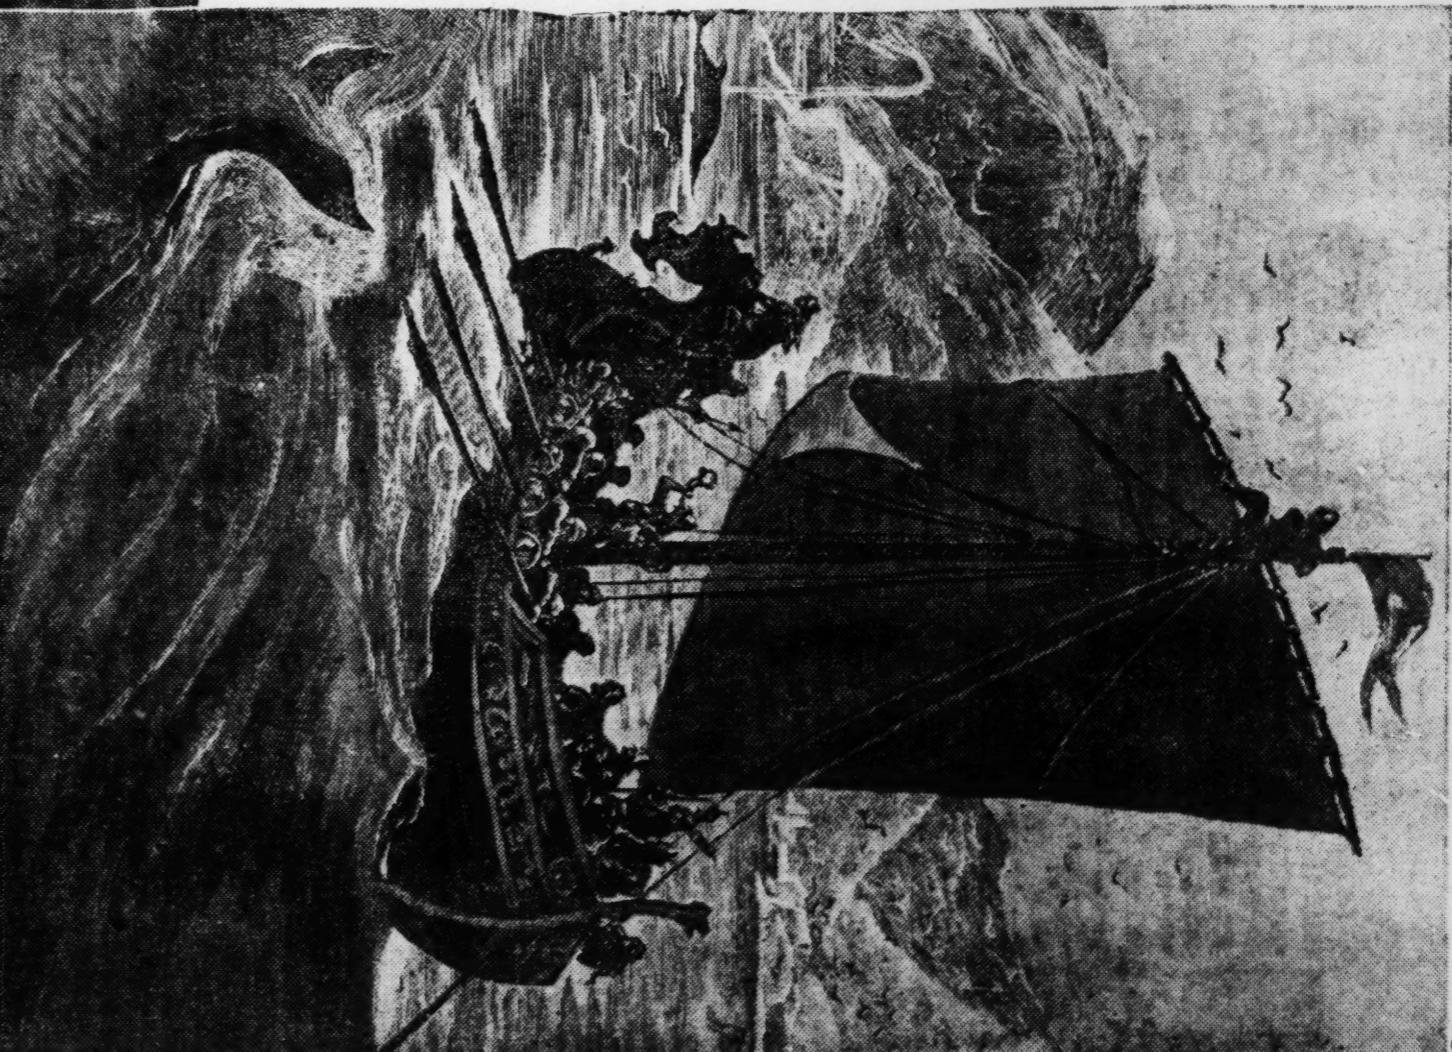

At first it was thought that the little Greenland nation had been swept away by starvation or a pestilence or massacred by hostile Eskimo tribes. But these theories had to be abandoned when a thorough search failed to reveal the mouldering human bones which any of these tragedies would have left to tell the grim story.

What had become of these 10,000 civilized men and women—men and women in whose veins flowed some of the same blood that flows in our own—was a perplexing mystery. And so it remains to the present day in spite of the careful study which scientists for many years have been giving it.

IKE all Norwegians the Greenland settlers were adventurous souls. If they had heard of a place where they thought life would be easier and better they would not have hesitated about packing their families and possessions on board their staunch ships and setting sail. They were expert navigators and the chances of their reaching any destination for which they set out were all in their favor.

What was this destination and what happened after they reached it? Were

A prominent feature of the folklore of every Eskimo is the firm belief in the existence so nowhere far inside the Arctic circle of a "polar paradise"—a delightful region where the climate they overtaken by some terrible disaster that wiped them out of existence, or are their descendants living there to this day?

Among the Eskimos of Greenland there persists a tradition that the blond white men who once lived on its coasts went "far away to the north."

This is the first of a series of curious facts which lead many scientists to believe that perhaps the descendants of these vanished Norwegians may be found living in some habitable

THE Eskimos cannot explain where this place is or how it can be reached or who lives there, but most of them are as sure of its existence as they are that they like blubber.

Although science has no proof of such a "polar paradise," it does not deny the possibility of its existence. In fact, it has often been suggested that somewhere near the pole may be

"Depend upon it, Pauline, your father would never give you to me—a poor clerk in his employ; despite all he's worth, he'd have you marry money—for instance that uncouth westerner—Weslow, he hob-nobs with."

The girl laughed heartily,—as only a young girl who has never known care or sorrow, can laugh. "Mr. Weslow! ridiculous! why he's twice my age. His odd ways amuse me; but, as to marrying him,—oh, Hughley, how can you suggest such a thing. Neither father, or Mr. Weslow ever imag-

The romance budded, and blossomed under Senator Rae's nose, but he had not the slightest inkling of it. Mrs. Holt, an aged widow who presided over the widower's paternal home soon noted Pauline's interest in the young man, and disapproved of it. She had taken a dislike to Hugh Boyd, though she could have given no good reason for it, save her woman's intuition.

As he stood there cogitating, the call of the races was stronger than the desire to wed Pauline;—that could lead.

It was one thing to make love to a pretty, trusting young girl, but quite another to stand up before a cold, stern father, and have the temerity to ask for his daughter in marriage.

Boyd knew better than to risk it.

As he stood there, on the pavement, holding Pauline's hands, and looking down into her blushing face, he was wondering which would be the better course to pursue,—ask her to marry him at once,—or,—wait until after the races;—it would only be a question of a couple of hours or so difference. making could write;—and the mischief was done. He would give himself until sun-down—not to think, or allow it to worry him. As he stood there cogitating, the call of the races was stronger than the desire to wed Pauline;—that could wait until afterward.

Pauline was urging to take him to his destination, he concluded it would be wise to consent. "I can not resist the temptation to be by your side, dear," he responded, assisting her into the car and springing in after her. "You may take me over the Brooklyn bridge, dropping me there, dear. I will reach it all too soon; I almost wish I hadn't let you take me over," he added a moment later, "it is maddening to be so near you, and restrain the impulse—"

He stopped short suddenly, staring hard at a string of horses they were passing. "Good Lord! I'll bet my hat that is Papyrus and Zez entered in today's race!" he ejaculated excitedly.

Pauline pouted, nettled at the thought that anything could divert from herself, his attention in the very midst of lovemaking. He was quick to see he had offended, and make amends, whispering all the tender, sentimental speeches very young girls, bewildered by their first romance, delight to hear. Meanwhile, his eye was on every clock they passed; he could ined any thing of the kind."

"I humbly beg your pardon, dear; a lady and a clown, as lovers, is preposterous. I'd be jealous of any man who admired you," declared Boyd.

His acquaintance with the little heiress had come about in this way: Needing a stenographer to aid him in preparing speeches which had to be made ready for immediate delivery, the senator had taken Boyd to his home evenings for the purpose; it did not occur to him that the handsome young man was, in this way, brought into contact with his young daughter.

His mind was so crowded with legal complications, he lost sight of the fact that there is a natural attraction between young people. From time immemorial they have looked, dreamed,—and—loved.

"I do not like you an's intuition. It was simply a case of—

Doctor Fell,
The reason why, I can not tell!"

The romance ripened quickly. Pauline had never realized she had a course, and that was, to shake the heart, 'till she was conscious of its dust of the city from his feet before loss. Tender, lingering glances and heart throbs led to clinging hand-clasps,—then low spoken words, and notes hidden among flowers;—love-notes, as only a man adept at love-banks closed.

If the Saviour Came Back To Remarkable Photographs Showing How, After All the Centuries, the Holy Land Is Still Peopled by Men And Women Who Seem to

Step From the Bible's Pages

A picturesque view of Jaffa, the chief seaport of Palestine and also famous as the place from which Jonah set out on the memorable voyage to earth today. He would find the holy land itself and the life that is lived there in many ways astonishingly like what they were when He hallowed Palestine by his presence nearly two thousand years ago.

In spite of the changes wrought by centuries of war and disaster of every kind, in spite of the modernizing influences of the last few years, Palestine remains much the same sort of land that it was not only in Jesus' time but still further back, in the time of Solomon, David and the other old Testament heroes.

The narrow streets of Jerusalem and Bethlehem still wind about in the tortuous way they did centuries ago, and beneath the pavements now in use still remain some of those that know the pressure of the Saviour's feet.

A large part of the people of these towns and cities and of the country-side beyond their walls dress and eat and live their lives in much the same way that their ancestors did in Jesus' lifetime.

Nowhere else on earth is the life of today so closely linked with that of remote antiquity. There are fliers in the streets, but many who ride in them, or dodge out of their way look as if they had stepped straight from the pages of the Bible. Some of the women make their dresses on American made sewing machines, but the garments they stitch are duplicates of those that were worn by women nineteen hundred years ago when they crowded about the Man of Galilee to hear his words.

To discover in Palestine relics that date only from Jesus' time is nothing extraordinary. Archaeologists are now uncovering things which take the history of the country back to 3,000 years before the Christian era.

Only the other day Professor R. E. from the Jebusites by David and his men.

Many primitive methods of ship building still persist at Jaffa, where a merchant marine that will fly the Zionist flag is being constructed

Iem pottery, walls and masonry that are believed to date from 3,000 B. C. and that make the city centuries older than previously discovered evidence had indicated.

Those important finds were made on the site of the original city of Jerusalem, just south of the temple. It is the part of the city which the Old Testament tells us was taken only the other day. Professor R. E. Stewart Macalister, the English archaeologist, brought to light in Jerusalem the inhabitants of the land: which spake unto David, saying, Except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither: thinking David cannot come in hither. "Nevertheless, David took the strong hold of Zion: the same is the city of David."—II Samuel vi, 7.

And professor Macalister is sure that some of the walls the picks and shovels of his excavators have laid bare are the very ones which this same chapter of the Bible tells us David built "round about from Millo and inward" after he had settled down in the fort he had taken from the Jebusites and renamed it the city of David.

Some of the pottery found may have graced the magnificent house which David built here from cedar trees sent him by his friend Hiram, king of Tyre. To this royal mansion we are told he brought concubines and wives out of Jerusalem."

Near the spot where Professor Macalister found the relics that take us back to an earlier period than we have ever known in the history of the holy city he discovered a natural cave. At the bottom of this cave is a rude shaft, perhaps natural, leading downward to a spring, now having a very weak flow of water, and coming with the city inside the walk through an opening in one end of the cave.

It is believed that this was Jerusalem's first water system and that it had fallen into disuse at least 2,500 years and perhaps 3,000 years before Christ.

Jerusalem was a Jebusite city until its capture by David about the year 1,000 B. C. Struck with the numerous advantages of the city—particularly its abundant water supply and the ease with which it could be defended—he at once strengthened its fortifications and made it the seat of his kingdom.

Jerusalem remains a walled city, it was in the Saviour's time and for many centuries before. In the walls sections that were built by King Solomon, others that were erected by Herod the Great and still others that were the work of Agrippa only a few years after Christ's death.

Like the ruined city of Beth Shean, Jerusalem of today is founded upon the remains of many cities of past ages, their ruins lying one on top of the other underneath the populous streets and houses of the present. The archaeologists have unearthed whole houses and temples lying beneath the present streets, and the most interesting relics of Cæsæ and Roman times are frequently uncovered in digging the foundations for new buildings.

But one does not need to search out buried ruins to find not only interesting things but life itself, in which there has been little change since the Saviour's day and, in many cases, since the time of the Old Testament prophets.

The grain merchants of Palestine scorn to use the modern sack to market their products and cling to the old Biblical method of "good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over." First they fill the measure just as full of grain as they can. Then they shake it to make room for still more grain, which they scoop up with their hands and heap over the top.

Tailors sit as they have for centuries at the doors of their tiny shops, squatting cross-legged on ledges raised two or three feet above the street level. When customers come, they must stand in the street to do their bargaining and be measured, in case they decide to buy.

Bags made of heavy skins and holding several gallons are still in use for carrying water. Only now and then does the traveler see one of Mr. Rockefeller's oil cans or some other modern receptacle being carried to and from the wells and springs.

SHEEP and goats are driven to market just as they were in Biblical times, the shepherds going ahead and making the flocks follow by calling to them.

When sheep stray further than they should from the rest of the flock the shepherds call "... to attention by firing pebbles from slings, just such primitive affairs of goat hair as David was armed with when he did battle with the giant Goliath.

The plows used by the farmers are crude, cumbersome things, made of wood tipped with iron and drawn usually by oxen, bullocks, donkeys or camels. The natives do not use horses for this work because they have to walk too fast to keep up with them.

Centuries of war and other misery have robbed Palestine of much of the fertile bloom which made it in Old Testament times a "land of milk and honey." Under the better conditions which the British mandate is insuring the inhabitants, however, the fields and pastures are being fast restored and remains much the same as it was 2,000 years and even longer ago. The bright sunlight of our modern civilization has not yet made much impression on the deep shadows of antiquity that brood over these towns and cities and seem determined to enfold them forever.

Ever since men learned to sail the Jaffa has been the chief port of Palestine. Here were landed the immense quantities of timber and other materials used by King Solomon in building his temple. Here came the cedar logs which King Hiram sent from the forests of Lebanon for David to use in the construction of his royal mansion.

The goods that were brought to Jaffa on boats were carried to Jerusalem and the other cities of Palestine on the backs of camels or mule.

Jaffa is still an important port and the center of quite a ship-building industry.

It was from Jaffa, the Bible tells us, that Jonah sailed on the voyage which ended in his mèm or a-bile three days inside the whale's belly.

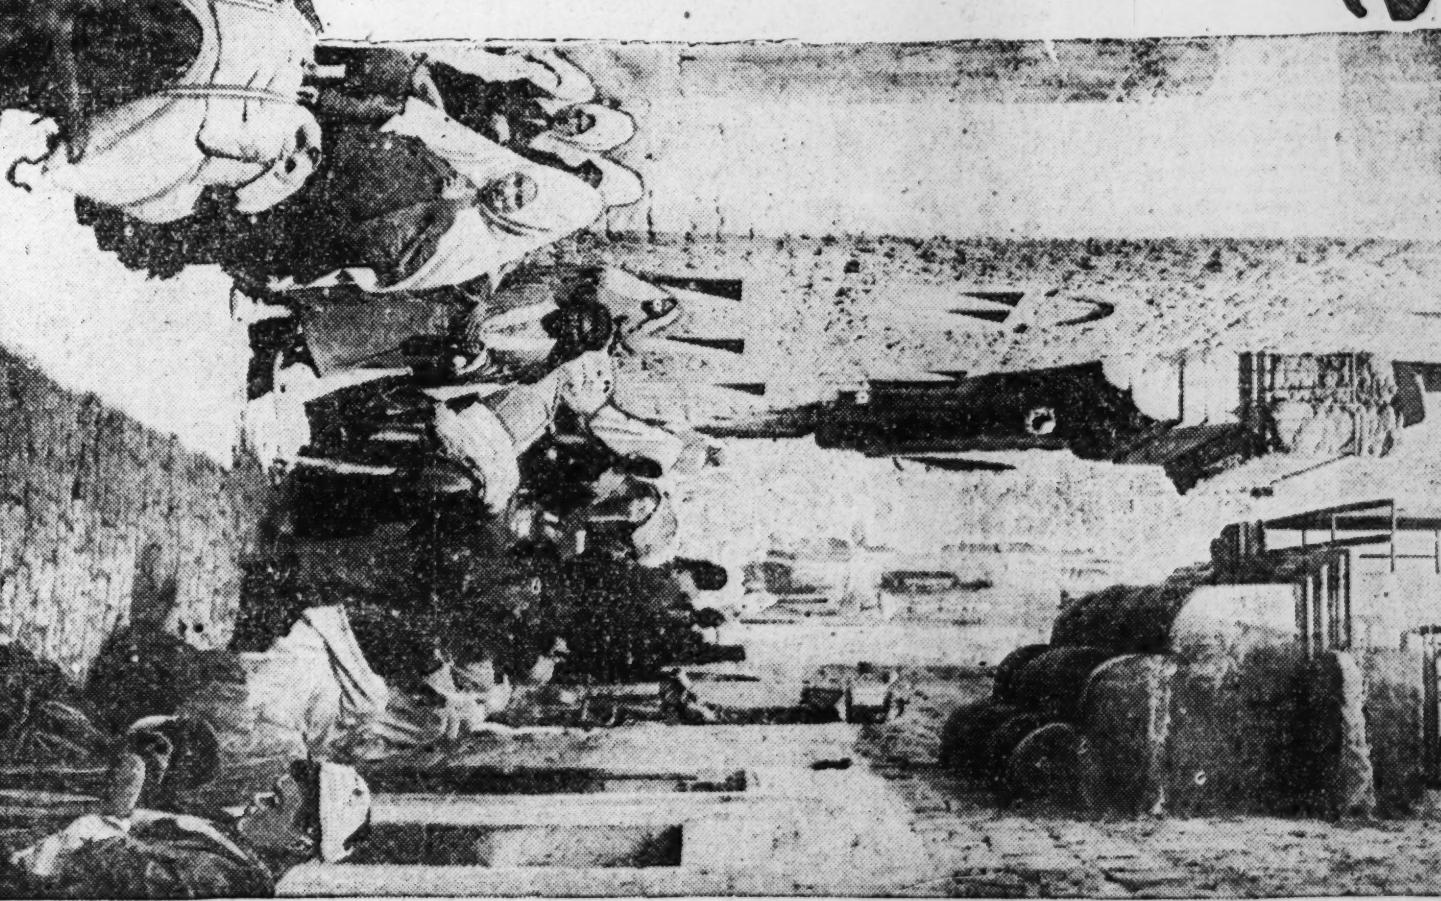

Jaffa has been for centuries a great port in spite of the fact that it has one of the worst harbors in the world. The water is often so rough that the landing of passengers is impossible.

But it is planned to build breakwaters and dredge new channels, to construct modern wharves and ship-yards, and to make the port one that will outdo even tion and scientific agriculture.

On this page today are reproduced some of the latest photographs to reach this country from Palestine. They give fascinating glimpses of Jerusalem, the birthplace of Jesus and of Jaffa, the ancient seaport of Palestine, as they looked when an enterprising photographer set up his camera there only a few weeks ago.

the glory it knew when it was in the hands of the Phoenicians.

BETHLEHEM is now a city of 15,000 inhabitants—probably ten times the population it had when Christ was born there. It owes its size chiefly to the thousands of pilgrims who come continually from all over the world to pay reverent homage to the birthplace of the Saviour.

The grotto which is shown the visitor as the place of the nativity has lost all resemblance to the rude stable it is supposed once to have been. But in and around Bethlehem are innumerable stables with mangers of stone that call to mind the one in which the gospels tell us the Christ child was laid. To this day men and women sleep on the floors of these stables, just as Jesus' parents did when they found there was no room for them at the inn.

The streets of Bethlehem are as silent of the past as those of Jerusalem—thronged with living counter-parts of the men and women who walked them in the days when Christ was on earth.

There are men as holy of countenance as the twelve apostles and women as sweetly sad of face as Mary Magdalene. The lepers and cripples and beggars on whom the Saviour took compassion and all the other figures that move through the immortal New Testament story are duplicated wherever you look in these colorful thoroughfares.

$250,000 Wedding

Gift-B

POMANCE has played cruel tricks to countless young women who have followed its lure, but perhaps it never led one into a more cruelly tantalizing and apparently hopeless situation than that in which Miss Corliss Palmer finds herself.

Eugene V. Brewster, the millionaire publisher who lifted her out of a cigar clerk's job in Macon, Ga., and set her down in luxury fit for a royal princess, has laid his heart at her feet, as determined and generous a lover as any girl could wish.

His bridal gift for her is bought and paid for—a $250,000 home in Morris- town, N. J., a stately mansion set in beautiful grounds and calling for a great household of servants.

But the wedding ring which should go along with rich Mr. Brewster's love and devotion and with the superb wed- ding gift he has prepared—that is not yet on Corliss Palmer's finger and there is no certainty that it ever can be.

Was there ever a more aggravatingly tantalizing situation for a young woman than this?

Here she is, within reaching distance of all the things a girl dreams of as soon as she is old enough to speculate about her future—a millionaire hus- band, a palatial home, the opportunity of winning social position, the chance to rear a family of children in such luxury as she never knew.

But, eager as Mr. Brewster is to give reality to every one of these by putting a wedding ring on Corliss Palmer's finger and giving her the right to his name and a proud place by his side in the world, he cannot do that seemingly sim- ple and easy thing.

He can dress her in Paris gowns and load her with diamonds and give her a dozen estates as magnificent as the one he has just bought for her, but all his millions are not enough to supply the magic symbol she craves most of all—the little circlet of gold that can be bought for a few dollars at any jewelry store.

It is another woman who stands in the way of Corliss Palmer's happiness—a woman whom Mr. Brewster says he long since ceased to love, but who declares she is prepared to wait a lifetime, if necessary, rather than per- mit him to become another's husband.

Mr. Brewster has been twice married. From the first wife he was divorced. From the second he has wanted to be divorced ever since his eyes first drank in Corliss Palmer's charms. But he has been unable to find any grounds for divorcing the present Mrs. Brewster, and she stubbornly refuses to make use of any grounds she might have for di- vorcing him.

It was with a photograph of the Macon cigar store girl that Mr. Brew- ster first fell in love. The picture had been submitted along with the pictures of thousands of other girls in a beauty contest conducted by one of Mr. Brew- ster's publications.

With almost his first glance thoughts of duty to his wife and children seem to have gone glimmering and he was filled with a desire to possess what seemed to him a matchless specimen of innocent girlish beauty.

OF COURSE, Cruelly Tantalizing Plight of Beautiful Corliss Palmer Whose Millionaire Lover Can Give Her Every- thing in the World Except the One Thing She Wants Most of All

ecstasies over the photograph of one of the contestants. The human peach from Georgia was summoned to New York, and when the publisher saw her in the flesh—well, he thought her picture hadn't begun to tell the story of her loveliness.

With his own hands he awarded Corliss Palmer the capital prize. Al- most simultaneously he offered her also his heart and a high-salaried position on his editorial staff and a place in his home until such time as he could arrange to make her the sole miss- tress there.

Corliss Palmer was dazed by the glitter of the future which Eugene Brewster's proposals opened up to her, and who "an wonder that he was?" Even Cinderella in the fairy story under- went no such wonderful trans- formation as was promised the girl who, until a few days before, had been passing out the "Georgia Peach" that won Mr. Brewster's heart the instant he saw her picture.

Within a sur- prisingly short time after her arrival in New York she was letting Mr. Brewster lead her into his home and introduce her to his wife as one who was to be treated quite like one of the family.

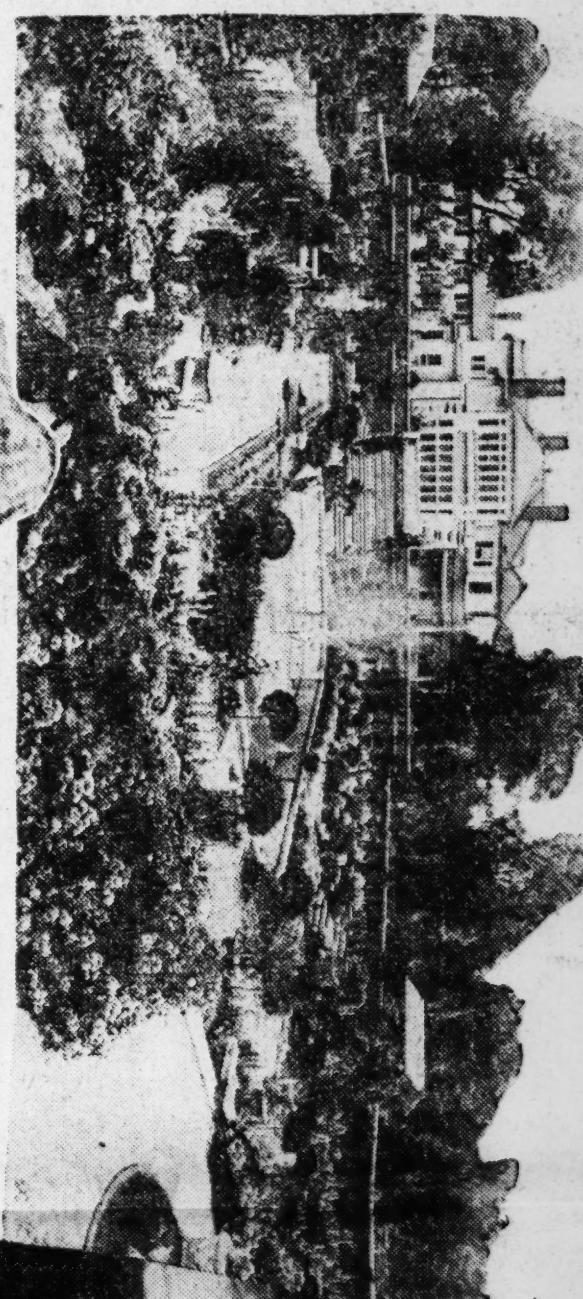

At first Mrs. Brewster was not as sur- prised or angry as most wives would be when confronted by such a situation.

As she later explained, she used to her husband's impressionability to a pretty face. She had seen how previous beauty contests stirred in him curious complexes.

PRETTY soon, however, the wife be- gan to have her doubts about this being the sort of infatuation that was going to wear itself out in a few weeks.

Her pride found it impossible to endure conditions as they now were in her home and she went away, taking the children with her.

Mr. Brewster began to talk boldly of is love for Corliss Palmer. "She brought love again into my life," he said. "When I thought love was gone forever." Every boy thought of course. Mrs. Brewster would start divorce proceedings. But to everybody's surprise—and to Mr. Brewster's and his prize beauty's most of all—she declared she would do nothing of the kind, neither then nor in the far-distant future.

She announced her intention of waiting until her husband's "love spree" was over and then taking him back into her arms, "just as a fond mother would a disobedient child."

"My husband is a periodical love drunkard," said this extraordinary example of wily patience and long suf- fering. "He cannot resist going on an occasional 'love spree' any more than some men can resist indulging in alcohol excesses."

"You must not think this is the first time he has been intoxicated merely by a bewitching bit of femininity," Mercy, no! But I have found that, like the fumes of alcohol, the effect fades away after a while and there comes a reaction in the opposite direction. When that reaction comes he needs me.

All this was more than a year ago.

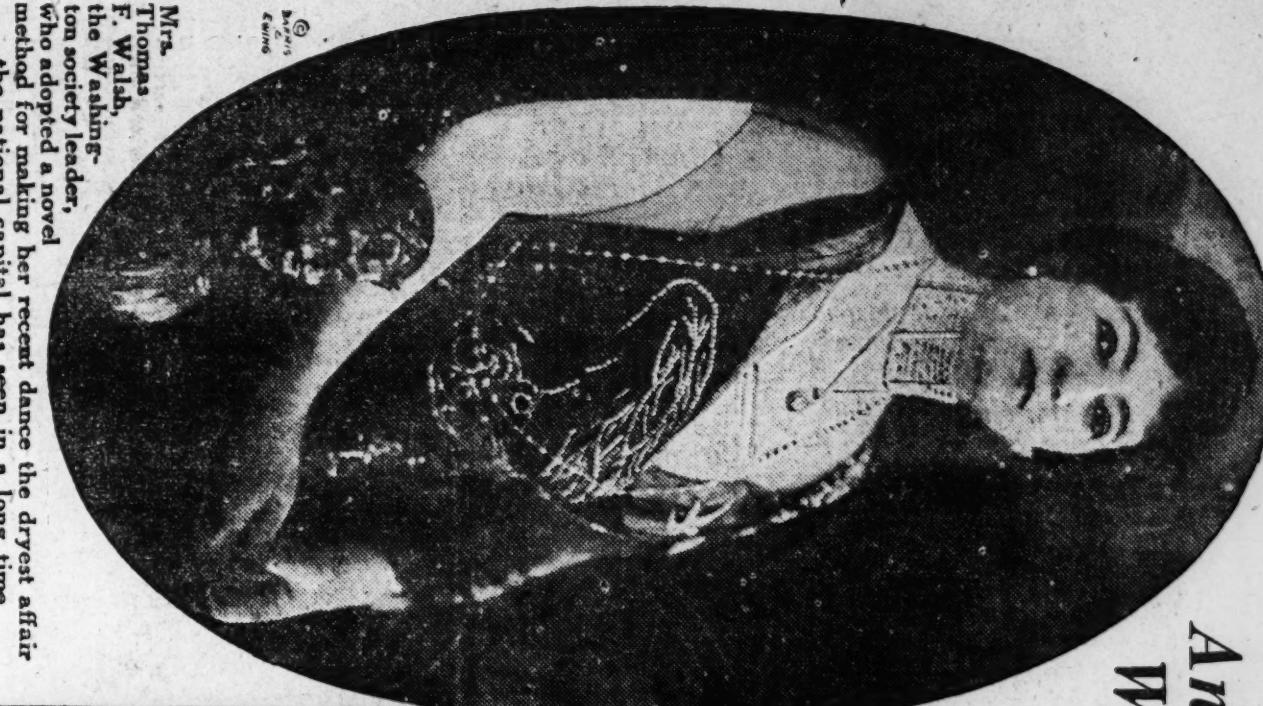

Below, the wife who won't let Mr. Brewster a wedding on Corliss's visit to his town. is just as charming in this more sophisticated pose.

that she was happy to think now much better off she was than when she had been selling cigars in Macon, but miserable at the thought of what she was missing through her inability to attain a wedding ring.

How Mrs. Walsh Kept Her Ball

And How Other Society Hostesses, Worried by Washington's Wetness, Are Following Her Example and Having Every Man Searched for Flasks or Bottles of Liquor

Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, the Washington society leader, who adopted a novel method for making her recent dance the dryest affair the national capital has seen in a long time

HE man who goes about in fashionable Washington society no longer can carry along a hip flask with any certainty that he will be permitted to add to the hilarity of the ball or other social function he is attending by taking frequent nips of its contents and sharing them with those of his dancing partners who feel the need of a little alcoholic stimulation.

Hostesses who are shocked by the rational capitalist's growing wetness and the really scandalous episodes to which it has frequently led of late have hit upon a novel plan for making their entertainments a great deal drier than they have been since the Voistead act went into effect.

As each male guest arrives he is met in the cloakroom by two trusted men friends of the hostess. Quite often these men are army officers—the most courteous of gentlemen but as stern and unbending in the performance of duty as West Pointers can be.

With deft hands they "frisk" the guest just as a policeman does the man he suspects of carrying a weapon. But in this case the officers are looking not for guns or stilettos but for hip flasks or bottles of forbidden liquor.

Any containers of liquor that are found are promptly confiscated, to be locked up until the affair is over and then returned to their owners.

Of course there are loud and indignant protests from the guests at the indignity of being searched like common criminals and being deprived of their precious cocktails, rum, whisky or brandy. But thus far they have proved of no avail as scores of thirsty Washington society men can testify.

Even the plea that an alcoholic beverage has been brought under the doctor's orders and that an occasional drink of it is necessary to ward off a heart attack or alleviate some distressing ailment cannot swerve the rum sleuths from the path of duty the hostess has marked out for them.

It is a case of giving up any booze you may have brought along to cheer you through the afternoon or evening or putting on your coat and hat and going forlornly home.

Mrs. THOMAS F. WALSH, mother of Mrs. E. B. McLean and one of the richest and most fashionable matrons in Washington society, is the originator of this drastic plan for blotting up some of the moisture which is disturbing so many of the more conservative hostesses.

She gave it what she thought a very successful trial at the recent dance she gave in honor of her three favorite buds—Miss Natalie Hammon, Miss Ellen Blair and Miss Helena Lodge. And since then, to the dismay of all Washingtonians who corous of matrons trying to kick the bulbs out of a chandelier.

But how was she going to prevent any such occur. How could she make her party "dry" when, as many think, Washington is wetter than the Atlantic ocean?

"It simply can't be done," some of Mrs. Walsh's friends told her. "As long as the Voistead act is in force the men will insist on bringing along their flasks, even when they know the hostess will provide plenty to drink. And if they don't the women will."

"There is no getting away from liquor since prohibition came, and every woman must be resigned to the unpleasant consequences it sometimes brings when she entertains. It's a case for grinning and making the best of it."

But Mrs. Walsh refused to be convinced. She is a clever and determined woman and she made up her mind to find some way of preventing her guests from turning her tea dance into a drinking bout.

At last she hit upon what she thought, and still thinks, a brilliant idea. Why not have her guests searched as they arrived at the house and their trouble making flasks taken away from them?

Mrs. Walsh talked this over with two army officers friends of hers. They thought the plan entirely practicable and agreed to help her carry it out.

This is how it happened that when the men invited to the tea dance arrived at Mrs. Walsh's imposing mansion on Massachusetts Avenue, most of them carrying at least one and many of them several well filled flasks and bottles, they got the saddest surprise of their young lives.

Before they were fairly inside the house they were pounced upon by the stern and vigilant army officers. Stuporous hands pawed over the clothes of each guest, lifting aristocratic coats and emptying pockets of anything that looked as if it might contain a drop of alcohol.

There were cries of grief, gasps of dismay and angry protests from the young men when they realized that their hostess actually was depriving them of the liquids on which they had counted to help them to a pleasant afternoon. But the faithful army officers remained unmoved. Not even Mr. Volstead could have remained more diligent and resolute.

By the time the band struck up the first fox trot more than a hundred packages of liquor are said to have been confiscated. There were flasks of silver, flasks mounted with gold and flasks encased in expensive leather. There were bottles of almost every shape and size. And all were filled with some of the choicest liquids to aristocrats placed officers the darr restoree clubs.

THE property which Mrs. Walsh had declared contraband was placed under lock and key, the army officers standing guard over it until the dance was over and it could be restored to its owners.

The booze-robed guests were so dazed that none of them refused to remain at the party under the dry conditions which the hostess had imposed. But later many of them declared that if they were treated in this way again they would put on their hats and go straight back to their clubs.

Out of nearly two hundred male guests only four flask carriers managed to elude the vigilance of the searchers. They were apprehended, however, before they had imbibed enough to cause Mrs. Walsh any distress, and what remained of their booze was locked up along with the rest.

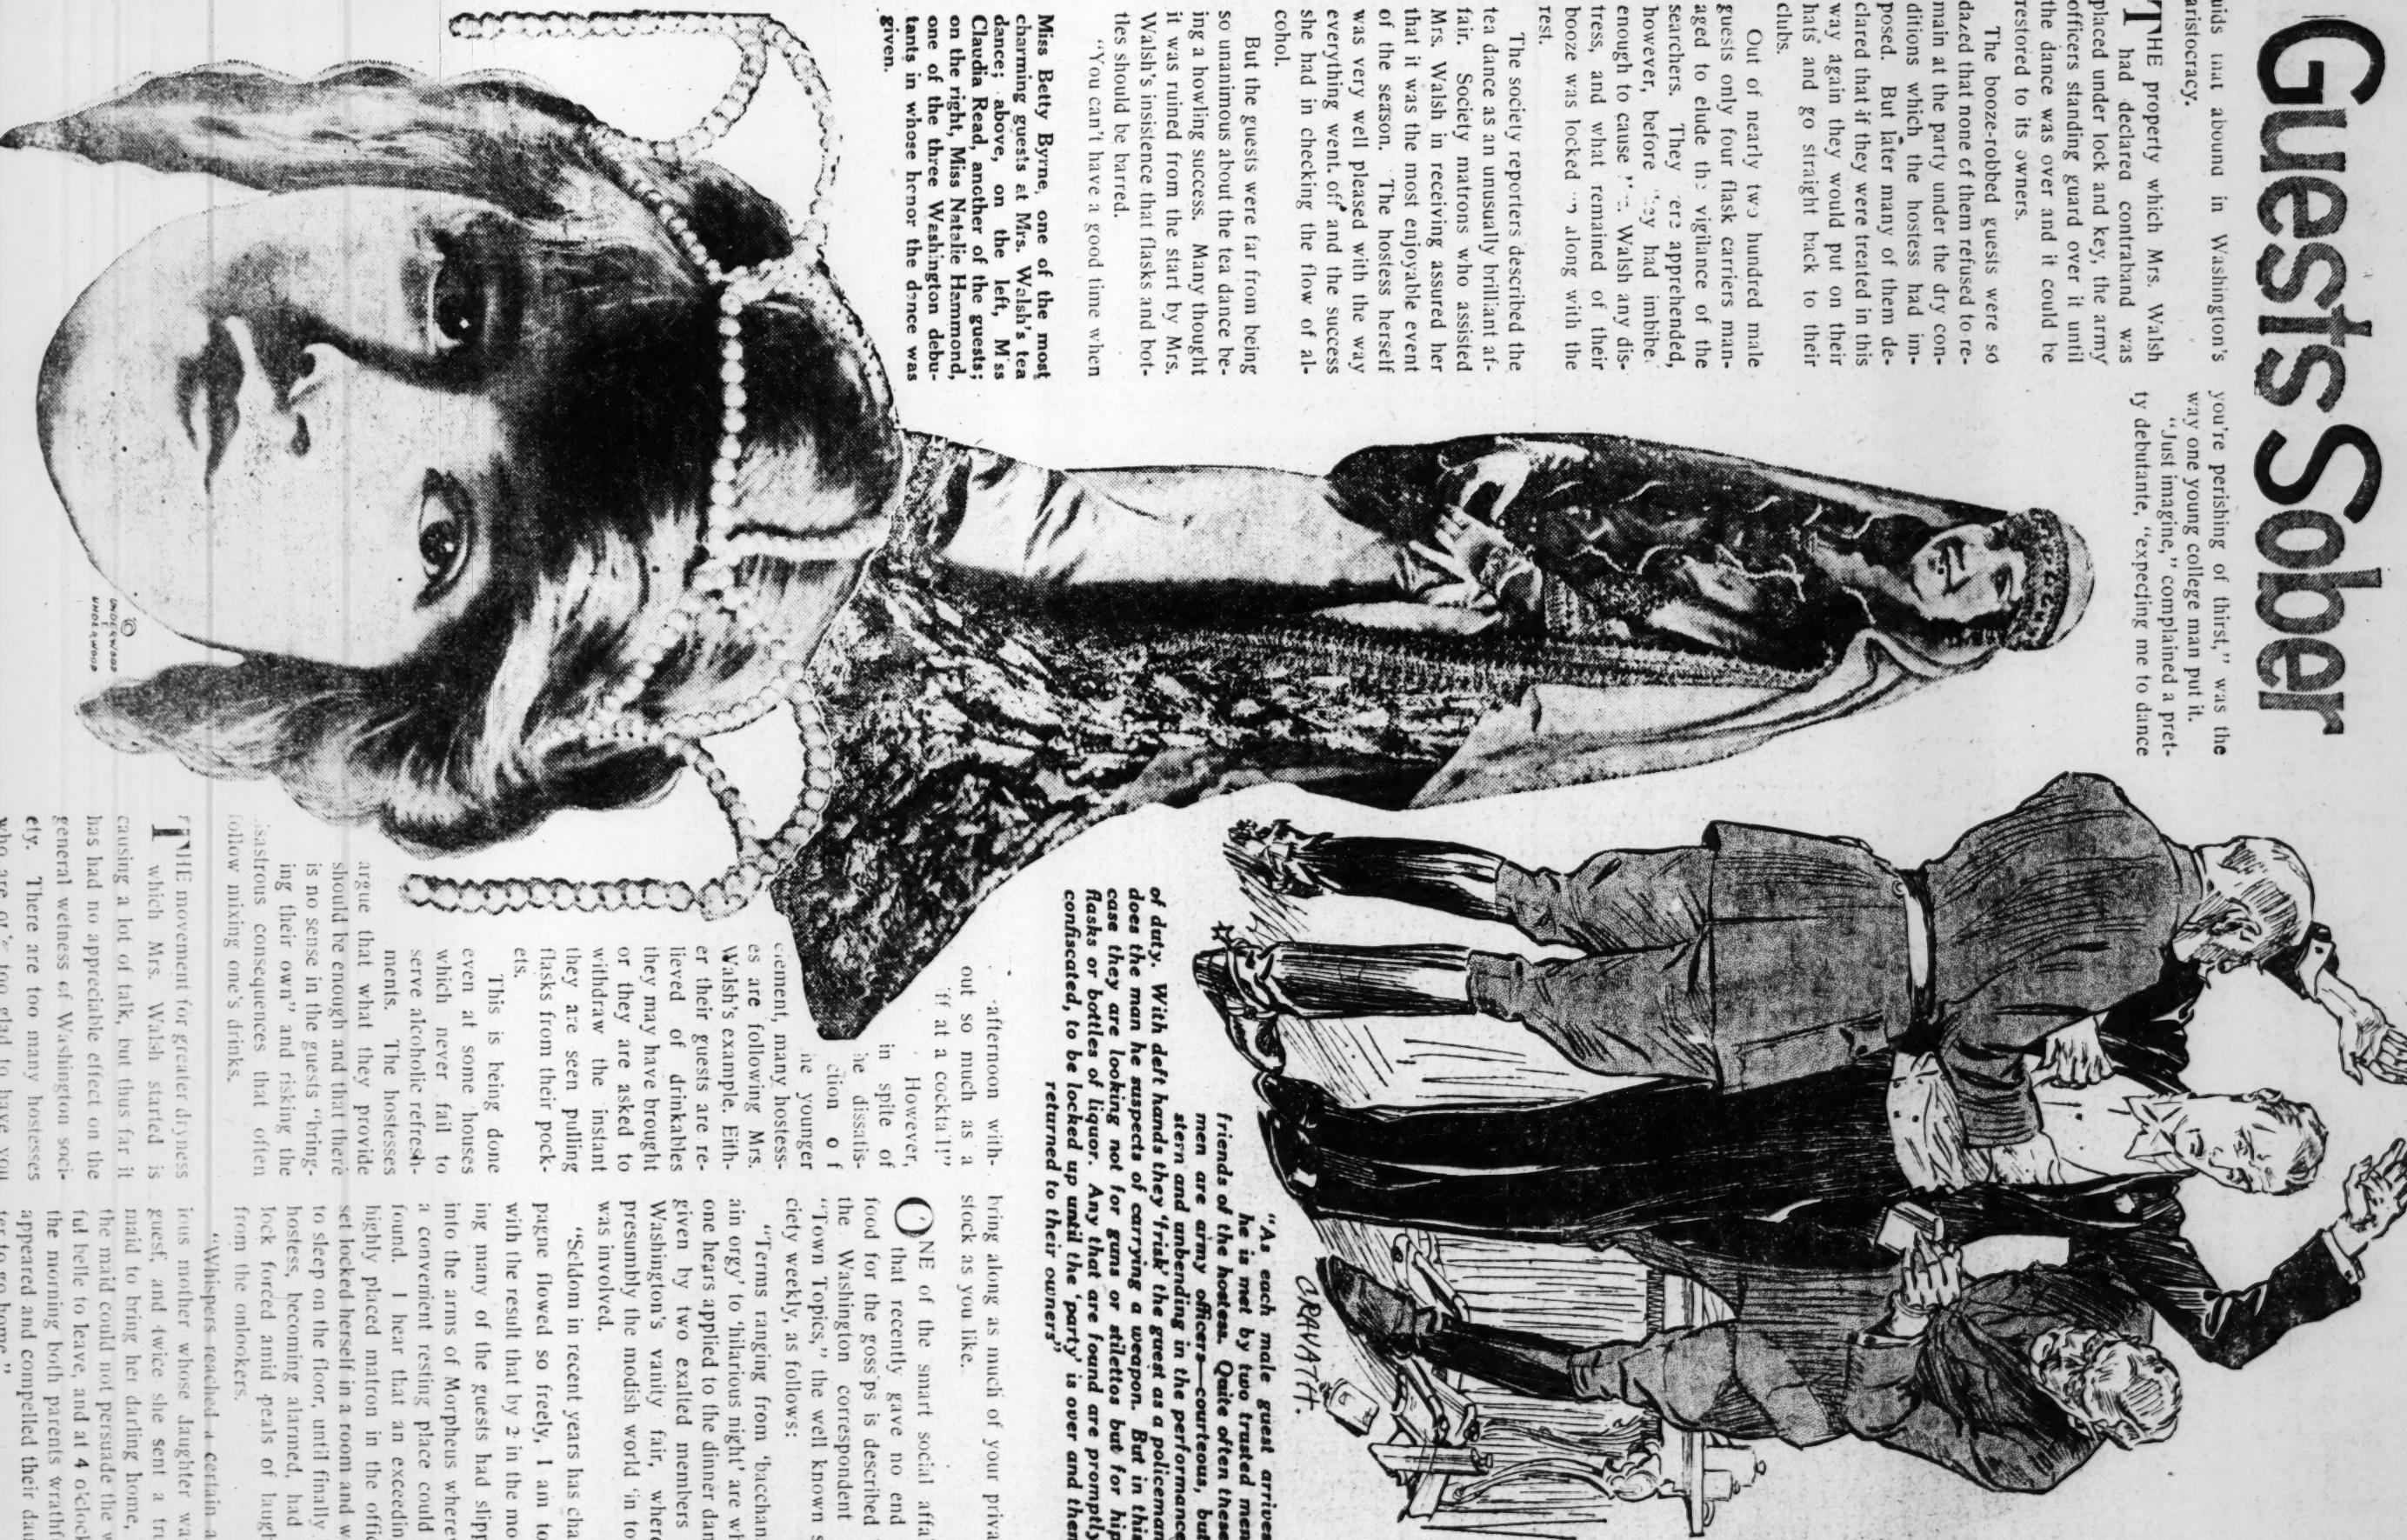

The society reporters described the tea dance as an unusually brilliant affair. Society matrons who assisted Mrs. Walsh in receiving assured her that it was the most enjoyable event of the season. The hostess herself was very well pleased with the way everything went off, and the success she had in checking the flow of alcohol.

But the guests were far from being so unanimous about the tea dance being a howling success. Many thought it was ruined from the start by Mrs. Walsh's insistence that flasks and hot-bottles should be barred.

"You can't have a good time when you're perishing of thirst," was the way one young college man put it.

"Just imagine," complained a pretty debutante, "expecting me to dance afternoon without so much as a "cocktail!"

However, in spite of the dissatisfaction of the younger generation, many hostesses are following Mrs. Walsh's example. Either their guests are relieved of drinkables they may have brought or they are asked to withdraw the instant they are seen pulling flasks from their pockets.

This is being done even at some houses which never fail to serve alcoholic refreshments. The hostesses argue that what they provide should be enough and that there is no sense in the guests "bring[ing] their own" and risking the disastrous consequences that often follow mixing one's drinks.

THE movement for greater dryness which Mrs. Walsh started is causing a lot of talk, but thus far it has had no appreciable effect on the general wellness of Washington society. There are too many hostesses who are too glad to have you bring along as much of your private stock as you like.

ONE of the smart social affairs that recently gave no end of food for the gossip is described by the Washington correspondent of "Town Topics," the well known society weekly, as follows:

"Terms ranging from 'bacchanalian orgy to 'hilarious night' are what one hears applied to the dinner dance given by two exalted members of Washington's vanity fair, wherein presumably the modish world 'in toto' was involved.

"Seldom in recent years has champagne flowed so freely, I am told, with the result that by 2 in the morning many of the guests had slipped into the arms of Morpheus wherever a convenient resting place could be found. I hear that an exceedingly highly placed matron in the official set locked herself in a room and went to sleep on the floor, until finally her hostess, becoming alarmed, had the lock forced amid peals of laughter from the onlookers.

"Whispers reached a certain anxious mother whose daughter was a guest, and twice she sent a trusty maid to bring her darling home, but the maid could not persuade the willful belle to leave, and at 4 o'clock in the morning both parents wrathfully appeared and compelled their daughter to go home."

The Constitution's Crime Riddles, No. 4—

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS 'CRIME RIDDLE?

First read all of the facts carefully. Then pick out the one vital clue which you think will lead to solution of the mystery here presented. Every detail set down in plain terms. You will know just as much after reading the story as the officers who found the accused. Try to piece the evidence together and decide which one of the suspected persons committed the deed, the reason for the crime, and how it was performed.

In each story of this series nothing will be omitted except the final conviction and explanation, which will be published two Sundays later. This gives you an opportunity to match your wits not only against the guilty persons, but also against the detective who traced out the truth.

HE Rue Montaigne is one of those sleepy Paris streets which seem to doze in the memory of gallant days long past. It has some imposing buildings on either hand, with many old-fashioned houses which sit back from the street line and grow ancient, surrounded by their tiny gardens.

In such a house as this lived the widow, Mme. de Maupas. She was a rather pretty widow and reputed to have money. And although she had lived there for some five years the neighborhood never quite accepted her. She dressed a bit too well and carried her head too high to invite intimacy. Old Margot, the cook and general factotum, was just as uncommunicative.

Taken by and large, the house in the Rue Montaigne was a good deal of a mystery and its mistress a subject of much comment. This rose almost to open odium when she began to go around with a fat fellow wearing a beard, a middle-sized, broad-girthed man, who had a straw-colored imperial. The gossips immediately decided that he was a German, and that settled the social standing of Mme. de Maupas. It was even hinted that he might be a spy and she a traitor.

One foggy, gray morning in the fall, Margot ran down the four steps which led to the front door, and out into the Rue Montaigne, crying in short gasps that sent windows flying up and heads popping out on all sides. A crowd gathered, a gendarme appeared from somewhere. What was the matter? Margot rocked on her heels and shook her head and sobbed and finally stammered that her mistress had been slain.

Ah! The whole neighborhood drew its breath and its eyes grew large. So her carryings-on had come to this, eh? Murder! Right there in the sleepy old Rue Montaigne with all its decent folk who would have had nothing to do with spies and Germans. They always had suspected that it would end like that. Sacre Bleu!

The gendarme had hastened into the house, found Mme. de Maupas' body in her bedroom and summoned his chief, then stood awaiting him outside her door. The sight within was not one for casual eyes.

In ten minutes, perhaps nine, that official arrived with several detectives and took charge. The gendarme watched them work with amazed eyes. They did not hurry into madame's room, as he had done in his eagerness, but first they examined all the doors and windows and ransacked the whole house with a thoroughness that left nothing unexamined and with a speed that bespoke the expert. One window had been forcibly entered. Then they came to the dead woman's room.

"You did well, little one," said the chief to the gendarme, and opened the door, while the others saluted.

WITH one accord the group paused on the threshold and studied the scene before them. It was visibly this had been the retreat of a woman who loved finery, who had a taste for art, especially of the bizarre sort. There were rich rugs on the floors, handsomely upholstered

Looked at the body that madame's head probably was severed. Such killers usually had a bent that way. But in this case the throat was only half severed and the face still bore a surprised, reproachful look, as though she had been on the point of saying, "Surely you wouldn't do that?"

They drew a sheet over the body the police decided. They soon had gathered up more clues. One of these was a paper container which had held cigarettes. The name of the seller was on the container, but nothing to show where he did business, except that the wording was in German. There were two shirts with a Berlin mark, and several collars and

Prompt search of Paris hotels informed the police that "Henry Geimler" had not returned to his room in a quiet faubourg the night before. Of course, Henry was not Gustave, but no matter, that was an accident. Yes, the clerk said, he was a rather heavy-set-up man, with a round face, evidently young, but he had no beard. Another detail; beards were easy to shave. So far as the hotel people knew he never had received any mail from a woman, and there was nothing to show that he had communicated with Mme. de Maupas. All details, the police decided. They soon had every corner of France watched for Geimler. Madame had been slain around three or four o'clock in the morning. He could not have gone far.

They reported to Paris, received an answer, and the mortal remains of Geimler passed from sight. Then they went leisurely back to Paris and into the office of their chief. He had the report of the case before him and was about to write "complete" at the end, when there was a tap on the door, and the officer on the other side entered, almost before he was told to do so. Behind him came Margot, who had served Mme. de Maupas. Her eyes were alight and she did not wait for a woman in her bed.

Two detectives left on the next train for Marseilles. The case was a very simple one. Robbery, murder; Geimler fled. It merely was necessary to await the apprehension of the slayer. And of that the police had little doubt. They had picked up dressing table had been signed "Gus- tave Geimler," written only three days before. In the next day that a message came through in code from Marseilles saying that Geimler had been arrested there, on the point of sailing for Africa.

Two detectives left on the next train for Marseilles. The case was going along smoothly, becoming a matter-of-fact affair. They would just bring Geimler back, identify and try him. Doubtless conviction would follow. The detectives yawned a little.

It would have been more interesting if the chase had been harder and last- ed longer.

In Marseilles the first real surprise awaited them. Geimler had died sud- denly of apoplexy. The detectives looked at the body and felt a good deal like the hotel owner. Assuredly this was a man who should have been well kicked and not permitted to die

so easily, after slaying a victim so much his superior. The detectives regarded him closely and wondered what the woman ever could have seen in such a man. She must have loved him a little, they thought, or else she was bored to distraction. He was a short-legged, big-bodied Ger- man, with a fat, vapid face that in-

a vast region which is so warmed by hot springs and the earth's volcanic fires that it is fertile and in every way well adapted for human life.

The existence of such a place might easily explain the fate of the Viking nation that disappeared from Greenland 500 years ago. Becoming disheartened over conditions of life that grew harder and harder after their communications with the home land were cut off, they may have decided to migrate to the "paradise" of which they had heard from Eskimos coming down to their settlements from the north.

In those days quite possibly there were Eskimos who knew just where it was located and were able to lead the Norsemen straight to it.

If they succeeded in reaching the "paradise" and found it half as delightful as the Eskimos think, perhaps they had no desire to return to the world they had left, or perhaps they found their return for some reason impossible.

The theory that these 10,000 Norsemen found a new and delightful home somewhere amid the Arctic's desolate wastes and that their descendants are living there to this day is full of fascinating possibilities.

In the five centuries they have been living in complete isolation from the rest of mankind they may have developed a civilization more wonderful than the world has ever seen. Perhaps they possess scientific inventions that will make the big Shenandoah when it comes flying over them seem like a very trivial thing.

Starting with a population of 10,000 souls 500 years ago, the lost polar nation should now have a population of many times that size, even if its people have not intermarried with the Eskimos. But there is considerable evidence to show that such intermarriage began some time before the Norsemen suddenly vanished from their Greenland homes.

According to several of the old Norse sagas the colonists were conquered by a warlike Eskimo tribe. Others have it that they formed a friendly alliance with invaders from the north. At any rate, whatever the reason, intermarriage is said to have begun, and later it is thought that the Norsemen renounced their belief in Christianity, which they had brought with them from Norway and for which they had built nearly a score of churches and cathedrals.

THE intermarriage of the Norsemen with the tribe that led them to the "polar paradise" would explain the numerous blond Eskimos that have been reported by Stefansson and other explorers. The Vikings, as everybody knows, were one of the blondest of races, while the Eskimos are naturally dark of eyes, complexion and hair.

On Victoria Island, in the Arctic Archipelago about midway between Baffin Land and Alaska, Stefansson found several tribes of Eskimos that showed an astonishing resemblance to white men. Yet these people could not in recent times have had any contact with whites that would have changed their physical type.

"Of something less than a thousand persons ten or more have blue eyes," says Stefansson. "No full-blooded Eskimo has a right to have blue eyes, as far as we know. His eyes should be as brown and his hair as black as those of the typical Chinaman.

"Some of the men eradicate their beards by pulling out the hairs by the roots. But of those who have beards a good many have light brown ones. No one has seen light hair of the Scandinavian type, but some have dark brown and rusty red hair, the redness being usually more pronounced on the forehead than on the back of the head.

"Perhaps half the population have eyebrows ranging from a dark brown to a light brown or nearly white. A few have curly hair.

"It is, however, not only the blondness of the Victoria Islanders that suggests the European, but also the form of their heads, as shown by measurements."

The lost Norse nation is of unusual interest to Americans because it was other members of this same adventurous race who pressed on from Greenland and discovered America.

There is the strongest kind of support for the belief that Leif Ericsson set foot on this continent nearly 500 years before Columbus did. He sailed from Greenland in the year 1001 or 1002. After skirting the coasts of land and Nova Scotia, Ericsson landed on Cape Cod, where he and his men built log huts and spent the winter. They called the new land Vinland because of the great quantities of wild grapes which they found and which they doubtless made into wine to quench their famous thirsts.

In Massachusetts is still to be seen a rock on which is carved in curious characters an inscription believed to have been put there either by Leif Ericsson or one of several other bold Norse sailors who found their way to America soon after he did.

GREENLAND was discovered and its settlement begun by Eric the Red, the son of a Norwegian chieftain who settled in Iceland when Eric was still a child. When a young man Eric was convicted of manslaughter and banished from Iceland for three years. He decided to make good use of his exile by trying to find the great island to the westward, of which various sailors had caught vague glimpses.

He succeeded in reaching Greenland and spent a long time exploring the coast and looking for suitable places for settlement. In spite of its bleakness, he liked the new land so well that when the law permitted him to return home he induced many other Icelanders to go back there with him and settle.

His expedition is said to have numbered twenty-five ships. Only four of these, however, reached their destination. The rest were either driven back or lost.

Eric settled on the east coast. Other settlements soon were established on either side of him, and more venturesome pioneers went around to the west coast and founded colonies there.

The Norsemen laid out farms and built houses and barns and cattle pens of sod or stone with floors of hard-packed clay.

Besides their farming the Norsemen lived chiefly by stock raising, fishing and catching seals. In

berg went to the foot of the stairs and called Gustave. A heavy voice answered, a step on the stairs followed, and the men arose with the instinct for action.

The tread on the stairs stopped halfway down, the whole drama hung in suspense.

"Did you call?" asked the man.

"What—"

NOW he sensed the danger and was going back up the stairs, one at a time. The two officers sprang out, past Mme. Guttenberg, and after Geimler. Another instant and all three rolled to the bottom of the steps, a clawing, sprawling mass.

A half an hour later Geimler had been entered on the police docket and was closeted with his two inquisitors.

He admitted knowing Mme. Maupas; he had known her for some time, but he had not killed her and affected much grief over her end. He had not known that she was dead until he read it in the papers. Then he had become frightened and fled to Germany, foreseeing that his acquaintance with her brother — and his surprise was so great — would direct suspicion to him. He professed to know nothing about the death of Henry Geimler — a half brother of Gustave.

He had fled to Germany, fearing conviction that the chief pondered long over the matter. Gustave offered an alibi to account for his whereabouts on the night of the crime. He also said that he and Henry had not got on well together.

Things were at this point when they swept apart like straws in a trade.

Guessed that somebody was aware of danger, to put out her right paw to the concealed steel horror, Kifaro arrived in a hurry. The cat heard a terrible noise of riven trees. Disappearing speck in an ocean of yellow grass. Fungu was at her door. Heard the thunderous thudding of rounded feet. Saw the thick bushes about her swept apart like straws in a trade. Guessed that somebody was annoyed about something, and "threw her hand in," as one might say. Two seconds after Kifaro's challenging snort he was himself a fast disappearing speck in an ocean of yellow grass. Fungu was at her door. She did not look back.

But there are those whose sole trade is to watch for swift tragedy. Even as the slayer of the hyena faded into the nearby shelter of the thicket, the vultures arrived, wheeling fast and high above the disorderly scene. And with their marvelous sight they picked out each little detail. They saw the scattered bushes, in their midst a sort of crumpled frying pan, which gave back the light from a thousand jagged corners. They saw just beyond, in one giant circular footprint, a crimson patch. A sinister crimson patch of blood and fur. All that remained of M'Waha, jackal, is carried of the plains.

Geimler's baggage literally was torn shred from shred and his room gone over with a fine-tooth comb for new clues in this most perplexing of mysteries. And all this search was re-warded by disclosing several articles of jewelry bearing the tell-tale initials "M." Geimler insisted that the woman had given him these pieces. But the chieft charged him with murder and in due time he was returned to France.

Here was the mystery of the hour. Who killed Mme. de Maupas? Henry Geimler, who died of fright when accused of the crime, or Gustave Geimler, who had fled on the heels of the other, to the other. It will be left to the reader's speculation until Sunday after next, when the solution will be printed.

The answer to this problem, as arrived at by a jury and a judge, will be published on this page Sunday after next. Readers are invited to mail their own solutions to the Detective Story Editor. Answers must reach the Editor by Thursday noon, February 28. The best of these solutions will be published alongside the court decision. Here is a chance to exercise your detective instinct in a real case which puzzled the most acute minds of famous detectives. Every known detail has been set forth, just as it was brought out at the trial. Nothing has been kept hidden, so that the reader has the same opportunity as though he were actually on the jury to consider the problem of guilt.

Another riddle in the detection of crime will be printed next Sunday.

"I simply don't see how we're going to teach Marjorie to take care of her money," confided Mrs. White to her husband. "If she were extravagant it would be a different matter, but she isn't. She simply gives her money away to anybody she feels sorry for—beggars and unfortunate people she sees."

"So few people have the charitable instinct, it's too bad to try to check her," said Marjorie's father, thoughtfully.

"But one should not let her impulses run away with her," argued Mrs. White. "Marjorie's excessive giving is really a great strain on the family pocketbook."

from one player to another and the passes do not average more than eight or ten feet each. The advantage in this lies in the fact that such a short pass is hard for an opponent to intercept and the ball is passed so often that it is hard for an opponent to keep track of it.

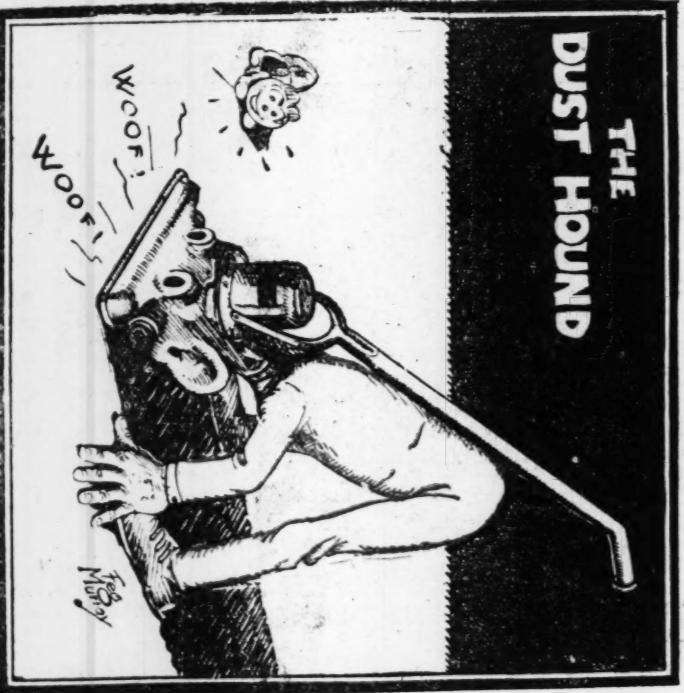

In this short pass attack the men are all rather close together so that the ball can be passed from one to another easily. Always try to pass to the man ahead but if this is not possible the ball may be passed up close to the basket so that short develops team play and puts the ball up well but which do not give many points.

Old King Coal is a merry old soul,
And a merry old soul is he;
For he thinks of the things he used to do,
And the things he used to see;
And he thinks of the things that he will do,
And the things that he will see!

"Ha! Ha!" laughs he, and his cheeks grow red—

"A million years old, and not yet dead!"

Old King Coal, the merry old soul,

Says, "Once I was a tree.

I shook my boughs, and fluttered my leaves,

And the birds built nests in me.

And all day long I sang a song—

For I was young and free.

Ho! Ho!" roars he, and sends a spark up the wide chimney, in the dark.

"The four winds were my closest friends,

They liked to play with me.

Wild east, warm south, cold

north, soft west—

All playful as could be!

They'd pull my boughs and toss my leaves,

And shriek and howl with glee!

Ha! Ha!" laughs he, "I can see them yet,

Those are the friends I can't forget."

Old King Coal is a merry old soul,

And not at all tired is he;

For he's had a long nap in the soft, deep ground,

With the rocks for company.

He slept and he slept for a thousand years,

And two, and even three.

"Ho! Ho!" laughs he, "I'd a fine long rest!"

Down in the ground, in a leafy nest.

Old King Coal is a merry old soul;
"There came a time," says he,

Says Old King Coal, "They moved away,

But I stayed, silently.

And overhead I often heard

Sounds soft and patterey.

They were the sounds of little feet,

And company for me!

Ho! Ho!" laughs he, "I could hear them play—

The mice and the wood-chucks, every day."

Old King Coal is a merry old soul;

"When the miners came with shovel and pick,

And dug down deep for me.

Once more I felt the breezes blow,

And once more I could see.

Ha! Ha!" laughs he, "I was in the ground,

And I slept and slept till I was found."

Says Old King Coal, "since then,
I've had lots of company.
I've lived way down in the cellar bin,
And other coals with me.
And we all decided we would be
As merry as we could be!
Ho! Ho!" laughs he, and he jumps a bit,
"I want to hop when I think of it."

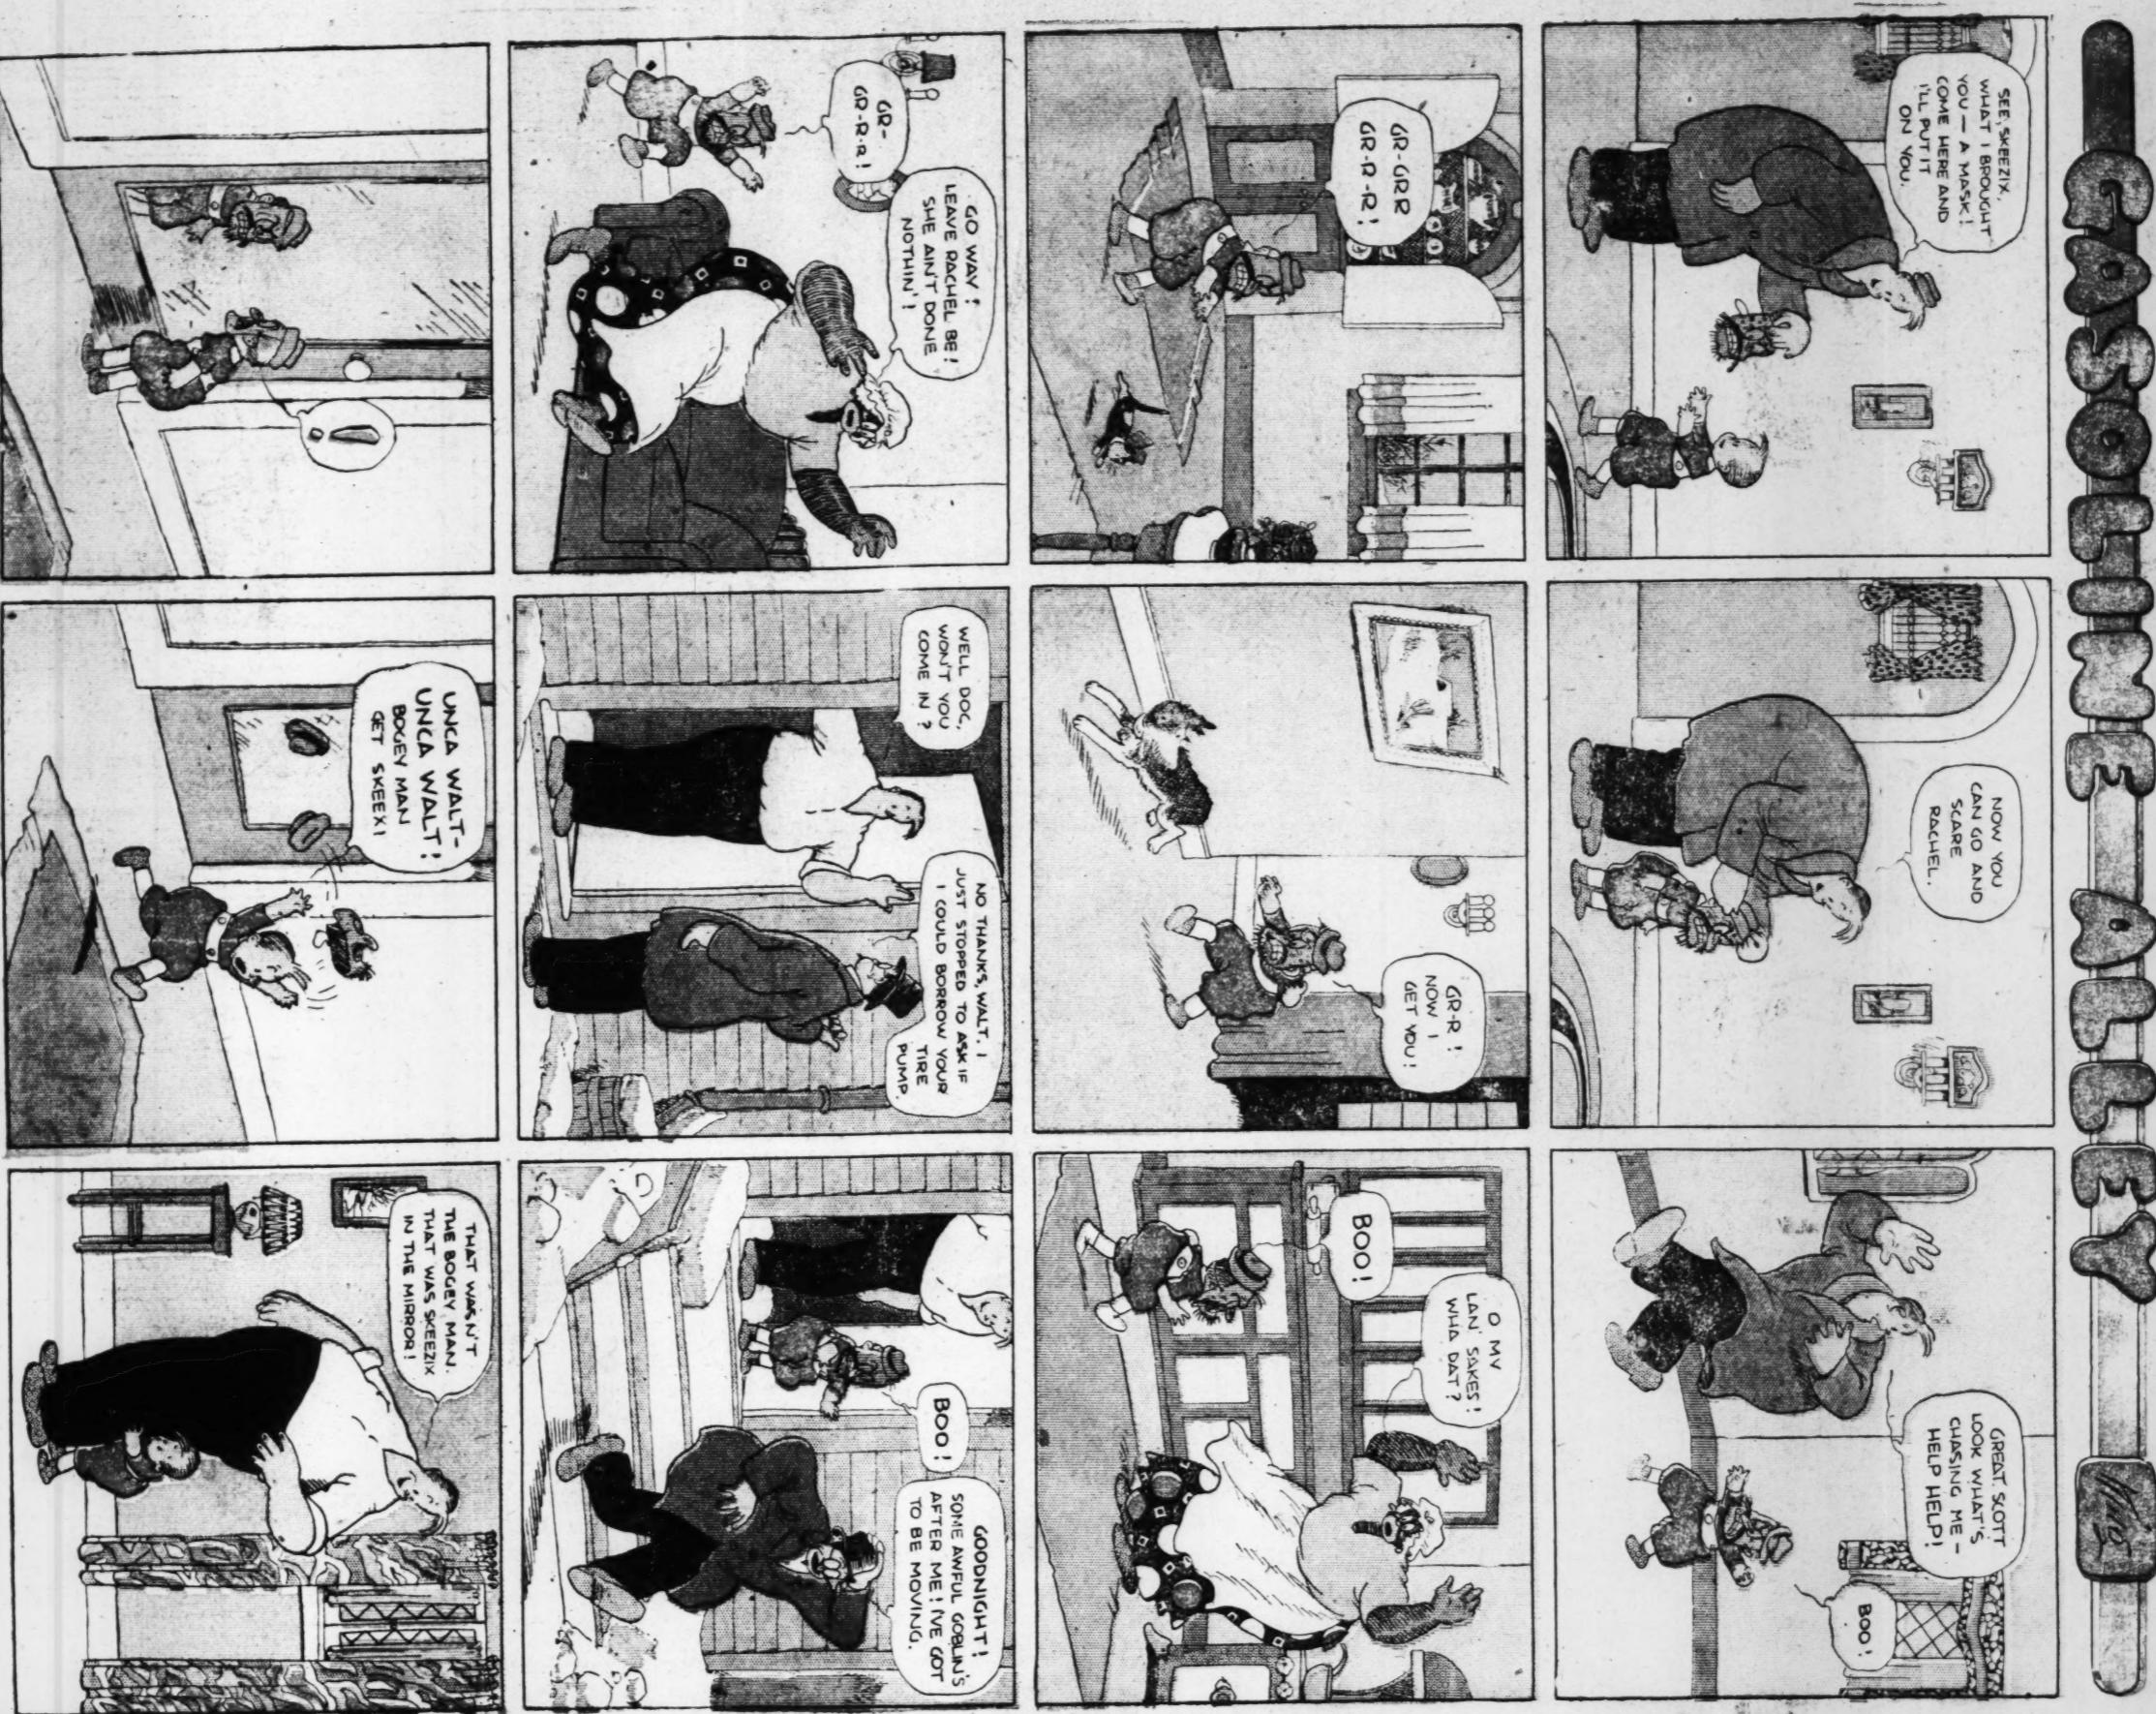

"And some," says Old King Coal,
"Have now gone far from me.
They're down in the furnace, making steam,
As merry as they can be.
They like their work, as I like mine—
Who's merrier than we?
Ha! Ha!" laughs he, "hear the hot steam sing!
We're merry because of the joy we bring."

Old King Coal is a merry old soul,
In the fireplace snug sits he.
When the children gather round and sing,
Says he, "they sing for me,
While I think of the things I used to do
And the things I used to see!
Ho! Ho!" laughs he, and his cheeks grow red,
"A million years old, and not yet dead!"
